The Secret of Good Coffee

Even the best housekeepers cannot make a good cup of coffee without good material. Dirty, adulterated and queerly blended coffee such as unscrupulous dealers shovel over their counters won't do. But take the pure, clean, natural flavored

LION COFFEE, the leader of all package coffees—the coffee that for over a quarter of a century has been daily welcomed in millions of homes—and you will make a drink fit for a king in this way:

HOW TO MAKE GOOD COFFEE.

Use LION COFFEE, because to get best results you must use the best coffee.

Grind your LION COFFEE rather fine. Use "a tablespoonful to each cup, and one extra for the pot." First mix it with a little cold water, enough to make a thick paste, and add white of an egg (if egg is to be used as a settler), then follow one of the following rules:

1st. WITH BOILING WATER. Add boiling water, and let it boil THREE MINUTES ONLY. Add a little cold water and set aside five minutes to settle. Serve promptly.

2d. WITH COLD WATER. Add your cold water to the paste and bring it to a boil. Then set aside, add a little cold water, and in five minutes it's ready to serve.

3 DONT'S
- Don't boil it too long.
- Don't let it stand more than ten minutes before serving.
- Don't use water that has been boiled before.

TWO WAYS TO SETTLE COFFEE.

1st. With Eggs. Use part of the white of an egg, mixing it with the ground LION COFFEE before boiling.

2d. With Cold Water instead of eggs. After boiling add a dash of cold water, and set aside for eight or ten minutes, then serve through a strainer.

Insist on getting a package of genuine LION COFFEE, prepare it according to this recipe and you will only use LION COFFEE in future. (Sold only in 1 lb. sealed packages.)

QUEER SOLOMON OAKS.

A queer old fellow is Solomon Oaks;
He belongs to the good-natured order of folks;
He sings and he whistles about the work
That nobody ever has known him to shirk,
And he makes you think, with his blithe good cheer,
Of the merry blackbirds when spring is here.

If they come to him with a doleful tale
Of a neighbor's faults, they always fail
To rouse attention to what they tell.
At such a time he can't hear very well;
But if they praise up a neighbor—then
He can hear as well as the best of men.

He always indorses the good things said
By his friends of the living as well as the dead.
If he's asked what he thinks of a man gone wrong,
He'll pause, perhaps, in his cheerful song,
And say: "I'm sorry, but there must be
Some good to his credit, it seems to me."

"I haven't time to keep track," says he,
"Of the sad things and bad things that I might see
If I was to look for them; so I try
To shut my eyes as I pass them by,
And see only good things along the way—
And I find a lot of them every day.

"By always having something to do
I keep out of trouble and mischief, too.
I stick to my business, as best I can,
And keep on good terms with my fellow-man—
And the better I treat him, it seems to me,
The better my fellow-man treats me."

A queer old fellow, this Solomon Oaks,
With his merry laugh and his pleasant jokes,
And his faith in his fellows, said or sung.
He's a host of friends among old and young.
He makes them and keeps them by smile and song,
And the word that helps us when things go wrong.

His life holds a lesson 't were well to learn:
Shut your eyes to the bad; all the good discern:
Keep busy; be cheerful; and aim to make
This old world better for love's sweet sake.
Queer? Well it may be; but this I say:
More of such queerness we need to-day.

Caught With the Goods.

In a Fifth avenue stage, a woman about to get out missed her purse. She knew she had it after she entered the stage, as she had taken it out when she paid her fare. The stage was at the Twenty-ninth street crossing. A woman passenger, quickly taking in the situation, jumped to the door and called to the policeman stationed there.

To the astonishment of the other passengers, when the policeman had mounted the stage, he at once singled out a handsomely dressed young widow to whom he said:

"So you are at it again, Sue?"

Then he pulled away the muff she was carrying and disclosed a pair of wax hands and arms which had been gracefully bestowed in the muff, while with her own, which were concealed beneath her cloak, she had secured the missing purse.—New York Sun.

New Fashion in Divorce.

Ordinary divorce is not sufficiently sensational to be the fashionable vogue. For a while divorced couples followed the fashion of immediate return into new matrimonial partnerships, but the latest divorce fad is for the man and woman to "marry over again." This is a novelty which will doubtless find imitators among the newly rich. In the last case of this kind the woman made proper terms with her husband in requiring him to pay $83,000 to the man who in east side parlance would be called her "gentleman friend." This man and his wife were divorced, and he preferred marrying another previously married woman rather than the one who already owed him $83,000.—New York World.

Fashions in Shoes.

In the ninth and tenth centuries the greatest princes of Europe wore wooden shoes. In the reign of William Rufus of England, in the eleventh century, a great dandy, "Robert the Horned," used shoes with sharp points, stuffed with tow and twisted like rams' horns. The Romans made use of two kinds of shoes, the solea, or sandal, which covered the sole of the foot and was worn at home and in company, and the calceus, which covered the whole foot and was always worn with the toga when one went abroad. Greek shoes were peculiar in reaching to the middle of the legs. Slippers were in use before Shakespeare's time and were originally made "rights" and "lefts." Shoes among the Jews were made of leather, linen, rush or wood; soldiers shoes were sometimes made of brass or iron. In the reign of Richard II shoes were of such absurd length as to require to be supported by being tied to the knees with chains, sometimes of gold or silver. In 1463 the English parliament took the matter in hand and passed an act forbidding shoes with spikes more than two inches in length being worn and manufactured. The present styles of shoes were introduced into England in 1633.

A Scientist's Costly Mistake.

An English entomologist recently received for examination a few specimens of the gypsy moth, and accidentally allowed some half dozen to escape. These increased and multiplied in such an alarming fashion that the moths spread over a certain locality, in which they wrought considerable damage. It has cost that English county $500,000 in the attempt to suppress them, and it is estimated that it will take another $100,000 per annum to keep them from traveling outside the area which they at present devastate.

Digestible Chestnut.

The London Lancet finds that the chestnut is the most digestible nut, and can not only take the place of the potato, as in France, where chestnuts, boiled and mashed like potatoes, make a delicious dish, but in reality they are a more perfect form of food. According to the Lancet's analysis of the potato and the chestnut, the latter contains less water, more proteid, more fat and starch, but less mineral matter than the potato, and is more digestible than the latter. Like the potato, also, its nutritive and digestive qualities are greatest when baked or roasted.

Burning Up With a Terrible Itching Eczema—Speedily Cured by Cuticura.

My scalp was covered with scabs and my face was like a piece of raw beef, my eyebrows and lashes were falling out, and I felt as if burning up from the terrible itching and pain. Cuticura gave me relief the very first day, and made a complete cure in a short time. My head and face are now clear and well. (Signed) Miss Mary M. Fay, 73 West Main St., Westboro, Mass."

WOMEN NOT TRUTHFUL

This Statement Has Been Unjustly Made, Because Modest Women Evade Questions Asked By Male Physicians.

Mrs. J. H. Farmer

Mrs. Ella Lee

An eminent physician says that "Women are not truthful; they will lie to their physician." This statement should be qualified; women do tell the truth, but not the whole truth, to a male physician, but this is only in regard to those painful and troublesome disorders peculiar to their sex.

There can be no more terrible ordeal to a delicate, sensitive, refined woman than to be obliged to answer certain questions when those questions are asked, even by her family physician. This is especially the case with unmarried women.

Is it any wonder, then, that women continue to suffer and that doctors fail to cure female diseases when they cannot get the proper information to work on?

This is the reason why thousands and thousands of women are now corresponding with Mrs. Pinkham. To her they can and do give every symptom, so that she really knows more about the true condition of her patients, through her correspondence with them than the physician who personally questions them.

If you suffer from any form of trouble peculiar to women, write at once to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and she will advise you free of charge.

The fact that this great boon, which is extended freely to women by Mrs. Pinkham, is appreciated, the thousands of letters received by her prove. Many such grateful letters as the following are constantly pouring in.

Mrs. Ella Lee, Frankford, Ind., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I want to thank you for what your medicine has done for me.

"Three years ago I had inflammation of the ovaries and ulcers on my womb. I was under the doctor's care for about three months, and the only time I was not in pain was when under the influence of morphine. The doctor finally said I never would be better, and would be an invalid the rest of my life. I had given up in despair, but one evening I came across one of your advertisements and decided to write you for advice. I did so and commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began to improve at once, and to-day I am a well woman, and I know it is all due to your advice and medicine."

Mrs. J. H. Farmer of 2809 Elliott Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I cannot thank you enough for what your advice and medicines have done for me. They have done me more good than all the doctors I ever had.

"For the last eight years I have suffered with female troubles; was very weak; had nervous prostration, and could not do my work; but I am happy to say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made a different woman of me. I am in perfect health and have gained in weight from 98 pounds to 128 pounds."

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record for actual cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Let us illustrate vividly the difference in meaning of the words might and will—the child might live; the child will live. Might implies doubt; will means certainty. Might live means might die; will live means will not die.

These two words aptly illustrate the difference between Johnson's Tonic and the horde of commercial remedies on the market, and that vast horde of inert professional remedies which only bear the sanction of the High Priests of medicine.

USE JOHNSON'S TONIC in a bad case of Grip and you will live! Use inert, or commercial products, and you might live.

Johnson's Tonic quickly drives out every trace and taint of Grip. It is not simply good, it is supremely good—not good as anything, but better than everything—genuine life-saver. Those who believe in it are safe—all others are in danger and jeopardize their lives. Summed up, Johnson's Chill and Fever Tonic is the best Grip medicine on earth. This is the sober, serious, earnest truth.

I suffered for four months with extreme nervousness and lassitude. I had a sinking feeling in my stomach which no medicine seemed to relieve, and losing my appetite I became weak and lost my vitality. In three weeks I lost fourteen pounds of flesh and felt that I must find speedy relief to regain my health. Having heard Wine of Cardui praised by several of my friends, I sent for a bottle and was certainly very pleased with the results. Within three days my appetite returned and my stomach troubled me no more. I could digest my food without difficulty and the nervousness gradually diminished. Greenlee, N. C., April 3, 1905

Mr. D. J. Dobson has returned home from Alabama where he has been laying steel.

Miss Mary Burgin and Mrs. J. Williams are visiting Marion.

Mr. G B. Dobson will leave for Clanton and other points in Alpbama the 25th.

Messrs. G. B. and D. J. Dobson, and B. Greenlee went to Marion yesterday. What for, does anyone know.

From the Banner news I should think Clanton is on a boom. Well, let her go, for I shall visit there in July. FORSAKEN AND FORGOTTEN.

Falakto.

Our people are quite busy just now with farm, garden and truck patches. No cause for complaint of weather, for it is just lovely.

Rev. J. L Hand filled his regular appointment at Maple Springs Saturday and Sunday. Our Sabbath school has revived with the coming of spring, have a pretty good enrollment, but not what it was last year.

Rev. Vickers and daughters, misses Ada and Esther, were welcome visitors at Maple Springs Sunday. The great sufferings of little Esther seems to have rendered her more dear to her many friends here, and after services were closed all came forward and gave her a most hearty greeting; it was a touching scene. Come again, brother, and bring your family, we are glad to have you.

Miss Martha Pyron of Verbena visited Miss Ressie Harris Saturday.

H. A. J.

Verbena.

After the lapse of several moons I will ask for space in your paper to state some of the occurences of Verbena.

The farmers seem to have reconciled themselves to the low price of cotton, and are buying guano and supplies with a fevor that denotes still another big crop. Most of them have agreed to reduce the acreage but seem determined to raise as much as ever, on less groud. Take my advice, friends and raise it cheap.

Socially Verbena is budding out quite as rapidly as the Spring, the young people seem alert and anxiour for enjoyment of every available kind.

We had a Show at the academy Wednesday evening with good attendance. One of the greatest features of the entertainment was the presentation of a silver cup to the most popular lady, and a bar of soap to the laziest man.

For the former the two leading in the contest were Miss Lula Colley and Miss Julia Lee Gulledge. Both were very popular as was evidenced by the ever increasing bids which finally ran the price of the cup up to $8 26 before it was ceded to Miss Gulledge. The votes ran pretty even and were only stopped by the opposing faction going into bankruptcy.

There was not much voting on the soap proposition. Mr. Pinkston and Mr. Fike were the contestants, but Mr. Pinkston won the soap by a small majority.

Mr. F. A. Gulledge sold another $1 for 95 cents, I am told. May he continue.

We are indeed sorry to know of the serious illness of Mrs. Johnson of Clanton, who is visiting her father, Mr. Strock, of this place, and wish her a speedy recovery and extend our spmpathy to her anxious family.

Well, I will promise you something better when I learn it, and best wishes and thanks.

PHRANCHS.

The introduction of electrical apparatus in China and in other countries of the Far East cannot fail to have some effect upon the lives of the natives. The people there change slowly, but probably nothing could have a greater effect than the trolley in bringing about this change, unless we except the telephone. Is it not possible that these two agents will play an important part in bringing about a better understanding between the Chinese Empire and the Western nations? queries the New York Tribune.

The construction of the great Simplon tunnel has proved once more that geology is largely a matter of theories, which may or may not fit actual conditions, even close to the surface of the earth, remarks the New York Tribune. The engineers have discovered that the geologists were entirely at fault as to the temperature which would be encountered, missing the mark twenty-five degrees at the point where hot water was found. The water conditions in general were unlike those predicted, and the engineers found that the dips in the rock strata, which had been declared on theory to be mainly vertical, were, in fact, horizontal.

New York City is to undertake a little bit of municipal ownership, declares the Springfield Republican. The Street Cleaning Department wants bids for the construction of an incinerator at Delancey slip, as a first step toward balking the lighting companies in their extravagant charges. The incinerator is expected to furnish light for the new Williamsburg bridge and for seven temporary school buildings in the vicinity. The Street Cleaning Department and the Bridge Department will pool their available funds to achieve this result, $30,000 being ready in one department and $60,000 in the other. The New York lighting companies appear to be doing what they can to encourage the municipal ownership sentiment in the great city.

World's Work furnishes some striking figures on the pay of public school teachers. They are more than striking. They touch on the injustice of a system that gets all it can and pays as little as possible for it. It is not denied that teaching is hard work—hard and wearing. And the job, or profession, calls for not only years of preparation, but tact, patience, the highest order of intelligence, and that something that has not been named, but is the ability to get along in the face of countless worries and obstacles. Now, how about the pay? In the State of Indiana 12,000 teachers receive less than $500 per year each, and there are other States in which the showing would be worse. Are the people of the United States in earnest about their desire for thorough education? inquires the Atlanta Journal.

McClure's Magazine recently printed a symposium of comments on the prevalence of crime and lawlessness in the United States. It is explained that these comments are taken "almost at random from representative and serious newspapers and from the published statements of judges and citizens." The opinion is expressed that "these statistics confirm the general impression regarding the rapid and alarming increase of lawlessness in our country," and it is pointed out that at present there are four and one-half times as many murders and homicides for each million of people in the United States as there were in 1881. McClure's has done the public a distinct service by the publication of this symposium, and it would be well for all good citizens to seriously consider the situation described.

According to the Shoe Retailer, which ought to know, the barefoot sandal is here to stay, and thousands of pairs are daily being made up for next season. "It was the general opinion last season," says the Retailer, "When so many of them were worn, that the sale must have reached its climax, but more than twice as many have been already sold as were produced all last season. Not only are they being made for the little ones, but many adults are buying them for house slippers, because of their wearing qualities. A salesman, just returned from his Western trip, says out West there is as much demand for sandals as East and South. While the barefoot sandal was originally intended to be worn at the seashore and summer resort, this salesman remarked that there were hundreds of children out West who never saw the seashore that were barefoot sandals, being to them the ideal comfort and health shoe."

THE CHILD'S LAST PRAYER.

By C. E. Bolles.

"Now I lay me," softly, faintly,
  Came the words from lips grown white,
While the murmur of the river
  Sounded through the silent night.

"Down to sleep;" the sleep was dreamless,
  That was stealing o'er her now;
Slower grew the flutt'ring heart beats,
  Death-damp gathered on her brow.

"I pray the Lord"—the dear Lord standing,
  All unseen, beside her bed,
Knew Himself the pangs of dying—
  Had Himself slept with the dead.

"My soul to keep." Dear child, he keeps it
  Safely in His gentle hand;
Keeps it for a place in heaven,
  'Mong the shining seraph band.

"If I should die"—e'en now she standeth
  On the river's misty shore;
Only this one crossing over,
  And she tasteth death no more.

"Before I wake"—that bliss of waking
  Never mortal lips have told;
Songs of angels, palms of glory,
  Harps and crowns of purest gold.

"I pray the Lord"—He closer bendeth,
  With a smile of tender love;
Waits to bear that pure, white spirit,
  To the better home above.

"My soul to take." He takes it gladly,
  Where no sin can ever mar,
To that land of peace eternal,
  Just beyond the evening star.

The Traveler's Dream.

By L. I. DESLEIGH.

This is the tale of my friend. What advice would you have given to him?

I had engaged myself to spend Chrismas at Lanfair, and as I love to travel on foot I had informed John Lanfair that I would arrive on the 23d of December, after enjoying a short walking tour in his beautiful section.

On the morning of the day which I had named I was within twenty miles of Mr. Lanfair's residence, and doubted not that I should reach it long ere nightfall. The day came on very stormy, but I did not fear a strife with the elements, and I swore that I would not yield.

Alone and on foot I had determined to arrive, and in no other manner would I accomplish my journey's end. But I was forced to go slowly; more than once I missed the direct road, and night descended early, still further delaying my progress. I struggled forward, but at length I was sufficiently candid to own that my position was unpleasant. I had lost my way; I seemed to be in the midst of a desert; I was pretty well soaked and the wind was almost sweeping me off my legs as its gusts ever increased in violence.

I was traversing a narrow road of the roughest description that ran through a little piece of wood, and that would, I hoped, bring me to some farmhouse, when for the space of an instant the clouds were blown from the face of the moon, and my eyes could see what lay before me—walls—bare, ruined walls, standing upright in naked ugliness, and presenting in the midst of the tempest a picture of desolation that was perfect. The moonbeams faded, and I was again plunged into utter darkness.

So wretched was now my condition that even in these miserable walls I sought for shelter. I groped along them, guiding myself by my hands, and my search was not in vain. I stumbled against a doorstep; the door was open. I passed through, and at least I had a roof over my head. Such a shrudder as I never remember to have suffered before shook my limbs and body as I crossed the threshold of this chamber of refuge, but I heeded it not.

I am an experienced traveler, and I know how to keep dry through all weather my matches, my tiny lantern, and my tobacco. I lighted my lamp and gazed at my surroundings. Soon I decided that I was in a cottage that must have adjoined a larger house, and that the larger house had been burned down, while the cottage had escaped; there was no pane of glass in its windows, the door was off its hinges, and the floor was covered with the twigs and dead leaves that the winds had strewn upon its surface.

Happily there was a fireplace in which I was able to make a blaze, using for the purpose broken bits of wood, and thus I slowly dried my damp clothing, while I refreshed myself with some sandwiches which I had brought for a possible emergency. The tempest without roared wilder, but the warmth stole over me, overpowered with fatigue, and at last I dropped into an uneasy sleep.

My slumbers were disturbed by the most vivid dream that I have in all my life experienced. I heard a distant clock strike three, and I felt myself oppressed by a heavy sense of suffocation. I saw the door of the room in wehich I lay open noiselessly, inch by inch, and then as I watched there appeared in my vision the face of a man.

It was a face that will live with me till the day I die, with its black, piercing eyes, its thin features, and a mouth closely shut as if to retain its secrets. From the lips of the apparition issued a laugh, mocking, derisive, triumphant; then it turned away, and the sound of the key revolving in the lock was plainly audible.

Audible, too, were the footsteps of my visitor as he retreated; they were those of one who trod heavily, and who limped. I can swear that he limped. The sense of suffocation overcame me more and more, and now I perceived that the room was filling with smoke, which poured in through every open chink in flooring, door and window.

A flash of flame, and the full horror of my state burst upon me. I was about to be burned alive?

In my agony of fear I rushed to the door! It was locked; it resisted all my efforts! My enemy had doomed me to destruction in this horrible manner with a cruelty too coldblooded for a fiend!

Now I understood the meaning of his laugh. I was to be swept from his path, and he knew that he had achieved his murderous purpose.

I awoke trembling. I struck a light and consulted my watch. I felt no wonder when I found that it was a few minutes after three o'clock in the morning. I remembered that I actually gazed around in nervous alarm, lest the smoke and flames should be present. This was a chimera; still, so painfully had my dream impressed me that I spent the hours that had to elapse before the day broke in continual apprehension of approaching disaster. But nothing happened; the storm abated, and then ceased, and with the first glimmer of light I joyfully quitted the cottage, expressing the earnest wish that I might see it never again.

It was not long before I met with a farm hand going to his early work, and by him I was conducted to the house of his employer, a jolly farmer, who acted toward me as the best of good Samaritans. He fed me, and he clothed me; he drove me in his dogcart to Lanfair, explaining that he was one of Mr. John Lanfair's tenants, but one thing neither he nor his employe would do—they would neither of them allow me to speak of the habitation in which I had spent the previous night. Each uttered the same single exclamation when I sought to tell my story: "You must have stopped at Deadlake Farm!" and with that they closed the subject in a peremptory fashion. Well, Mr. John Lanfair should resolve the mystery.

It was afternoon. My host and I were sitting in his library, with the sun beginning to sink toward the west, and radiating its golden lights, when with the following words my companion narrated the story of Deadlake Farm:

"Until some two years ago, Deadlake Farm was occupied by a young farmer named Blythe, who was married to a charming wife, and who only needed children to complete his happiness. No man in the neighborhood was more liked and respected, and no woman was more admired. Indeed, I doubt if I ever set eyes on so perfect a type of rustic beauty as Mrs. Blythe. Troubles never came near to the fortunate couple, who would have been the subject of envy had they been less amiable, but their neighbors sincerely rejoiced in their prosperity. How often have I heard the remark pass round that Blythe's presence at any social gathering made the whole scene look bright.

"Then, without the least warning, the thunderbolt fell. Mrs. Blythe left her home with a companion—so much she declared in a letter—but of that companion's identity the husband had not even a suspicion.

"Poor Blythe's distress was frightful to witness, and for a time I feared that his mental powers would altogether give away; but this did not occur, and he settled down into a state of sullen, savage gloom. Then he also quitted Deadlake, bent, as it was commonly believed, upon finding his wife, and avenging himself upon the man who had done him such infamous wrong.

"He was absent for some weeks, and on his return he was resolutely silent about his proceedings. We did not know then, we do not know at this moment, whether he met with the guilty pair. It is all a matter of conjecture. But Blythe now settled himself at Deadlake, and there he resided in absolute solitude; he would not allow even a servant to sleep in the house, and he avoided all intercourse with his neighbors with scrupulous care. It is proboble that since he came back from his quest, successful or otherwise, no human being but himself ever crossed the threshold of Deadlake farmhouse. And so matters went on till on the night of the twenty-third of December last year the farm was burned down, and reduced to the total ruin which you have seen."

I started. "Why, then," I said, "last night was the first anniversary of the fire.

"Certainly," said my host.

"And what became of Mr. Blythe?"

"I cannot tell you," said Mr. Lanfair, gravely; "his fate is wrapped up in profound obscurity." "But there is no theory on such a question?"

"You have observed for yourself that people shrink from speaking of the subject. They regard it as unlucky——"

"But in spite of their superstition they must entertain some opinion," I said.

"I imagine," said my host, "that if you could gain possession of their inmost thoughts you would find that most of them are convinced that Blythe, quite overcome by misery, resolved to destroy the house in which he had once been so happy, and that the fire was his own work."

"And he himself perished in the flames?" I exclaimed.

"Yes; but I hold it more likely myself that Blythe made up his mind to leave the neighborhood secretly, and without allowing his future destination to be suspected. As to the fire, it may have been intentional or accidental."

"There is another possibility," I said; "the house may have been fired by an enemy, who desired Blythe's destruction."

My host shrugged his broad shoulders.

"Nothing is known; your imagination may run riot as it pleases."

"Suppose," I continued, with the memory of my dream recurring to me with extraordinary vividness, "the man who stole Mr. Blythe's wife to be living in fear of the husband's vengeance. Suppose him to come in the dead of night to inclose his victim in a locked chamber from which there was no escape, and then to kindle the fatal flames!"

Mr. Lanfair, for a second time, shrugged his shoulders, and then, as true as there is a Heaven above us, there struck upon my ears the sounds of footsteps advancing, with the exact, the unmistakable limp that had beat upon my ears during the preceding night.

Slowly the door of the library opened, and there in the full flood of the sunshine was the very face which had haunted me in the storm and darkness. There were the piercing eyes, the thin features, and the secret mouth; I almost uttered a scream in my amazement. I just managed to control myself.

"Who is it?" I asked, but my host did not notice my feverish agitation.

"My secretary," he answered; "my confidential secretary."

And that secretary has been in Mr. Lanfair's employment for years, and is esteemed one of the best of men. Now, should I tell my host of my strange dream?

Such was the question my friend put to me—a question I have not been able to answer.—New York Weekly.

QUAINT AND CURIOUS.

The number of timber sleepers on the railways of the world is calculated to be about 1,494,000,000, and their value is estimated at about $900,000,000.

The making of shoes for dogs has now developed into quite a big industry and is especially flourishing in Labrador. The dogs attached to sledges travel at a great speed over the rough ice and some protection for the feet is necessary. The shoes are made of sealskin.

A bald eagle weighing 65 pounds and measuring eight feet from tip to tip was turned loose in the streets of Hutchinson, Kan., recently by the Hutchinson lodge of Eagles. A metal band was placed around the bird's leg bearing the inscription, "I am a member of Hutchinson's aerie of Eagles."

The Scientific American tells of another remarkable feat in house moving. A brick house at Sharpsburcg, Penn., was moved to Alleghany, a distance of four miles. Most of this was by water, the house being loaded onto a huge coal barge and floated down the river. It is probable that as in most such cases, it cost far more to move the house than to have rebuilt it new.

The builders are at work on a stone viaduct at Plauen, Saxony, over the River Syra, which contains the longest masonry arch in the world, its length being 295 feet 6 inches, measured horizontally from base to base. The Luxembourg bridge across the valley of Petruffe which was completed a few months ago, has a span of 277 feet. The next longest masonry arch is in the United States, near Washington, and is known as the Cabin John Bridge. Its length of span is 220 feet.

Paderewski, the famous pianist, says that his fingers are as precious to him as life, for he could never play if he lost any of them. He takes insurance from time to time to cover special risks, as when he is going on a long journey by land or sea, but apart from these his two hands are regularly insured from year to year. He pays $4000 annually in this way, with the result that if anything went wrong with one of his precious hands at any time so that he could no longer earn an income by his playing, he would be paid $50,000 cash.

An English paper tells how on one occasion Joseph Chamberlain was invited to Liverpool to make a speech. It was to be a great celebration. The mayor, who was to preside at the meeting, had arranged a fine dinner for the guest of honor. A distinguished assembly surrounded the table, and at the right of the host sat Mr. Chamberlain. For a couple of hours the company chatted over their food, and finally, the coffee was served. It was at this juncture that the mayor leaned over and whispered to Mr. Chamberlain: "Your excellency, shall we let the crowd enjoy itself a while longer; or had we better have your speech?"

"John, you'd better take your umbrella," said the editor's wife.

"'Tisn't going to rain, mother," replied the editor's son.

"Your father says it looks like it."

"Yes, mother, but you must remember that father said right up into November that everything indicated that the country was very close politically."—Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR APRIL 9.

Subject: The Raising of Lazarus, John xi., 32-45—Golden Text, John xi., 25—Memory Verses, 33-36—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

I. The meeting of Jesus and Mary (v. 32). 32. "When Mary was come." Martha first heard that Jesus was coming, and, without notifying Mary, she went to meet Jesus just outside the village. She greeted Him with those words of sorrowful despair—"Lord, if Thou hadst been here my brother had not died." But even then there was a dawn of hope in her heart, from her experience of the power of Jesus. Jesus replied with the assurance that He was "the resurrection and the life," and prepared her for the great work He was about to do. "If Thou hadst been here." These words express the very essence of soul torture at such times. In our affliction we continually echo the if of these sisters, saying to ourselves, if we had not done this, or if we had not done that, or if it had not been for our blunder, or that of our friends, or that of our physician, our beloved would not have died. But read verse 4 of this chapter.

II. Christ's compassion (vs. 33-37). 33. "Groaned in the spirit." This is a strange term and is better rendered by the margin of the Revised Version—"was moved with indignation in the spirit." Jesus was indignant at the hypocritical and sentimental lamentations of His enemies, the Jews, mingling with the heartfelt sorrow of His loving friend Mary. These self-righteous Jews, now weeping and groaning in professional sorrow with Mary were men who would soon be plotting to kill, not only Jesus, but the restored Lazarus (compare chap. 12:10). "Was troubled." "Troubled Himself."—Marg., R. V. Probably the meaning is that He allowed His deep emotion to become evident to bystanders. 34. "Where—laid him." A question addressed to and answered by the sisters. 35. "Jesus wept." Here the blessed Jesus shows Himself to be truly man; and a man, too, who, notwithstanding His amazing dignity and excellence, did not feel it beneath Him to sympathize with the distressed and to weep with those who wept. After this example of our Lord shall we say that it is weakness, folly and sin to weep for the loss of relatives? 36. "How He loved him." A spontaneous testimony from those Jews of the tenderness of the Son of God.

37. "Could not this man." The miracle of the blind man was referred to because it was of recent occurrence, and in the immediate neighborhood, while the two previous miracles of raising the dead (Luke 7:11-17; 8:41-56) were performed in distant Galilee, about one year and a half before. Several leading commentators think that these Jews were unbelieving and now refer to the healing of the blind man in a deriding manner, suggesting that if He could have done that, then He could have kept Lazarus alive, and real love would have prompted Him to do it if He had power.

III. Words of comfort (vs. 38-40). 38. "Again groaning." Because of the unbelief of the Jews. We never find Him in as much grief over His own sufferings as over the sins of men. "Cometh to the grave." Lazarus was, as became his station, not laid in a cemetery, but in his own private tomb in a cave.

39. "Take ye away the stone." That which could be done by human hand she orders to be done. He would have the bystanders see that Lazarus was actually dead. "He sinketh." Seeming to forget what Jesus had said to her when she met Him, Martha now thinks only of the condition of her brother's body and objects. The idea of an immediate resurrection does not seem to have occurred to her.

40. "If thou wouldst believe." So we see that if these sisters had not possessed hearts of faith, a willingness to believe and obey Christ, this miracle could not have taken place. If faith holds Him as the resurrection and the life, then why doubt when He is near? "Glory of God." Such a revelation of God's power as shall disclose His glory.

IV. Lazarus raised to life (vs. 41-45). 41. "Took away the stone." Martha's faith must have rallied and she gave way to Jesus' request. They had accomplished all in their power when the stone was removed. Jesus now began His part. "Lifted up His eyes." An outward expression of the elevation of His mind and to show them who stood by from whence He derived His power. He lifted up His eyes as looking beyond the grave and overlooking the difficulties that arose thence.

42. "Thou hast sent Me." Not to destroy men's lives, but to save them. Moses, to show that God sent him, made the earth open and swallow men up (Num. 16:29, 30), for the law was a dispensation of terror; but Christ proves His mission by raising to life one that was dead. 43. "Loud voice." He did not whisper nor mutter as did the magicians. It was the type of that voice like the sound of many waters (Rev. 1:15), at which all who are in their graves shall come forth (John 5:28; 1 Thess. 4:16). He that wept as a man now spoke as a God. "Lazarus." He calls him by name as we call those by their names whom we would wake out of sleep. This intimates that the same individual person that died shall rise again at the last day. 44. "Bound hand and foot." Probably each limb was separately bound; as was the Egyptian custom. "Loose him." He was a healthy, strong man and no longer needed the bandages and winding sheet. 45. "Many believed." The miracle was convincing.

The track building forces will then at once come to this city and lay tracks into the plant of the United States Cast Iron Pipe Compan and into the Bessemer rolling mill, and will enter the Robertstown furnace district over the tracks of the Frisco. Quiet prevails throughout the republic.

TROUBLE IN WARSAW

Four more killed by the Soldiers—Forty Wounded—Two of Them Women.

POLICE FIRED ON THE MOB.

Editors Invited to Castle by Gov. Gen. Maximovitch to Discuss the Censor—Other Matters.

Warsaw—A serious conflict occurred at 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening in Dzika street, where a Jewish socialist society, known as the Bund, had organized a demonstration. The troops, which came to disperse the gathering, fired into the crowd, killing four persons and wounding forty others.

Other disturbances are reported to have occurred. The streets had been patrolled throughout the day, the authorities having anticipated trouble.

Conditions Bad.

Conditions here are causing much uneasiness and nervousness. Hand-printed proclamations have been found in the streets warning the public against walking near government buildings and other places, as bombs would be thrown in those quarters. Several parents whose children are attending school in defiance of the school strike have been warned by letter to withdraw their children, as the school buildings would be blown up.

Representatives of the party of violence, it is not quite clear whether they are revolutionaries or socialists, are visiting private persons and levying contributions for "ammunition." They produce lists of names with the amounts to be collected from each and require the contributor to sign his name opposite these assessments which range from $2.50 to $50.

When Governor General Maximovitch arrived here ten days ago to assume his official duties he ordered that the Cossack detachment awaiting him at the station be retired, saying he did not want an escort. Driving through the city Sunday, however, the governor general's carriage was surrounded by twenty Cossacks.

Editors at Castle.

The editors of the Polish newspapers here were summoned to the castle Saturday. Governor General Maximovitch received them separately in the most friendly manner and talked with them on various subjects freely, especially on the question of censorship. He invited them to come to him in case of any difficulty.

The trouble in Dzika street began when, under the pretext of holding a memorial meeting for a late Jewish socialist leader, a crowd of over one thousand, mostly Jews, carrying red flags, marched into Dzika street and was met by a mixed police and military patrol of twenty men. The police declare the socialists fired revolvers at them, the leaders inciting the mob to attack the patrol, which thereupon fired several volleys into the crowd. Four men were killed and forty wounded. The crowd removed all but nine of the wounded, two of whom were women. These were taken to the hospital and it is expected that two or more of them will die. The dead and wounded were all Jews. The police made many arrests.

Storm in Colorado.

Denver, Colo.—The storm which has raged in Colorado and a portion of New Mexico for thirty-six hours subsided Sunday afternoon. For the first time this winter the Santa road found it necessary to use snow plows between Pueblo and Colorado Springs. In Pueblo two inches of moisture fell during the storm, this being a record, according to the weather officials. East of Pueblo, about seven miles, a bridge and a strip of track on the Missouri Pacific was washed out, and north of that city the Rio Grande experienced some damage by washouts. Between Clyde and Fair View the snow is five feet deep, and snow plows are endeavoring to remove it.

Only two men were killed in the destruction of the buildings of the Bankers' National Mine, near Ouray, by a slide. Seven men were injured, none seriously.

Double Tragedy.

Pittsburg, Pa.—John C. Walton, after five minutes' conversation with his wife, killed her by cutting her throat with a razor, and then after cutting his own throat, walked to the office of a physician three hundred yards distant and expired, just as police officers were about to place him under arrest.

There were no witnesses to the crime.

Domestic infelicity was the cause of the tragedy. The couple were married about ten years ago, and had four children.

Defended His Wife.

Cleveland, O.—Because of an alleged insult to his wife while he was temporarily absent from her side, William Hill shot and instantly killed Ralph M. Lewis, a painter. He also shot, and it is believed fatally wounded, James Huff, a shoe shiner.

According to the police report, Huff and Lewis had made slighting remarks to Mrs. Hill while she was in a restaurant. When her husband returned the couple went to take a street car home. Huff and Lewis were also going to take the same car, when Hill, it is alleged, pulled a pistol from his pocket and immediately fired upon the two men.

Hill walked to the police station to tell what had happened and was placed under arrest.

Dared Girl to Stab and She Stabbed.

Lancaster, Pa.—Ralph W. Kline, aged 26 years, an artist, was fatally stabbed Sunday afternoon by Jennie Good, aged 18 years. Kline and Miss Good were members of a party who were fishing near Long Park. Kline and the girl had a quarrel, during which Miss Good threatened to cut out his heart. Thinking that she would not execute her threat, Kline threw out his chest and told her to stab. She did, plunging a knife into his breast near the heart. He is at a hospital unconscious. The girl fled and has not been arrested.

Precautions Taken.

Mexico City, Mexico.—Precautions have been taken by the government and the large banks to prevent a sharp rise in exchange as the result of the speculative movement believed to have been planned to take place just as the new monetary system goes into effect. That something of the sort would be attempted was foreseen some months ago.

It is said that there has been extensive buying of exchange at the present low rate in the hope of a sharp advance. One of the largest banks has refused to sell exchange to brokers and private bankers, and has merely met the needs of commercial houses. It is the purpose of the government to make the transition to the new system as early as possible.

Governor Wilson Very Ill.

Chinese on Strike.

Johannesburg.—There was a serious disturbance near Krugersdorf on Saturday arising out of a strike of Chinese miners. The police were called upon to restore order and in the conflict which ensued several of the police and many Chinamen were injured. Many arrests were made.

Can Not Hold Congress.

Calcutta.—The assistant minister of the interior has forbidden the assemblage of a congress to deal with the cholera epidemic, because according to official information, the promoters of the congress intended to give it the form of a demonstration against the government.

Station Master Robbed.

Tiflis.—As a station master at Kuatis was driving to the local treasury, accompanied by an armed escort, he was attacked by four armed men, who overpowered the escort and robbed the station master of $3,000.

Decaturs Want Depot.

The delegation will petition the commission to order the railroads to build the depot.

EMPEROR AT TANGIERS

Has a Busy Day and Makes a Flying Visit to Gibraltar Also.

FEARED AN ANARCHIST PLOT.

Every Precaution Was Taken in Morocco—Emperor Remained Two Hours.

Gibraltar—The steamer Hamburg, with Emperor William on board, arrived at her moorings here at 6 p. m. As she entered the harbor the British Mediterranean fleet hoisted the ensign, the blue jackets manned the ship and the war vessel fired a royal salute. This was followed by a salute from the batteries. The fleet and the land stations were dressed with bunting in honor of the imperial visitor. The governor, Field Marshal Sir George Stuart White and his staff, immediately went on board the Hamburg and welcomed his majesty.

Owing to the lateness of his arrival here Emperor William decided to omit the drive through the town which had been arranged for. At 8 o'clock attired in a British field marshal's uniform, the Emperor landed and was received by Major Agnew and the German consul. He inspected the guards of honor, the Yorkshire infantry, and the Munster fusileers, which were drawn up at the convent, the official residence of the commander-in-chief where Governor White gave a dinner party to present guests in honor of the Emperor with a garden party, and reception afterwards. Meanwhile the German consul gave a dinner to a lareg party from the Hamburg.

Collides With British Warship.

Gibraltar.—The German cruiser Prinz Friedrich Karl, escorting the Hamburg American liner Hamburg with Emperor William on board, collided with the British battleship Prince George in going alongside the new Mole here. The damage was slight.

Flying Visit to Tangier.

Tangier—Emperor William, of Germany, paid a flying visit to Tangier, remaining barely two hours on shore. The elaborate programme for his reception and his entertainment was much changed, the Emperor confining himself to a visit to the German legation, where he received deputations of Germans in Morocco. The changed plans caused much comment and disappointment. The Emperor had been expected to land about 8 o'clock, but this was detained about three hours.

Meanwhile Count Tatternbach-Ashold, former German minister to Morocco, returned to Hamburg before the Emperor landed. It was officially explained that the reason for this procedure was the roughness of the sea, but after the departure of the Hamburg it was stated on good authority that Emperor William, having heard that there was a possibility of an anti-French demonstration on the occasion of his visit, desired to avoid such an incident.

Every Precaution Was Taken.

Another report which, however, has not received official confirmation, but is generally accepted, states that the German legation was informed that an anarchist plot had been discovered, and advised that the Emperor be dissuaded from landing. Count Tattenbach-Ashold visited the German legation and interviewed the Moorish authorities, and afterwards notified his majesty that every precaution had been taken, but advised that the programme be confined to a visit to the legation.

Notwithstanding the shortness of his majesty's stay in Tangier, the occasion will certainly be marked as one of the most brilliant and picturesque in the history of this pretty seaport. The Moors exhibited unwonted enthusiasm, and no untoward incident occurred. His majesty appeared to thoroughly enjoy his visit.

William Had an Object.

London, England.—According to some special dispatches from Tangier, Emperor William, in the course of his speech at the German legation, said:

"There is no prepondering influence in Morocco. Germany must enjoy the same rights of other powers. We guarantee that the sovereignty of Morocco shall be maintained."

This rather defiant version is probably a too free translation of the Emperor's words, but it serves as a peg upon which London newspapers hang further querulous editorial observations and criticisms as to the meaning of the visit.

The Times' Tangier correspondent says:

"It is impossible to deny that the Emperor's visit, which the world wishes to consider as that of an imperial tourist, has been an immense political demonstration. Nobody who saw Tangier, today garlanded with flowers and be-flagged until the very houses were scarcely distinguishable, could doubt that such expenditure and trouble meant more than merely a courteous welcome."

Nineteen Hanged With Same Rope.

Fort Worth, Tex.—B. H. Young, colored, was hanged at Waxahatchie Friday for the murder of Albertis Moore. One hundred and fifty persons were present in the stockade when the hanging occurred, and 250 outside. Young is the nineteenth man hanged with the rope which was especially made for Former Sheriff Stewart, of Johnson county, for the execution of John B. Shaw in 1886.

Remains Laid to Rest.

Lexington, Va.—The remains of Miss Mildred Lee, youngest daughter of Gen. Robert E. Lee, were Friday placed in a crypt of the Lee mausoleum at Washington and Lee university. The other members of the family buried there are her father, mother and one sister, Miss Agnes Lee. Funeral services were held in R. E. Hill Episcopal church at 11 o'clock, conducted by the rector, Dr. Robert J. McBride. Eight students of Washington and Lee university acted as pallbearers. The remains were escorted from the church to the mausoleum on the university campus by the corps of Virginia Military institute cadets and a large concourse of sympathizing relatives and friends. The floral tributes for Confederate organizations of various sections of the south were numerous and elaborate.

Three Killed in a Fray.

Collinsville, Ill.—In a three-cornered shooting affray here Mrs. John Berta and Barney Vosall were killed and John Berta, husband of the woman, was slightly wounded. Berta was released from custody on the coroner's jury verdict of justifiable homicide. Berta owns a saloon, and Mrs. Berta was in the place when Vosall entered and began a quarrel with her. Vosall drew a revolver and began shooting at her. She also seized a revolver and returned the fire. Just as Mrs. Berta fell dead with a bullet through her brain Berta rushed in, attracted by the shooting, and was slightly wounded by a bullet from Vosall. Berta shot Vosall dead.

To Test Validity of Bonds.

Topeka, Kan.—The validity of the Standard Oil refinery bonds will be tested. This was decided at a conference in which Governor Hoch, Treasurer Kelly, Warden Jewett, Attorney General Colman and Assistant State Auditor Nation participated. This was the day set by Treasurer Kelly and Warden Jewett to open the bids for the $210,000 worth of bonds. There were eight bids from bankers and bond brokers in various parts of the country, including New York, Boston, Topeka and Wichita. Seven of the bidders wanted the entire issue.

Killed by Old Shotgun.

Memphis, Tenn.—Mrs. Nellie Burris, wife of Robert Burriss, a well-known farmer, has been instantly killed by the accidental explosion of a shotgun while crossing a field in the suburbs of Eureka Springs, Ark.

A small child that was accompanying her mother dragged the shotgun back to the house and reported that her parent had fallen asleep. Search was made, which resulted in the finding of Mrs. Burris' body.

Fire in New Orleans.

New Orleans, La.—A fierce fire in the building at 124 Chartres street, occupied by Kahn, Brunner & Co., hats and millinery, threatened the big Godchaux building on Canal street Thursday. Repeated alarms brought out the full department, however, and checked the spread of the blaze. The Kahn, Brunner & Co. building was badly damaged and the stock destroyed.

Five Thousand Steers Sold.

Kansas City, Mo.—Five thousand head of half-bred Herford and Mexican steers, two and three years old, were sold by John Pinnell, agent of the T. O. (Riverside) ranch, state of Chihuahua, Mexico, to the Empire State Cattle Company, William H. Sheehan and J. D. Carr, of South Dakota, at $14 per head, one of the largest sales of the year. The cattle will be shipped to Evarts, S. D.

Thousands Held as Prisoners.

Berlin.—Dr. Steuben, director of the colonial office, replying to a question in the Reichstag today, said that 4,903 men, women and children were so far prisoners in concentration camps in German southwest Africa. The government, he added, had no intention as reported of disarming the Ovambos, who had attacked and destroyed Portuguese column.

Propose to Build New Road.

Tapma, Fla.—R. C. Caples and William F. McCombs, Jr., of New York, arrived here tonight to secure terminal facilities for the railroad which they and their associates, New York capitalists, propose building from Tampa to Tallahassee. They will apply for a charter for the proposed road next week.

Burglars Enter Store.

Anniston, Ala.—The store of E. B. Davis at Rock Springs was entered by burglars and the safe blown open, but little of value was secured beyond some merchandise.

May Cause Another Rate War.

Liverpool, Eng.—There are rumors of fresh friction between the Cunard and the other steamship lines tending to lead to another rate war.

Three Killed.

Huntington, W. Va.—On Sandstone creek, in Mingo county, a boiler in a small saw mill owned by Walter Farrell blew up, killing three men and injuring two others.

Well, I am here again, spring has slipped in on us to our great delight; it makes everything and everybody look gay after the icy cold wave has passed away.

Our Sabbath school froze to death this winter, I am sorry to say, but praise the Lord it is waking up, we reorganized Sunday, and under the skillful management of our good superintendent, Bro. Grooms, we have a flourishing Sunday school. We invite all to come out and help carry on the good work. We had a fine sermon on the fourth Sunday, preached by our good pastor Bro. Jones. He preached a good sermon; we need more just such preachers. While we love and appreciate our new preacher, Bro. Jones, we are made sad to miss the dear familiar face of our old pastor, Bro. Deason, who served us so long and faithful. We hope to have him visit us soon.

I must not forget to mention our good old Bro. Patrick, who is so attentive to the church yard, grave yard, and even the church he keeps in perfect order. We could not well get along without him.

We are sorry to state the illness of Mrs. J. D. Deason, she has been quite sick for some time; hope she will soon be well again.

A good many of our people attended the show at Maplesville this week.

Mr. Leonard Stowers of Arkansas has returned to his father's home here to stay this year.

Messrs. Monroe Hayes and Ernest Williams of Mulberry visited this place Sunday.

Mrs. Lucy Hayes of this place has been quite sick for some time, hope she will soon recover. Well, I bid you all adieu. Success to the dear old Banner. VIOLA.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, D. C., March 27, 1905

If this Administration were really in dead earnest about regulating railroad rates and wanting to place the power of fixing rates in the hands of the Interstate commerce commission, why in the name of common sense did he refuse to reappoint the only practical railroad man who has ever been on the commission, the Hon. J. D. Yoemans, in order to find a place for former Senator Cockrell, who knows about as much about railroad rates as I do about navigating a ship. There is not a man on the commission who would know a railroad rate if he met it in the road, and it is rather ticklish business, this thing of placing in the hands of ignorant men the only thing of value to a railroad—its rate of transportation. No matter how honest they might be, they could do incalculable harm, through ignorance, to the millions of dollars of vested rights of the roads. Both parties have got this thing of railroad rates mixed up with railroad rebates. It is not the rates that hurt the shippers of this country so much as it is the rebates given to some of them. Although Chairman Knapp, of the Interstate commerce commission has said that "the payment of rebates is now as rare as forgery or highway robbery." No matter how rare it is, that is the thing to stop, as Chairman Knapp has also said that the existing law is ample to correct any other troubles complained of if the President would enforce it. But that gives employment to only a few men.

The Esch Townsend bill would furnish places for an army of heelers, and it may be that the President's enthusiasm for railroad rate legislation is part of a scheme to further intrench the Republican machine in the national capital. By increasing the duties of the Interstate commerce commission, as they would be by the Esch-Townsend bill, it would necessitate the employment of an army of clerks and statisticians at a cost of millions a year. Does this Administration want to get them in while the Republicans are in power, so it can add them to the machine? Is that the cause of Roosevelt's strenuosity? The President's ardor for this legislation and his new toy that he stole from the Democratic leaders has cooled down perceptibly, however, since he has ascertaine that railway employees, wage earners who manufacture railway supplies, small holders of railway securities and members of labor unions are organizing to protest against this Esch Townsend bill. They are doing so because they believe it will interfere with the earnings of the railroads on whose prosperity their wage earning capacity depends, but I would do so because I believe it is a miserable makeshift and not worth the paper it is printed on. If they were going to pass any such legislation the Hearst bill was the only bill before congress that was worthy of consideration.

Yes. 100,000 times each day. Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

One frequent cause of bad blood is a sluggish liver. This produces constipation. Poisonous substances are then absorbed into the blood, instead of being removed from the body daily as nature intended. Keep the bowels open with Ayer's Pills, liver pills. All vegetable.

A Notable Convention.

The time draws near for the annual convention of the Alabama Sunday School Association. It is to be held in Birmingham, April 25-27. A splendid program has been prepared and everything indicates that the convention will be one of the best ever held. The Sunday school workers in Birmingham are making arrangements for the entertainment of the delegates. A new feature for the convenience of the delegates will be the lunch served at the church at noon each day. In this way the delegates will not have to loose time going to and from their homes for dinner. The names of delegates should be sent to Mr. R. F. Lewis, chairman of the Reception Committee.

In addition to our outside help, we expect to have the leading Sunday school workers of Alabama discuss the latest and most improved modern Sunday school method.

The railroads have granted reduced rates to delegates attending the convention.

A Letter Forty-one Years in Reaching Father

Mr. John P. Shaw, of Goodwater, Ala., the aged father of our townsman, Capt. J. M. Shaw, forwarded his son a few days ago the following correspondence, which will be read with interest, especially by old Confederate soldiers. Corporal Shaw, as the letters will disclose, was severely wounded at the battle of Gettysburg and while on the battlefield wrote home to his father. His letter has been forty-one years in reaching its destination, having been received by the father at Goodwater a few days ago, together with a letter from Mr. Jno. M. Finn, of Chester county, Pa., explaining how he came in possession of the son's letter and the cause of its delay. The letter of Mr. Finn to the father and the long delayed letter from the son, both follow:

Coatsville, Pa, Sept. 21, 1904

Jno P. Shaw, Goodwater, Ala.—Dear Sir: Immediately after the battle of Gettysburg, in the Civil war, I visited the field and spent over a week among the sick and wounded and dying, and spent much of my time writing letters to their relatives and friends. Most of the letters I managed to forward, but the enclosed I did not get through, and it has been ever since among my papers, and in the hurry of life, I have neglected to mail it. My recollection of the young man, for whom I wrote it, was lying in the open without tent or cover on the edge of a woods, as were thousands of others. I was impressed with his sanguine temperament and loving thoughts of loved ones at home.

It is a late day to send the letter, but it occurred to me possibly some member of the family may be living whom it would interest, perhaps the young man himself may have recovered, reached his home and may be the recipient himself, to whom this may prove a curious reminiscence. Yours truly,

JOHN M. FINN.

Coatsville, Chester county, Pa.

Gettysburg, July 2, 1863

Dear Father—I am now lying wounded within the Federal lines, I was struck on the second of this month in the calf of the right leg with a grape shot. The physician tells me one bone is broken. I am, however, doing quite well and feel sure I will recover. Since I was taken prisoner I have received as kind treatment as circumstances would permit. Today I am to be moved to more comfortable quarters where I will have more attention. I am feeling quite cheerful In the hour of pain God is very precious to me. He is my support and if He should see well to take me from this world I will go trusting in Him. Since the battle I have not seen my brother and do not know what has become of him or the balance of the company. I have not heard what disposition is to be made of me, but hope that I will soon be exchanged, when I will return to you. Tell my dear mother to keep cheerful, my thoughts are constantly with her and you. God willing, the day is not distant when we shall meet to be no more parted by this wicked war. With a great deal of love, Your son,

JAMES M. SHAW.

The letter was written for Mr. Shaw by a young lady, Miss Lucinda Gelaton, who proved an administering angel to the sick and wounded soldiers of both armies. She gave Mr. Shaw a small Bible with her name in it, which he still possesses and treasures highly.

Capt. Shaw was a corporal in company G, 14th Alabama, which was in the hardest part of the fight at Gettysburg. A glance at his right leg bears out the truthfulness of the letter which was forty-one years in reaching the loved ones at home. His uncle, W. L. Shaw, of South Calera, also testifies to the truthfulness of same, as he was near his nephew when he was shot down. The loving message it contained for mother never came in time to cheer her in this life, but it was not written in vain, as it is comforting to the dutiful son that it was no fault of his that she did not receive it. Mr. Finn, as his letter shows, had but little thought, after these years, that it would be delivered to the father of the wounded boy he befriended, but Mr. John P. Shaw is still, at a ripe old age, living at Goodwater, Ala.

FARM AND GARDEN

DAIRY NOTES.

Fix up things for summer.

The best breed of dairy cows—the one that has the most intelligent care.

Good masters and common cows often succeed, but if reversed expect failure.

It is better for your sire and all concerned to have a stable and yard fitted expressly for him.

Do not let the dairy cows feed on the frost-bitten pastures. It injures both the cow and pasture.

If you have not already got it, build a detached milk house where you can keep your milk in water.

The other day when riding in a crowded street car the conductor frequently cried out, "Move up in front." It occurred to the writer that this is the great need in dairying. The reports of our more successful dairymen indicate that they are crowding us behind, and as there is always room at the front, let's move up a little in the dairy industry.

If you expect good cows take good care of the heifers. Give them feed that will properly nourish and develop them.

This is the accepted time to whitewash your barn on the inside, and close up all the draughts and crevices that let in the cold.

How to keep dirt out of milk is a long road to travel, but we know that all of it comes from either the milker's hands or the body of the cow.

Those cracks in the stable floor and under the doors cause your cows great suffering during the cold winter blast. Note the shrinkage in the milk pail, as well as in the creamery check.

The cold penetrating winds of the spring are disliked by and injurious to young calves. Provide a clean, dry, warm place for them. Feed them milk at a temperature of 90 to 100 degrees in proper quantities, and avoid the calf-scours that are usually prevalent during the early winter months.

DIVERSIFIED FARMING.

In these days of progressive agriculture we hear a great deal about diversified farming and probably no better example of what this phrase really means could be given than that contained in the account of the Maryville (Mo.) Street Fair, which offered a $10 prize to the Nodaway County agriculturist who should exhibit the largest number of farm products grown on his farm this season. W. R. Rosley, of Ravenwood, drove up with a wagonload of stuff and took the prize. His wagon contained a stalk of corn thirteen and a half feet high, white, red, yellow and speckled corn in ear, wheat rye, buckwheat, rape, timothy seed, oats, thirteen kinds of green beans and peas, three kinds of popcorn, two kinds of cucumbers, one red pig, a turkey, two chickens, two Guinea fowls, hedge balls, strawberry vines, one cabbage weighing fifteen pounds, celery, Summer and Winter lettuce, peanuts, two kinds of beets, horse-radish, asparagus, bluestem grass, slough grass, clover hay, prairie hay, carrots, green mustard, six kinds of pickles, seven kinds of jelly, jam, cherries, three kinds of parsnips, three gourds, two kinds of sunflower seed, sweet corn, can of honey, castor bean, one sunflower, the flower of which measured forty-six inches in circumference, sugar cane, two kinds of millet in stalk, an oyster plant, four kinds of radishes, turnips, four kinds of Irish potatoes, two kinds of sweet potatoes, cabbage, cauliflower, two kinds of squash, green lettuce and onions.—Weekly Witness.

STOCK BREEDS.

The Durham stock to-day is known as shorthorns. There are several different strains—red, white, roan, etc., the result of holding certain families to a color line. Much of this is fancy, because prize animals are found from all strains. The old milking shorthorn of the East has nearly ceased to exist. The milking breeds have taken their place. In the West, however, are found many very good milking shorthorns, having been bred for several generations along milk conformation lines. They approach quite closely to a dual purpose animal. The great trouble lies in the fact that no one can safely predict just what the outcome will be. So the more thoughtful dairymen are keeping animals of known power of reproduction, having an assurance of raising young things that will be equal or sueprior to the original stock. In other words, from the milking type we are safe in expecting what we must have for profitable milk production.

The Alderney is not recognized today. She never had a herd book. Jerseys and Guernseys are the Channel Islands breeds. If you are to continue in the dairy business you do well to change. Get large Jerseys, and then do not breed them to calve before two and one-half to three years old, and you will soon have cows that will suit you.—(H. E. Cook in the Tribune Farmer.)

CANADIAN FARMERS PROTECTED.

The Ontario Minister of Agriculture submitted a bill, to the Dominion Parliament which declares that no one shall expose for sale any seed of cereals, grasses, clovers, or forage plants unless they are free from any seeds of the following weeds: Wild mustard or charlock, tumbling mustard, hare's ear mustard, ball mustard, field pennycress or stink weed, wild oats, bind weed, perennial sow thistle, ragweed, great ragweed, purple cockle, cow cockle, orange hawkweed, or paint brush and ergot or rye, unless the package containing such seed is marked plainly with the name and address of the seller, the kind of the seed and the names of the weed seed which may occur therein. The law will not apply to seed grown and sold by a farmer on his own premises. Any inspector or informant who inspects seed to be sold in violation of the law is permitted to forward samples to official analysts for examination. The penalty for infractions of the statute is to be five dollars fine per package for a first offence, and twenty-five dollars fine per package for subsequent offences.—Weekly Witness.

VITALITY OF SEEDS.

If a small proportion of the seeds grow there is good reason to conclude that the vitality of all has been impaired. Of course, by sowing such seeds thickly a good stand of plants may be obtained, but they will not be as vigorous and healthy as those from seeds having more vitality. Insects will injure them more than strong plants and the fungi will be more liable to attack them. When all of these things are considered, it will be found that the little saved by using old seeds of weakened vitality is worse than thrown away. A good crop is not produced by poor seed, no matter what the cultivation may be.

BEGIN WITH MANY.

Where circumstances permit it, we would advise the prospective poultry breeder to begin with a pen of fowls, rather than with a setting or two of eggs. He practically saves a year's tibe by so doing, and although it calls for a much larger investment on the start, if good birds are secured, it will pay in the end. Whatever you do, get the very best that your money will buy. Better buy two settings of eggs from good stock for ten dollars than a pen of inferior birds for the same amount.

How Russia Makes Madmen.

Madness is one of the spectres that grin athwart the dim twilight of the granite cells at the lonely prisoner. But sometimes madmen are set free. One such case was that of a suspect priest, named Peter Zolotnitsky. Having joined a non-conformist sect, he was sent to the monastery prison of Suzdal, two days before Christmas, 1865. Alexander II. was then Czar, and the tendencies of his government were, on the whole, humane.

But liberty of conscience has never been granted even by the most enlightened Emperor of Muscovy. Alexander II vanished from the scene, and his son ascended the throne as Alexander III. An amnesty was granted to criminals, new measures were adopted and new men appointed, but the lot of the priest Zolotnitsky was not alleviated. He was left in his stone cellar, cold, hungry, lonely, forgotten. In the fulness of time Alexander III was called to his last account, and Nicholas II donned the crowns of Muscovy, Kazan and all the Russias, a new amnesty was proclaimed. But for the priest Zolotnitsky and his fellow prisoners the short days and long nights lost nothing of their sameness. His world was still narrowed down to the limits of his cell. In time the compass of his mind shrank to fit proportion to his wretchedness, and he lost his reason together with his health. Contrary to custom, the madman was then released, on April 15, 1897, after having languished for over thirty-two years in his dark stone cage.—Dr. E. J. Dillon, in Harper's Magazine.

A Marriage That Isn't.

A certain Count and a certain young lady of thirteen, both French subjects, were married three times in 1902, or thought they were, but they now find themselves bachelor and spinster still. The first marriage took place at a church in London, the second before the Registrar at Dover, but these two, being only English marriages, do not avail. Then came a marriage by a French provincial Mayor, which the parties thought had at last safely tied the knot, especially as the bride's mother gave her consent. But it now turns out that the bride's legal guardian had not consented also, and the flaw has been pointed out by the bride's repentant mother, who declares that the bridegroom is not the nobleman, geographer, journalist, and various other respectable things he had represented himself to be. If two French people can come involuntarily untied in this fashion, after believing themselves to have been triply spliced, there is obviously more reason than ever for English people who are contemplating international marriages to make certain that all is legally correct.—London Pall Mall Gazette.

Trees transplanted at night are more likely to live than those transplanted in the daytime.

WOMAN'S WORLD

AIRY BLOUSE.

The lingerie blouse is the loved garment of the well dressed girl today. Memory fails when it comes to describing the various and intricate ways in which these blouses are are made. Some are just tucked, extremely fine, to yoke depth, with a mere little "val" frill at neck and sleeves, and these are not the least desirable, as price tags prove. Others have small round yokes made of alternate rows of fine insertion and outstanding frills of "val" lace, with deep tight cuffs in the same frilly style. Some have horizontal tucks alternating with insertion; some are all fine perpendicular tucks; a few have faintly yellow lace set in their snowy whiteness; many have hand embroidery of the most delicate sort, either scattered all over or in a front design; and most are strewn with exquisite, frosty medallions of lace.

The favorite sleeve appears to be a close lace or embroidered cuff to the elbow, with much fullness from that point to the shoulder. In some the cuff comes down over the hand in pointed mitten effect. On all there are straight, round collars of tucks of lace or embroidery, finished with a frill.

Last year's collarless neck seems to have no showing at all.

One is supposed to be warmly dressed underneath when these blouses are worn and to put on heavy wrappings when going out, for the flimsy things are worn now in the coldest of winter weather. The very finest of them are worn over a silk slip of pale color or white. When warm weather comes this slip may be left off and then one has just the nicest kind of a hot weather blouse. —Rochester, (N. Y.), Union-Advertiser.

THE HOUSE BEAUTIFUL.

Ruffled scrim curtains, with a bonne femme to match, are among the very newest of the new in the window-dressing world. These are made of soft, drapy scrim, with Cluny, antique, macrame, Rennaissance and other laces, that are both showy and graceful, as decorative motifs.

Austrian art furniture from decorators at present and wide vogue among fashionable folk is predicted for it when it becomes more widely known.

Until this season color tones of mauve were almost impossible to get in draperies of an attractive kind. The most unusual tones of this color in charming effects may now be had.

Cretonne will be more popular than ever this summer for furniture coverings, cushions and for drapery. The latest ones include very dainty stripes, Louis XV., Louis XVI., and l'art nouveau, with grounds in moire and pasper, with cafe au lait given special prominence as being very new.

An elaborately-colored cashmere shawl effect, the pattern accentuated by mercerized threads, is a novelty noted among the new summer drapery stuffs.

Quaint Austrian prints, quite unlike anything before offered for summer upholstering, are on view. These come in curtains, couch covers and table covers to match.

Bureau and table scarfs in broderie anglaise are the latest fancy in decorative household linen.

DURATION OF MOURNING PERIOD.

Women who are bereaved, whether wife, mother, daughter or sister, are always rather dubious as to exactly the duration of the mourning period. The acknowledged canons of mourning at present are as follows: For the widow, two years, crepe to be worn the first year and veiling the next six months and grays and purples until the completion of the second year. For the mother or daughter,, one year in crepe and six months is all that is generally observed, and for three months crepé is worn. First cousin, six weeks; no crept is worn, and but slight mourning for three weeks. Second cousins and other distant relatives, "complimentary" mourning may be worn three or four weeks.

A widow wears as long a veil as she desires, some reaching the hem of her skirts and the waist length in front, but this has, of course, been cut short after the first month, and a crepe-trimmed face veil is very often worn for three months, but in hot weather the face veil is a trifle more comfortable. The French women adopt veils for all periods of mourning, they evidently knowing the extreme fascinations for a veil as a background for the face. Veils vary for the different degrees of mourning, but Brussels net, with hem or fold of crepe, is most popular except for deepest mourning. For summer all white is adopted as a sign of deep mourning.—Newark Advertiser.

ROYAL SIAMESE WOMEN.

Advocates of dress reform will heartily approve of the costume which is worn by the Queen of Siam. It consists of a white blouse, black knickerbockers and stockings, and shoes with buckles.

"Siamese women," says The Graphic, "are described as graceful in movement and figure, and as fitting models for a sculptor. Their skin is olive colored, their cheekbones prominent, their eyes black and almond shaped.

"The Siamese are orthodox Buddhists, and are strict followers of their faith. Their religious fervor is shown by the large number of bonzes whom they maintain, and the number of pagodas and sanctuaries to be seen in their country. The rich, not content with giving handsome donations, build and endow temples, in which they intend their ashes to be placed in one line; while the poor give an idol to the temple. The deep religious sentiment of the Siamese is bound up with a feeling of reverence for their king, to whom they give the most exalted titles, such as 'Master of the World' and 'Lord of Our Lives.' King Chulalongkorn visited England in 1897. Previous to that he had sent his sons to be educated in England. Queen Sowaya Pongsi did not accompany her husband on that occasion, being intrusted with the government of the country in her husband's absence."—New York Tribune.

FADS IN NECKWEAR.

High tulle ruches are coming into fashion again, and many of them are made with long black velvet streamers.

The crepe and the silk gauze neckscarfs are another fashion fad of the moment. They show many exquisite color shadings, as well as dainty flower-scattered designs. The fashionable girl wears the crepe scarf in a variety of fascinating ways. Sometimes she uses it just as a man does his silk muffiler, and then she is sure to have it in some bright color tint. Then, again, she wears it as a necktie, and arranges it in a big, fluffy bow under her chin or in a graceful four-in-hand. The ends, of course, are very wide, and it is quite a fad to embroider upon one end her monogram in silken threads. This monogram to be strictly up to date must be worked inside a rim of gold or silver threads. It is not necessary to have the gold or silver outline a circle. It may be shaped like a fleur-de-lis or a heart, but the monogram must have a border; that is, so the girl of the moment thinks.—Woman's Home Companion.

NEW SUMMER MATERIAL.

Wise women are even now engaged upon their summer attire and that of their families.

It is sensible to get about it thus early. In the first place the choice of the summer goods is to be had at this time of the year. As a rule the loveliest colors and patterns are picked up as fast as they are shown. Many a woman returns to a store to buy only to find that the entire piece upon which she had at last decided has been sold.

As for style, a safe way is to consider the latest ideas from Paris and cast a reflective eye over what seemed best adapted to one's style and needs last summer. Add to this any particularly pleasing piquancy of the winter's modes and one is certain to hit upon something as becoming as it is out of the ordinary.

Not that one is dependent upon this method; the good stores show many new and pleasing dresses and suits in linen, lawn, organdie and other materials.

WOMEN AS AFTER-DINNER SPEAKERS.

Women are coming to the front rank of after-dinner speakers, and Chauncey Depew and the other celebrities in this line are advised to look after their laurels closely. A prominent women is quoted as saying that if the art of after-dinner speaking continues to be cultivated among women, it is likely that they will prove themselves as clever and eloquent as men who have made reputations in that way. I say they will do better, and for the reason that men usually speak too long. Among individuals who excel in after dinner speeches are Mrs. Philip Carpenter, president of New York State Federation of Clubs; Mrs. Decker, president of the G. F. W. C., who is a wonderfully magnetic and witty speaker; and Mrs. May Alden Ward and Mrs. Moore, the vice-presidents; Mrs. Denison, of New York, Mrs. Mabel Loomis Todd, Mrs. Donald MacLean and Mrs. Charles Warren Fairbanks, wife of the vice-president of the United States, are well up on the list, which contains many other names known to club women.

Artfully Alliterative.

Peter Piper had just picked the peck of pickled peppers. "Reminds me, somehow," he said, "of Pennypacker preparing to punish the perverse Pennsylvania papers, for printing pert and provoking pictures." Playfully pinching Penrose, he plucked a particularly promising perquisite from the political plum tree and proceeded to his promenade.—Chicago Tribune.

STATE HAPPENINGS

Of General and Local Interest as They Occur.

Third Set of Teeth at 105.

Huntsville, Ala.—One of the oldest men on the pension list of the United States government resides in Madison county. He is Jesse Edwards, 105 years old, who believes he is the oldest citizen in the state in point of continued residence. He has lived in the Hurricane valley of Madison county ninety years, having settled in that locality with his father when as far as they could see there was nothing but a wild canebrake. It is now a very populous farming section.

Mr. Edwards has never found it necessary to use false teeth and he says he is now cutting a third set of natural teeth. He does not wear spectacles because he can see a great deal better than an average man of middle age. He has been twice married and is the father of nineteen children, eleven of whom are living, the oldest being sixty years old and the youngest twenty, born when the father was 85 years of age. Mr. Edwards has served in two Indian wars as a United States soldier, the last being the Florida war, and for that he now draws a pension.

Babe Found in a Cistern.

Florence, Ala.—A horrible discovery was made at noon when the body of an infant was found floating in a cistern in East Florence. The cistern furnished water for three houses, the water being drawn up in a bucket. Mrs. Lute Olive, who lives in one of the houses, was drawing water at noon when she saw the body and notified the police. Sheriff O. B. Hill, accompanied by Drs. Boyd and Lindsay, went to East Florence and examined the body. The child had evidently been in the cistern several days and three families had been drinking the water.

An examination of the lungs showed that the child was born alive and an investigation was at once started to discover who its murderer was. Up to the present time no clue has been found.

Work of a Miscreant.

Ensley, Ala.—While the North Ensley car which left Birmingham at 8 o'clock Sunday night was speeding between Thrash station and City League Park station a large rock was thrown through the window, shattering fragments of glass on the heads of several of the passengers. No one was injured. The car was crowded and the incident created considerable excitement.

It is supposed that the rock was thrown by a negro youth with whom the conductor of the car had had some trouble over the payment of his fare early in the night.

Held for Postoffice Robbery.

Huntsville, Ala.—Lum and Tom Martin, charged with robbing the Kelly postoffice, were given a preliminary hearing before Commissioner Greenleaf Saturday afternoon and bound over to await the action of the federal grand jury. Both men easily made bonds in the sum of $1,000. There is practically no evidence against the defendants except that of the bloodhounds training them, and the question of whether a jury will convict a man on the evidence of a dog will be awaited with interest.

Want Facts About Depot Delay.

Montgomery, Ala.—J. S. B. Thompson, general agent of the Southern railway, has been ordered to appear before the Alabama railroad commission and show cause why the company has not taken any action in the building of the Mobile union passenger station, as ordered by the commission more than a year ago.

After Cotton Men.

Liverpool.—Warrants have been issued for the arrest of S. S. Stephens and A. Henderson, of the firm of Stephens & Henderson, cotton speculators, having offices in New York, Kentucky and Havre. It is believed Stephens is in America.

Centerville Man Loses a Leg.

Birmingham, Ala.—C. L. Logan, the young man who was injured in the Frisco freight yards Saturday night, had his right leg amputated.

Logan was standing on the steps of a car in the yards when another train passing on a parallel track struck his leg and crushed it. The car he was standing on had not sufficiently cleared the switch. The young man's leg was horribly mangled and he was carried to St. Vincent's hospital. An effort was made to save the limb, but amputation was found to be necessary.

Logan was employed as a flagman on the Frisco railway. He is 24 years of age and his home is at Centerville, Ala.

Lexington, Ky.—The Rev. James Cochrane, a student of Bible college of the Kentucky university in this city, dropped dead in the pulpit of the Stamping Ground Christian church, ten miles from Lexington, Sunday.

He had just read the text for his morning sermon, when he suddenly ceased speaking, placed his hand to his head and sank to the platform lifeless. Heart disease was the cause. He was 32 years of age, and married. His home was at Broadwell, Ky.

American Farms.

It is estimated that the total area for farming purposes in the United States is 841,000,000 acres—an area larger than England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, France, Germany, Austria, Spain, Japan and the Transvaal. There are 14,439,000 persons engaged in agricultural pursuits, while all other industries employ but 18,845,000.

Edward L. Doheny, of Los Angeles, Cal., owns the finest piano in the United States, and has just had installed in his home a $15,000 pipe organ.

Aged Literary Men.

The publication of Dr. Weir Mitchell's new novel, so closely following the author's 75th birthday, attracts attention to the fact that our American authors have been and are today a long-lived class. Dr. Holmes attained the age of 85. Whittier and Harriet Beecher Stowe died at 84; Bryant at 83; Emerson at 78; Irving at 76; Longfellow at 75. Of authors still living and with one or two exceptions actively at work Julia Ward Howe will be 86 in May; Edward Everett Hale is 83; Moncure Conway is 72; Mark Twain is 68, and William S. Howells will be 68 this March. Holmes and Whittier both did some of their best work after 75.

The Czar No Coward.

A lady who has seen a good deal of the home life of the czar tells the British Weekly that she does not believe that his failure to meet his people face to face was due to cowardice. At the time of the Servian murders it was rumored at the palace at St. Petersburg that one of the ministers had been so overwhelmed with terror that he ran away and hid himself in a dressing room. The czar spoke with contempt of the Servian's supposed timidity. "I can not understand," he said, "how any one who fills a public post could hide himself from fear of death. I should not go so far as the next room to escape death."

Smokes Cheap Cigars.

Levi P. Morton, ex-vice president banker, diplomatist and statesman smokes cigars on what he calls a rational plan. In order to keep his appreciation of thrift in good working order, he occasionally smokes a five center. One day last week the clerks in his bank became aware of a remarkable odor, obstinate and suffocating. When it was at its worst, a messenger boy explained the mystery on emerging from Mr. Morton's private room. "It's all right," he said to the cashier. "De boss is in dere smoking one o' dem rankos."

A Royal Saddle Room.

The royal saddle room at Sandringham is a veritable sporting museum. In addition to a magnificent assortment of curious saddles from all parts of the world, many of them being elaborate presentation saddles of great value, there are the gold and silver-mounted hoofs of favorite racers, more than fifty sets of richly ornamented harness and a valuable collection of sporting pictures. These include paintings of dogs and horses by Turner and Herring, the famous animal painters. Punch and Vanity Fair turf cartoons of his majesty (when Prince of Wales) hang on the walls.

The Kaiser's Impudence.

The German emperor during one of his forest excursions on the occasion of the visit of the czar of Russia, was about to light his cigar, but found he had forgotten the knife that he used to cut off the end. The czar was no better provided, so one of the forest keepers stepped forward and proffered his own. The emperor used it and then returned it, saying impressively: "Take back your knife. It is now an historic relic."

Fruit Statistics.

The annual fruit crop of the United States has a value of $132,000,000. The orchard fruits produced each year have a value of $84,000,000, small fruits $25,000,000, grapes $14,000,000, and citrus fruits, grown principally in California and Florida, $8,549,000.

OPERATION AVOIDED

EXPERIENCE OF MISS MERKLEY

She Was Told That an Operation Was Inevitable. How She Escaped It

When a physician tells a woman suffering with ovarian or womb trouble that an operation is necessary, the very thought of the knife and the operating table strikes terror to her heart, and our hospitals are full of women coming for ovarian or womb operations.

Miss Margret Merkley

There are cases where an operation is the only resource, but when one considers the great number of cases of ovarian and womb trouble cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after physicians have advised operations, no woman should submit to one without first trying the Vegetable Compound and writing Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice, which is free.

Miss Margret Merkley of 275 Third Street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Loss of strength, extreme nervousness shooting pains through the pelvic organs, bearing down pains and cramps compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor, after making an examination, said I had ovarian trouble and ulceration and advised an operation. To this I strongly objected and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The ulceration quickly healed, all the bad symptoms disappeared and I am once more strong, vigorous and well."

Ovarian and womb troubles are steadily on the increase among women. If the monthly periods are very painful, or too frequent and excessive—if you have pain or swelling low down in the left side, bearing down pains, leucorrhœa, don't neglect yourself: try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

GRIP GERMS MAGNIFIED 1000 TIMES

MIGHT AND WILL VS "GRIP"

Let us illustrate vividly the difference in meaning of the words might and will—the child might live; the child will live. Might implies doubt; will means certainty. Might live means might die; will live means will not die.

These two words aptly illustrate the difference between Johnson's Tonic and the horde of commercial remedies on the market, and that vast horde of inert professional remedies which only bear the sanction of the High Priests of medicine.

USE JOHNSON'S TONIC
in a bad case of Grip and you will live!
Use inert, or commercial products, and you might live.

Johnson's Tonic quickly drives out every trace and taint of Grip. It is not simply good, it is supremely good—not good as anything, but better than everything—a genuine life-saver. Those who believe in it are safe—all others are in danger and jeopardize their lives. Summed up, Johnson's Chill and Fever Tonic is the best Grip medicine on earth. This is the sober, serious, earnest truth.

AN UNUSUAL OFFER

by Upchurch Drug Co., of Clanton, and A. Horn, of Thorsby, who are allowing their patrons an opportunity of a free trial of the wonderful healing remedy, Paracamph, First Aid to the Injured. This remedy has become popular in a remarkably short length of time by its great success in curing the aches, pains and hurts of millions of people. Chilton people should know the value and merits of Paracamph, and to enable them to do so without risk or loss of money these gentlemen have produced a plan. "Being fully convinced of the merits of Paracamph, all you have to do, says Mr. Horn, is to deposit the price of a bottle at our drug store, or at Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, take home a bottle of Paracamph, give it an honest trial, and if not satisfied, tell us and we will return your money."

No remedy on earth compares with Paracamph for the cure of Rheumatism, Swelling and Neuralgia, Sore Throat, Croup, Catarrh, Sore Muscles, Eczema, Sprains, Bruises, Sore Feet, Cuts, Burns and Hurts of every description. Paracamph absolutely prevents blood poison. Paracamph soothes and heals like magic. No household should be without a bottle always on hand.

If you receive a card making a special offer to you for a trial of Paracamph, bring it to our drug store without delay.

Editor Banner—Here I come once more asking for admission. When I read the Banner and think of old Chilton and the difference now and a few days back when we could not buy our whiskey in bottles because we could not raise a corn cob big enough to stop a jug, (Johnnie you know how it was) and now how is it, getting whiskey or raising corn? If our boys were as bad as we were, Tommie, they would be put to more trouble than we were.

When I read the move you all are trying to make for the education of your children, and Bro. E's objections, I must tell what happened to one of Chilton's school teachers. Some years ago he was asked to write a letter for a negro. When the letter was finished the question was asked, what next? Well, just say excuse bad writing and spelling. It is easier to say that than it is to pay school tax. That is why Bro. E and I object to the tax; I think that if he sees this, he will enjoy the joke, for he is one of your best teachers now, and that request is made because they know how to read and write, but we that went to school twenty-five years ago must ask the Editor to make what changes he wants to, or sees is needed. If you had a few more men like F. A. G., W. E. T. or G. R. B., of Autauga, you could have your school tax and telephone lines all over the country in a short while, and me and Bro. E. could just kick as much as we want to. You know how it is, some people are naturally cross and would grumble if they had to be hung.

There is some spirit here about the cotton association, they say oh well, the farmers will not stick and some fellow wants to feather his nest, and all such stuff as that.

When I began writing I didn't intend to trouble you so much, but I am like one of your neighbors, when he was a young man he was going to tell about seeing a deer, and he said the faster it ran the further it got and the further it got the faster it ran, and the last time he saw it, it was clean out of sight.

If you are a sufferer from Liver, Kidney or Bladder Trouble you owe it to your precious life to

TAKE URACURA

First—It is a perfect tonic and cure for Kidney and Bladder Diseases.
Second—It regulates the Liver.
Third—It purifies the Blood.
Fourth—It restores Strength.
Fifth—It renews Vitality.

We know beyond doubt that it is a cure for any of these terrible diseases, no matter how slight or how serious the case may be. We have proved this by our own experience and the testimony of thousands who have been cured.

It is a peculiar and dangerous feature of Kidney and Bladder Troubles that their symptoms are seldom alarming until they have you well in their clutches. They are indeed the most insidious diseases known to medical science. A few seemingly harmless pains in the back and side; sometimes a headache and nervousness with no apparent cause; occasional hot flushes; swelling of the hands or feet; very light or very dark colored urine—often too frequent—one or another or all of these symptoms, scarcely noticeable unless you are warned and on the lookout, mean Kidney or Bladder trouble. Study yourself—do not let another day go by without finding out about the health of your Kidneys and Bladder. Review your symptoms and check the disease in its early stages.

A 50c BOTTLE OF URACURA WILL BEGIN THE GOOD WORK

After even a few days treatment you will notice that the urine will be of a very dark or reddish color with a strong odor of the medicine—this is not only a sign that there is disease but also that Uracura is doing its duty. After two or three days the urine will be clear; you will begin to feel less pain about the Kidneys and the pains in the back will leave. Your nervousness will disappear and you will feel stronger and better in every way. A consistent and continued treatment will absolutely eradicate the disease from your system and you will feel like a new being. Uracura is a purely vegetable compound or concentrated extract prepared from those roots and herbs that years of experience have proved to be the only sure remedies known to science for these troubles. A great Nervine Tonic, Blood Alterative, Liver Regulator and Kidney and Bladder Cure. Restores strength, renews vitality, purifies the blood, relieves biliousness and constipation and produces a healthy appetite and sound digestion.

At last even the lobster has turned and killed a man who was preparing to cook him. If the lobster would do this sort of thing oftener and make anything like as good a fight before we eat him as afterward, he would be held in higher respect, and his very name would not be so often used as a term of contempt, says the Louisville Courier-Journal.

President Roosevelt, in a recent speech, said: "Neither this people nor any other free people will permanently tolerate the use of the vast power conferred by vast wealth, and especially by wealth in its corporate form without lodging somewhere in the government the still higher power of seeing that this power, in addition to being used in the interest of the individual or individuals possessing it, is also used for and not against the interests of the people as a whole."

Lord Roberts seems restive in his new office as guardian of St. James park, with two black swans to feed, and in the 19th Century Magazine he sounds an alarm about the unpreparedness of Great Britain for war. The reform he advocates is inducing every able-bodied man to learn to shoot straight and conform to military discipline, states Town Topics. This is our state militia system, the National Guard, which may be readily applied to British countries and will provide an immense standing army for national defence.

Germany has a city situated in the Black forest containing about 7000 inhabitants which gets along without paying any taxes, all municipal expenses being provided for by the yearly net revenue of the public property. This consists of 6000 acres of forest, managed under the best forestry methods, and the annual return from it, pretty regular in amount, is sufficient to meet all requirements. When a tree is cut down one or more is planted, and the yield is consequently undiminishing. No tree is cut till it is of a growth to yield the maximum profit. This pays all the city's expenses, with a surplus.

The main thing is to realize that a man is as he is, says the Syracuse Journal. You can't change him much. And the sooner you leave off trying to reform him the sooner will you be able to make him go through his paces and do the cute tricks he is capable of. Indeed, he can be made quite tame by gentle treatment and may in time learn some of the finer things of life from his mistress. The proper study of womankind is man.

The bills for the maneuvres at Manassas last September cost, including everything, less than $600,000; $484,083 for the State militia organizations and $105,156 for the regular army. If it had been a million everybody who attended the maneuvres would agree that it was cheap at the price, declares the New York Times. The maneuvres represented, on the largest scale that has been attempted in this country, the conditions of actual war, and tested every department as thoroughly as it could be tested without bullets and casualties.

The new alloy called invar, consisting of steel mixed with about thirty-six per cent. of nickel, which is practically invariable in volume with ordinary changes of temperature, has recently been adopted by Swiss watchmakers for making balances in the majority of their best timepieces, the New York Tribune states. The compensation for temperature thus obtained is superior to any hitherto known. For many years watchmakers have struggled with an outstanding trouble in the best compensated chronometers, known as "Dent's error," due principally to the non-linear variation of the elasticity of the steel of the hairspring. By the use of invar Dent's error may be practically eliminated.

The village of Racketville w fever heat.

At fever heat in the middle of ruary.

What an absurd expression th by the way. At fever heat in middle of February, when the ge climate is so sternly suggestive sters, arctics, chest protecters and timore beaters. But we use it on a figurative sense. Racketville wa a perfect fever heat, not accordin the thermometrical pressure, but pressure of excitement and expecta

What was the cause of this ferm

Why, the following notice, cli from the "Local Items" column of village paper:

"It is a well known fact that the nual straw-rides of our esteemed low townsman, Farmer Frisker, are most prominent features of Rac ville's winter enjoyments. Tomor evening, at half past seven, the straw-ride of the season will st from Frisker's house, to travel all way to Dan Kelly's hotel at Fairv where quite a surprising sensatio promised to take place. The pa will return home in plenty of time the next day's dinner. Over fifty vitations have been issued."

Is it not likely that such an nouncement should cause quite furore, that everyone in the villa who had the least claim to acqua tanceship with the Frisker fam should be looking forward to rece ing an invitation; and that everyo who had not, should determine on ing down to the Frisker cottage to the party off? for, in the opinion everyone, the starting off of the a nual Frisker straw-ride was a sig not to be missed, or eclipsed eithe even by the great displays of Chris mas and the Fourth of July.

Well, the eventful evening arrive in safety, and a more glorious one f a straw-ride could not have be wished for. The moon and stars we out and shining beautifully, the su rounding country presented the mos lovely snow landscape the eye coul feast upon, and the road over whic the party were to travel was in splen did condition.

Half-past seven came, and the grea straw-ride started from the Frisker cottage amid the cheers of half th village populace, who had assemble to see them off, and the crash of brass band that Farmer Frisker ha secured to accompany the party "Music allers seemed to patch up suc a 'sort o' enchantment around the scene," he said.

There were four sleighs full of invited guests. They were all ranged in line, and, festooned with flags, branches of fir trees, bright Chinese lanterns and numerous other decorations, looked quite a prtty sight. The horses were trimmed up fantastically, too, like a lot of animals in the holiday assortment of a New York department store.

As the party moved away from the cottage the scene was lit up magnificently by the glare of brilliant fireworks, which had also been provided for the occasion.

Then away the sleighs sped in fine style over the fleecy road like arrows, and the crisp snow crackled beneath them with sharp, snapping sounds, the bells jingled with a merry unison, and the voices rang out upon the frosty air with a far merrier discordance.

The night was superb. The glistening jewels of the sky shed a soft, celestial glow over the snow-clad hills and meadows, and gave the country the appearance of an ermine paradise.

On, on flew the sleighs, past houses, fences, trees and mile posts, like locomotives, until the village was left many miles behind. On they dashed through the hills and valleys, and across the low, white-carpeted meadows, past scattered villages and silent, lonely homesteads, the party enjoying this pleasant diversification of scenery all along the route. Enjoying the scenery and enjoying plenty else.

Ah, how nice it was! How really nice it was! Young Simon Lee, for instance, sitting with his arm around the waist of Laura Dale, pointing out to her the places of interest upon the road, the old dead sycamore tree, with the spring in its trunk famed for such good water, the broken-down bridge where he used to fish, the haunted mill beside Brewster's, where he got her that pretty pair of pigeons some time ago, etc. All this while her father and mother, sitting quite near, were in danger of looking; when they were not looking, the conversation was carried on in the silent language of the eyes, and made doubly interesting by affectionate bouts in hugging and kissing.

All the other young people derived an immense amount of enjoyment in precisely the same manner.

There was one person there who enjoyed himself as thoroughly as all the others combined, and, however strange it may seem, all alone.

That person was Bachelor Spriggs, quite an eccentric individual, but the most intellectual man in Racketville.

No one, however, seemed to make much of him during the ride, or to care for listening to his queer but humorous conversation. The ladies of the party thought him "perfectly horrid, for he drinks, and the smell of whisky on him is terrible!" they whispered to each other. The men pitied his weakness, pronounced him a very smart and funny man, but did not endeavor to draw him into conversation, for, when once started he ran on like

Thought to Be Murdered.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—What seems to be one of the most atrocious murders ever committed in this vicinity happened here Thursday night, in which A. J. Lindgren was the unfortunate victim.

Mr. Lindgren failed to return home Thursday night, and as a result of an early search for him in the morning his horse and buggy were found down near the river bridge. Here was also found his hat, coat and pocketbook, the latter being empty. It seems that he had carried a friend of his across the river about dark, and the supposition is that on his return he was attacked on the bridge and murdered. Mr. Lindgren's body has not been found as yet, and it is thought that it was thrown into the river. His coat, when discovered, had several bullet holes in it, and one or two slight blood stains were visible.

One theory is that a negro, who had just been convicted of a theft from Mr. Lindgren and who has the reputation of being a bad character, waylaid him in a spirit of revenge. This theory is supported in the report that this negro has disappeared. The general belief is, however, that robbery was the motive of the attack, as it is understood that Mr. Lindgren had a considerable sum of money about him.

Freight Wreck Occurs.

Selma, Ala.—Freight train No. 67 on the Southern was wrecked on the long approach of the bridge over the Tombigbee river just east of Demopolis. It is thought that an axle on one of the box cars broke and caused the break in the bridge, through which seven freight cars went. It was also reported that a negro was killed, but the report cannot be confirmed. The traffic of the road was interrupted for several hours and the mail train from Meridian had to be carried around by Akron, but it is thought that the bridge will be repaired so that west-bound trains can go over it this afternoon.

Officer Is Arrested.

Huntsville, Ala.—Deputy Sheriff McClelland, of Houston, Tex., was arrested here late Thursday night on a charge of attempted kidnapping, after he had arrested Will Vining, a young painter of this city. The Texas officer came here yesterday with a warrant for Ed Vining, who is wanted in Houston for burglary.

Will Vining was taken up and the visiting officer claimed that he is the man. Requisition papers had been secured in advance and Deputy McClelland was making arrangements to leave with his prisoner when the relatives of Vining got together and applied for a writ of habeas corpus. McClelland made another attempt to catch a train out of Huntsville. Constable Ward balked his game by arresting him on a warrant charging kidnapping. McClelland stated that he was acting on legal advice and would willingly go to jail if necessary, but as a courtesy to his office he was allowed to spend the night under guard in the office of Sheriff Rodgers.

Hurt in Mines.

Birmingham, Ala.—Walter Page, employed at the Raymond ore mines, twelve miles south of the city, escaped death by a miracle. A car of ore got loose on the incline and dashed back into the mine. Page was in the way, but managed to step aside as the car passed. The car was smashed to pieces at the end of the journey and Page was covered with ore. One of his ribs was broken and he was otherwise painfully injured, though not fatally.

Robbed and Thrown in the River.

Lanett, Ala.—Will Gaines, the son of a prominent farmer living near here, was held up and robbed by an unknown negro.

The young man was out on his father's farm, and his first knowledge of the negro's presence was when he was halted an covered with a pistol. The negro was masked.

After relieving young Gaines of his knife and watch the negro blindfolded him and led him to the bank of the Chattahoochee river.

Before the young man was aware of his whereabouts he was pushed off the bank into the river. He was almost drowned before he could remove the bandage from his eyes and get out of the water.

Searching parties have been out all day, and two negroes are now under arrest. Both of them were relieved of guns by the posse, and they will be held pending further developments.

Mayor and Aldermen Appointed.

Courtland, Ala.—The governor has appointed a mayor and four aldermen for the town of Courtland, which does not have to be done with any other town in the state. The act by which this duty is placed upon the executive was passed by the legislature of 1900. The officers named were C. M. Sherrod, mayor; R. H. Tweedy, A. F. Rebman, E. V. Chardavoyne and R. N. Harris, Jr., aldermen.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—A party of members of the Philadelphia Academy of Science are now engaged in a general exploration of the numerous Indian mounds down at Moundville, Ala. This party, which travels about in a private steamboat, "The Gopher," is making an extensive tour of the country, but have perhaps been more successful in their finds of Indian relics here at Moundville than most anywhere else, as this was once quite a celebrated Indian settlement. Mr. James A. Anderson, one of the officers of the Alabama geological survey, has been down once or twice to aid the party in determining on the best mounds to extensively explore, Mr. Anderson being quite familiar with this field of relics.

MUST CONSENT

An Interview with a Jap of High Position, Who Expects an Indemnity.

BARON SUYEMATSU SPEAKS.

Mikado Decides on No Peace Because of Unwillingness to Skin Bear Before It is Shot.

London, England.—Baron Suyematsu, formerly Japanese minister of the interior, has written an interesting and significant article for The Outlook, under the heading, "War and Indemnity—the Japanese Claim."

The whole trend of the article is intended to show that Japan will carry on the war until Russia consents to pay indemnity. The Baron says:

"A canon of the Japanese Bushido is 'one should not unsheath the sword unless in case of absolute necessity, nor restore it to its sheath unless one is totally overcome or has secured equitable satisfaction for one's cause.' This is our ideal in international intercourse. The sword of Japan is drawn, and the aim for which it was unsheathed has scarcely been attained. We want a peace which will secure tranquillity in the far east for at least a generation or two.

Was Caprice With Russia.

"The world should know that in the present war Japan staked her very existence, whereas with the enemy it was a mere war of caprice. Why, then, in case of defeat, should not Russia be made responsible in equitable accordance with the nature of the affair? I believe, therefore, that in case of the adversary asking for peace, the satisfaction which she will have to make to Japan should include making good the material loss of Japan; in other words, indemnity."

Baron Suyematsu says further:

"Japan has not formulated definite terms of peace, because she might be accused of skinning the bear before it is shot. We have, however, outlined our idea."

The article argues out the righteousness of Japan's position in demanding indemnity as a basic condition and controverts the idea which he says, he finds prevalent outside of Japan, that Japan is willing to make peace at any price. "Some say," the Baron continues, "that for humanity's sake an armistice should be concluded with a view to negotiating peace.

"It is all very well to talk of humanity, but no injustice must be perpetrated in the name of humanity. If a proposition arising out of the question of humanity gives more advantage to one more than another of the contending parties, it can not be justice."

Baron Suyematsu treats sarcastically the special plea that Russia should be allowed to "save her face," and compares Japan to a dwarf fighting a giant, and says:

Glad Bubble Is Pricked.

"The public at large seems to have gauged the relative value of Russia and Japan. They are glad that the large bubble which had been causing a nightmare to so many people for so long a time has been pricked. They have seen that it was no use to suppress Japan's movements by the combined force of western powers. Yet there seems for the instant in the air a sort of compassion for our adversary. This idea arising out of some psychological instability is inconsistent."

The Baron refers to the announcement of St. Petersburg early in the war that an enormous indemnity would be demanded, and that the terms would be dictated in Tokio. "We are far from assuming such an attitude," the writer says, "but we believe that justice ought to be done us. No mere sentiment shall be allowed to decide the merits of the cause."

In conclusion Baron Suyematsu says:

"Some say that Japan might be induced to forego a claim for indemnity, provided England and America gave good assurance for future peace. We appreciate, of course, the general sentiment of England and America. We are anxious to maintain the best friendship with these two countries, more particularly than other countries. We should, therefore, be very sorry if we were to be told that we should forego, on account of that friendship, any claim to what we deem just to demand."

Ship Sinks at Wharf.

The ship arrived from Havana and was to have sailed for the same port. She was formerly in the New York and New Orleans trade and had recently been extensively rebuilt. It is expected that the vessel can be raised. No lives were lost. The cause of the accident has not been learned.

New Railway Examination System.

Cincinnati, O.—The Queen and Crescent is putting its engine men and trainmen through severe tests in the interest of safer, better and more expeditious service. The management has quietly put into effect a system of "surprise tests," which are calculated to awaken engineers to their responsibilities.

In a circular letter addressed to engineers previous to the inauguration of the "surprise tests," the engine men were advised to follow printed rules to the letter, and not to rely on "customary practice" in cases of doubt.

The circular was headed "Eternal Vigilance is the Price of Safety." The company started in on its secret tests. Engine men never knew when a red light would be turned against them or when they would be placed in a position to choose between their own discretion and the letter of printed rules.

The campaign of "surprise tests" not only included the use of semaphore signals, but whistle signals of all sorts, placing of rear-end flagmen, torpedo tests, burning fuse tests and all kinds of safety signals.

The time and places for the tests were kept secret. Engine men and trainmen did not know when a trainmaster, a road foreman, a superintendent or train rule examiner was standing behind the glare of a red light or in the shadow of a section house.

A train rule examiner is a new functionary. The Queen and Crescent has appointed one for every division. The manner in which their duties are arranged is illustrated in the case of an engineer who unwisely followed what he thought was "customary practice" instead of plainly printed rules. When this engineer failed in the surprise test he was notified to appear before the train rule examiner. The latter subjected him to a rigid examination on his knowledge of the rules.

The engineer passed a high average and the record was certified to the Superintendent. The latter looked it over, saw that the engineer could quote the rules correctly, and, therefore, was correct in assuming that the engineer's failure at the "surprise test" was entirely due to carelessness.

It became the duty of the Superintendent to decide what disciplinary measures were necessary.

Since the "surprise tests" were inaugurated the discipline of the engine men has greatly improved. General Manager W. A. Garrett said yesterday he was much gratified by results.

In order to ineffaceably impress upon every engineer the fact that speed is not the first consideration the management of the company has given orders that the words "Safety Before Speed" shall be stenciled in bright letters in the cab of every locomotive where the eyes of the engineer will constantly see them.

A feature of the new system is placing every engineer on record as to his views. When the original circulars were sent out, engineers were asked to write their views as to whether they thought that the record of a certain Chicago line could be equaled. This record showed 590 "surprise tests" in one month without a single failure on the part of the engine men subjected to the sudden surprises. In every case the Q. and C. engine men expressed the belief that they could reach that record, and now the company is holding them to this view.

An official of the company said yesterday that the percentage of failures in the last month's tests was very small and that the system of checking the men up unexpectedly and under conditions which arise daily was having a beneficial effect.

Young Woman Receives Hero Medal.

The Russian and Jap fleets are getting pretty close together and the greatest battle of modern times is daily expected.

A PETITION is being circulated in Clanton, requesting the mayor and council to appropriate $350 from the town treasury to add to the amount of the public school fund, to enable a free public school to be run here. That there should be a free public school in Clanton no one will deny, and if the town council can afford the amount asked for we believe they will do so.

THE Executive Committee of the Chilton Cotton Association held a meeting last Saturday, and afterwards saw several of our leading citizens in reference to the proposed County Fair to be held next fall at Clanton. It was suggested that Clanton citizens should hold a meeting Tuesday last and take some action in regard to this important matter, but the notice being so short, upon consideration it was decided to call a meeting at the Court House next Monday night, April 17, at 8 o'cleck, when it is hoped and expected that a full attendance of Clantonians and farmers living near by will be had. A proposition has been made to form a stock company to carry the matter through, and this will probably be done. Considerable interest is being shown in the movement, and amongst other things it may be mentioned that severat ladies have expressed a willingness to exhibit fancy quilts and other work, and a number of teachers desire to show the work of their scholars. Another interesting idea is that some trotting matches can be arranged. Let us have a good meeting Monday night and come to an understanding.

A little incident occurred at Washington last week that shows the value of newspaper advertising, and I mention it only for that purpose. Everybody either has seen or heard of Lew Dockstader, the best negro minstrel in the country. Well, Lew had his show there last week and on last Friday he inserted a little want "ad." in one of the local papers to the effect that school girls and boys who could write distinctly were invited to call at the box office of the National Theatre on Saturday morning. They lined up for blocks and were handed a little slip of paper which read that it was to encourage rapid and distinct penmanship and offered a private box to the boy or girl who would write distinctly "Lew Dockstader is my favorite comedian," the greatest number of times and gave them until Monday afternoon to return the manuscript. Well, he got two bushels of them and the line had been written from 100 to 4,000 times. It came near breaking up the public schools, as the teachers could get nothing out of the pupils, who wanted to write all day Monday. The teachers are swearing vengeance on Lew Dockstader, but Lew just laughs and says he has proved the value of printers' ink as well as burnt cork.

GOOD ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN.

Verbena, April 3, 1905

Editor Banner—The purpose of this communication is to advise the young men of our country in the way they should go and to this end I beg them first to be industrious, sober, honest and make their word their bond even from boyhood. Strive to secure at least sufficient education to prepare you to deal for yourself and thus be independent along this line. If you are financially able, get married by the time you are of age, (21) if not able get married anyhow, for as a friend of mine said to me once about joining the church, it is a good investment. Marry your choice if you can get her, if not it is to be hoped that you will be her choice. Both of you go to work, aim high and try your very best to reach the mark and if you should fail by a scratch try again. Don't be small in neither your thought nor act, but liberal, at least in thought, broad-minded and progressive in your nature. Don't be satisfied as a tenant of neither house or land, but fire away and make you a reputation as a high grade man whose word is his bond, and then fully protect that reputation. Don't keep up but half the line fence, but be sure to keep your half as good as your co-joiner does his. Be law abiding above almost everything. Leave off cigarettes first, whiskey second and baseball third, and for your own sake don't try to be a dude as a young man. Nearly all married men, young or old, soon learn to have better sense. Buy such furniture, both household and kitchen, as you can pay for. If you need to do so, you can afford to buy land and stock on time. Never ask a favor which you can't return. If you are poor don't try to marry a girl way up in "G," but in keeping with your station in life or little above; one who will not play "Wall flower," but an actual helper for you. You, if prosperous, can make her happy, while the society belle will make you "walk chicken." I never tried it, but have seen it done to perfection. Set your pegs early in life and when once set drive straight to them and all will go well with you.

Just here I want to relate an instance in my own life. Pardon me for referring to it, will you not? At nineteen years old and just before I got married, my best girl, who was the baby daughter of a poor widow, was discussing with me our poverty and she asked me how I proposed for us to make a rise. I related a certain plan, already formulated by me, although a mere youth, out of which I expected to get a start. We got married, went to work and went to suffering too. After talking over my plan we waited, and in just three years my plan worked out or appeared rather. It took five years more to work it out and I finally consummated fully the very plan laid out to "Delia" while walking the dim country road eight years before. I took the profits arising from this youthful laid plan amounting to four hundred dollars, went in business, and by constant work and attention, industry and economy, "Delia" and myself don't have to work, but we have learned to love it and guess we will keep it up. So I say almost anyone can shape their own destiny if they will.

If you are indisposed to work get a job at which you are bound to stick and keep up your end, in this you become interested in your duties and if a paying job you will soon learn to love it. Don't buy what you can make at home. Do you know since I have been in business I have sold hundreds of dollars worth of soap for laundrying to men who had grease enough wasted each year around their places to make soap for two such families? I never bought laundry soap in my life and never expect to, "Delia" don't require it of me. So boys consider what I have said, try it on at least and after you have tried it for ten years report your progress to me if living, if not, to your children. Yours for success,

F. A. GULLEDGE.

Hon. Harry C. Gurnells, Chief Clerk in the Department of Education, will give a talk on the school laws of Alabama at the Alabama Girls' Industrial School, Montevallo, at 3 o'clock, April 18, 1905. The teachers of Chilton who wish to hear the talk are cordially invited to attend.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special Correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, D. C., April 10, 1905

The principal topic of political conversation in the national capital at the recent time is the way that President Roosevelt does things when his desires are thwarted by the Senate. He was stuck on having that Santo Domingo treaty fixed up before the Senate adjourned its extra session, but the Senate refused to do so, because the Democrats stood together for once in the great flood of years and balked the scheme to make Uncle Sam the collecting agent for the debts of all the countries and grafters on the face of the globe. But, as the two polecats said to one another as the automobile passed them and they got a whiff of that breeze that follows the benzine buggy, "What's the use?" Nowadays when the congress of the nation does not do all the President wants he just goes ahead and does things to suit himself. They would not give him the Panama canal route, so he went to work and got up a revolution down there, stole a piece of the territory of the Republic of Columbia and fixed up a government with which he could enter into a treaty.

Now, when the Senate refuses to give him a treaty with Santo Domingo so he can collect the dets of a lot of his political friends, he waits until the Senate adjourns and then fixes the thing his own way and will send down his own collectors. If the people do not like it what are they going to do about it? As the late lamented Tim Campbell, of New York, once said to a member of Congress who refused to vote for a measure because it was unconstitutional. "What's the constitution between old friends?"

Such things as constitutions are obsolete so far as our strenuous President is concerned. He simply kicks it out of the way and goes ahead. Such things in this country are growing more frequent and will continue to do so, because of the utter indifference of the people. Some day the Republican oligarchy will pull the whole dadgummed fabric of their liberties from under their feet and then maybe they will begin to take notice when it is too late.

The question of railroad rate legislation is one of the biggest that has confronted the people of the country for many years, and too much cannot be said about it. Before it is settled the people ought to be thoroughly familiar with every phase of it, and there are always two sides to every question. Every good Democrat is in favor of some sort of legislation that will safeguard the interests of the people and prevent extortion on the part of the railroads, without impoverishing the roads. I was in favor of the Hearst bill, which did this, but I am not in favor of the Esch-Townsend bill or anything like it that gives to the Interstate Commerce Commission arbitrary powers without providing for men on the commission who have sense enough to know what rates are. Simply to ascertain how many people in this country are directly interested in this rate question that more or less will affect the condition of the roads, I went to the Interstate Commerce commission and gathered some interesting figures.

There are 5,299,952 savings bank depositors and 18,147,000 insurance policyholders, a total of 23,447,000 people interested in the prosperity of the railroads of the United States. Thirty per cent of the holders of these institutions are in railroad securities, which is one-sixth in value of all the railroad securities of this country. CHAS. A. EDWARDS.

FIFTY CENTS

IN some conditions the gain from the use of Scott's Emulsion is very rapid. For this reason we put up a fifty-cent size, which is enough for an ordinary cough or cold or useful as a trial for babies and children. In other conditions the gain is slower—health cannot be built up in a day. In such cases Scott's Emulsion must be taken as nourishment; a food rather than a medicine. It's a food for tired and weak digestions.

Editor Banner—One more short letter. I have just received a letter from a young man in Bibb county saying he saw my letter and quite a number of my old friends were anxious to hear from me, and I am thankful that I seem to have so many friends back there that feel an interest in my welfare, I imagine that it would be the saddest thought for a person to realize that no one cared for them, and none can tell how they miss their friends until they are separated from them. I am reminded every Sunday more than any other day of my friends back in Alabama, I am so busy on other days that I do not miss them so much. The churches where I preached come up in my mind on Sunday, and I'll name a few of them: Old Friendship, where I was baptised in October, 1877, Pleasant Grove, the first church I preached for, and Harmony and Evergreen in Autauga county, Mt. Zion, Mt. Gilead, Antioch, Rehoboth and Enon, in Bibb, and Collins Chapel, New Salem, and Liberty Hill in Chilton, and others that I do not have space to name. All the churches and many of the people come into my mind on Sunday, and it helps to make me lonely, but the people here have received me cordially, and I could have a place to preach every Sunday if I felt inclined, but this year I am compelled to stay at home and work, preparing my home, trying to be ready to live another year, but I know but little of the coming year, I, too, with many of my friends, may be called to meet the Judge of all men before that season comes, it behooves all to be ready, "For we know neither the day nor the hour." But I am making this too long, I wanted to say a few things about Florida. I used to think that Florida was a sand bed and frog pond, but I have been pleasantly disappointed; it is true there is much sand in Florida, but some of as rich land as I ever saw is here, the land is expensive to clean up, but easily cultivated when once prepared, and low flat pine land that would be considered worthless in Alabama is very productive here, and cattle grow here like huckleberries in Alabama; the woods are full of young calves, and yet a good milch cow will cost you as much as a horse in Alabama. I have not had time to start any enterprise except I have 20 fine leghorns worth a $1 a dozen.

Respectfully, S. M. ADAMS.

As I have been absent for several weeks I will venture out again.

We are glad to see so many taking an interest in the Banner. I read so many nice, interesting pieces presented by different ones, especially Mr. Thos. Meroney's in the last issue, although I fear you are flattering some of the citizens of this county, Mr. Meroney.

Miss Emma Roy paid her home folks a visit Sunday.

Mrs. Mattie Terry of Riderville visited her son and daughter recently.

Mrs. Etta Palson of Selma spent a few days with her father last week.

Mr. Bailey Mills spent Saturday with relatives near this place.

Mr. Jim Johnson of Stanton was among the recent visitors of this place.

We are glad to state that Mrs. Deramus is improving after suffering so long from an abscess caused by the teeth.

Mrs. F. A. Pope spent last week in Selma on business.

Dr. Ira W. Johnson and wife have just returned from the Gulf City, where he has finished his college course and brought with him the degree of doctor of medicine, which he received with honors on April 7, 1905. These honors have been long sought for and patiently earned. We welcome him back among his many warm friends.

We are glad to state that Miss Annie Sherrill is teaching a two months private school at this place.

Mr. Chat Harville went to Plantersville on business recently.

Wishing the Banner and its many readers success.

A Dandy for Burns.

Dr. Bergin, Pana, Ill., writes: "I have used Ballard's Snow Liniment; always recommended it to my friends, as I am confident there is no better made. 'It is a dandy for burns.' Those who live on farms are especially liable to many accidental cuts, burns, bruises, which heal rapidly when Ballard's Snow Liniment is applied. It should always be kept in the house for cases of emergency." 25c, 50c and $1.00 Sold by Upchurch Drug co.

ANGRY IN OLD MADRID

Popular Demonstration Was Prohibited by the Governor. Police Stoned.

MANY VICTIMS RECOVERED.

Soil on Which Reservoir Was Built Was Pronounced Bad—Rigid Investigation Will Be Made.

Madrid, Spain—It appears that underneath the foundations of the reservoir which gave way with disastrous results on Saturday were water pipes used to supply the palace and old Madrid. It is said that this was the cause of the subsidence, and not the surface of the ground which when tests were made sank only eleven millimetres. The vault was built of cement with iron girders, as were also the supporting columns. The first fall caused all the pillars to bend, and the end of the iron work to stretch, resulting in a general and uniform collapse. These explanations, however, cannot be considered as final.

Madrid newspapers publish assertions that the disaster has been foreseen by engineers, as well as workmen.

It is now recalled that the bad condition of the soil on which the reservoir was constructed caused keen opposition, and numerous criticisms were made while the construction was being discussed in the cortes. Workmen who have been questioned say that they were compelled to build too rapidly with materials so defective that a disaster was bound to happen.

Many heart-rending incidents and painful scenes are reported. Ten of those who were rescued alive have gone mad

A huge crowd stood around the scene throughout the night watching the attempts at rescue in the light of huge electric lamps.

Crowds of workmen and women carrying black flags forced all theaters to close Saturday night.

Alphonso Uses Telephone.

King Alfonso had a telephone wire laid from the scene of the disaster to the palace, and by that means was kept constantly informed. The king again visited the hospitals here.

Some of the injured have died. One body was recovered from the ruins during the night, but none later. Seven hundred workmen are engaged in clearing the debris.

During the day students and working men paraded the streets collecting money for the families of victims of the disaster. The public contributed freely.

The governor of Madrid has prohibited a great popular demonstration which the workingmen proposed to organize, but he received the delegates of the workmen's association, who he informed that the street procession would be permitted under certain restrictions.

Fort Worth, Tex.—Professor T. R. Dunlap, who has been vice president of Jarvis college at Thorpe Springs, Tex., has been arrested on a charge of arson. On the night of March 20th the main building of the college was burned.

No lives were lost, but neither was there any apparent reason for the fire. President Dunlap, who was formerly president of the college, was suspected, it is alleged, and his arrest followed. He is 52 years of age and has a family. President Jarvis, who lives in Fort Worth, declined to make a statement.

BETWEEN TWO FIRES

Togo Must Stay in Jap Waters. Fleet to Be Sent South to Furnish Aid.

BATTLE WILL NOW BE AVERTED.

Positions of Fleets Thought to Offer an Opportunity for Russia to Propose Peace Terms.

St. Petersburg.—There is reason to believe that Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's entrance into the China sea has been followed by orders for the cruisers Gromoboi, Rossia and Bogatyr, which have been ready for some time at Vladivostock, to put to sea. Whether it is the intention to send them south immediately, or to hold them in the vicinity of Vladivostock, is not known. Their appearance outside the roadstead of Vladivostock would constitute a potential threat against Admiral Togo's rear, which will compel the retention or dispatch of a number of heavy fighting ships to Japanese waters.

Thus Admiral Togo seems to be virtually placed between two fires.

The peace influence in the government urge that this favorable strategic position presents the psychological moment for offering officially the olive branch to Japan, reasoning that no matter now confident the Japanese government may be of Togo's victory, it cannot overlook the possibility of defeat, nor fail to appreciate the complete disaster which would follow a transfer of the mastery of the sea to Russia.

Interested in Avoiding Conflict.

With so much depending upon the issue, they argue both countries have mutual interests in avoiding an actual test, and it is not impossible therefore that a new move in the direction of peace may come just as the world expects to hear the call to quarters for the greatest naval battle of modern times. Certainly the spirits of the war party have been greatly raised by Rojestvensky's success in penetrating to the China sea; and the prospect of a naval battle, even with the odds against a Russian victory, which would change the entire complexion of the situation, has aroused something like a flash of enthusiasm in many Russian breasts.

Some naval officers express the opinion that Rojestvensky, having now safely navigated the straight, instead of sailing north to meet the Japanese, can afford to calmly await Vice Admiral Nebogatoff with his division of the squadron, who could arrive in about three weeks.

Long Dispatch from Singapore.

The Russian admiralty on Sunday received a long dispatch from Singapore, but no intimation as to its contents has been given to the newspapers. The papers of Sunday morning print Singapore dispatches without comment, the Sviet being the only exception.

This paper views the news from Rojestvenski as an auspicious prelude to a decisive battle, which may show that over Rojestvensky still shines the happy star which helped him when a lieutenant to save the fragile Vesta in an unequal conflict with a Turkish battleship. The Sviet expressed the hope that Rojestvensky is destined to turn the tables, and that even in case of defeat some of his vessels will be able to break through and reach the Japanese sea.

Fifty-one Ships in Squadron.

Singapore—Fifty-one ships of Admiral Rojestvensky's Second Pacific squadron passed here. The most important fighting vessels of the squadron, including the battleships Kniazsouvaroff, Alexander II, Borodino and Orel, with their complement of cruisers, torpedo boat destroyers, did not arrive, and their whereabouts are unknown.

The vessels which passed Singapore were the following:

Battleships Sissoi, Veliky and Oleg; cruisers Admiral Nakhimoff, Dimitri, Donskoi, Aurora, Izumrud, Jemtchug, Almaz, Russ, Anadyr, Furst Bismarck, Kaiserin Maria Theresa, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, Kaiser Friederich, Rion and seven torpedo boat destroyers, all sailing under the naval flag. Under the commercial flag were the volunteer steamers Voronez, Kieff, Yaroslav, Tamboff, Vladimir and Orel, the Russian Navigation company's steamers Meteor, Jupiter and Mercury, and the East Asiatic company's steamers Korea and Kaitai, the North Baltic company's steamer Kniaz Gortchakoff, one salvage ship and sixteen colliers.

A French steamer arrived here Sunday with a sailor belonging to the Admiral Nakhimoff, who fell overboard and was picked up at Malacca after having been twelve hours in the water.

South Carolina Peonage Case.

Charleston, S. C.—After being out all night, a Federal Court jury reported inability to reach a verdict in the peonage case involving Italian labor contractors who were charged with holding employes in involuntary servitude. Judge Breawley ordered a mistrial recorded and dismissed the jury. This is the first case in the south in which it was charged that white men were held as peons.

Little Girl Killed.

Cloyd's Landing, Ky.—A most deplorable tragedy is reported to have occurred at Kettle, in the southern part of the county. Miss Lena Scott, a 13-year-old girl, and her mother, Mrs. Susan Scott, were sawing a large log into wood with which to warm their little cabin. When the log was nearly in two it broke loose and one end of it rolled down hill over the girl, horribly mangling her body, from the effects of which she died almost instantly.

This sad and pathetic death is said to be indirectly due to the dissipation of the dead girl's father, Tom Scott, who committed suicide a few years ago after having dethroned his reason and wasted his property by the use of strong drink, thus leaving his wife and children in destitute circumstances.

Saloons Close on Sunday.

Kansas City—Saloons in both Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kans., and the suburbs of the latter city, as well as outlying saloons and wine gardens in Jackson county, Missouri, were closed Sunday. Last Sunday when the closing order went into effect in Kansas City, Mo., many made a pilgrimage across the line into Kansas, or to the many gardens in the country on the Missouri side. Sunday, however, the closing order took in all places, including hotels where liquor is sold.

American School in Mexico.

Mexico City—A company for the purpose of establishing an American school in Mexico has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000. Consul General James Russell was not able to secure the consent of the state department to serve as president of the association, so the association unanimously elected Paul Hudson as its president.

Mr. Hudson is business manager of the Mexican Herald. Mr. Vernon Backus, formerly of Toledo, O., was named as vice president, and the Rev. W. H. Sloan was elected second vice president. The association expects to open the school the coming autumn, simultaneously with the school openings in the United States.

Big Order for Coal.

Pittsburg, Pa.—The Pittsburg Coal Company will close a contract within a few days with the United States Steel Corporation to furnish the latter all the coal it may require during a period of twenty-five years at market price. The contract calls for all the coal the corporation may need after the product of its own mines are exhausted. The amount of coal necessary for the company to furnish will probably be between 6,000,000 and 10,000,000 bushels a year.

Notorious Anse White Captured.

Lexington, Ky.—After being hunted a week Anse White was captured by one of the five special bailiffs sent to Breathitt county. He is an important witness for the commonwealth in the cases of the Hargis brothers and Ed Callahan, who are to be tried here on the charge of complicity in the murder of James Cockrill at Jackson. His absence has caused three postponements of the trial. He will be brought here Monday and the cases will be called Tuesday.

Died From Injuries.

Gadsden, Ala.—Henry O'Barr, a miner employed in Hammond Brothers' ore mines, was run over by the Southern passenger train Friday night at 11 o'clock, cutting off both legs and crushing his right hand.

O'Barr had left the city Friday night for home, two miles above Gadsden. He evidently got sleepy and laid down on the track, when the train ran over him. He was found later by parties attracted by his groans. He was brought to Gadsden, but died shortly after one leg had been dressed. O'Barr was 43 years old. One leg was found on the track where it had been severed.

Has Narrow Escape from Death.

Florence, Ala.—Waverly Garner, the 15-year-old son of B. B. Garner, a prominent merchant of this city, had a miraculous escape from death. In the alley beside his father's store is a walled up hole fifteen feet deep, twenty feet long and just wide enough to admit the body of a horse. Young Garner was just beside this hole when the horse he was riding became frightened and backed in, carrying the boy with him. In some miraculous way he escaped injury, but the horse was so badly hurt that after being brought out with a block and tackle he was shot.

Killed and Robbed.

Birmingham, Ala.—W. T. Hill, a well-known and prosperous merchant of Smythe, five miles from Birmingham, was killed and robbed in a thicket near that place Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock. He was shot four times with a shotgun. Saturday was pay day in Smythe and Mr. Hill is known to have had considerable money with him.

New Electric Lights Turned On.

JAPS AGAIN PRESS NORTH

After Several Sharp Skirmishes Oyama Drives Russians On.

LOSSES HAVE BEEN HEAVY

Czar's Cavalry Has Been Engaged in the Defense—Japanese Forming a Chain of Supply Stations in Their Rear—Togo Reported—Riots in Baltic Provinces.

Gunshu Pass, Manchuria.—Rapidly increasing activity by the Japanese against points on the road to Kirin betrayed a movement in force in that direction on the part of at least one of Marshal Oyama's armies. The column using Kaiyuan as a base was operating vigorously over a long stretch of the military road northeast of that place, and has captured several points of minor but undoubted importance in the past few days. A half brigade of infantry with two squadrons of dragoons attacked the Russian garrison twenty-six miles northeast of Kaiyuan, in Aishenkao, and after a sharp fight, in which the losses on both sides were heavy in proportion to the numbers of troops engaged, the Japs drove the Russians northward.

Hot pursuit of the retiring Russians was made by the Japanese cavalry, but it ceased when the retreating forces had drawn six miles from Aishenkao. The dragoons retired on their infantry and the Japs hastened to fortify the position. It was evident Marshal Oyama intended establishing a chain of fortifications along the Kirin road, for he has pursued the same policy with every town and village northeast of Kaiyuan taken recently. The successful turning movement against the Russian left in the battle of Mienhuachieh at night gave the Mikado's troops a decided advantage in position. It appeared impracticable at this stage of the marshal's general move for General Linevitch to check him to any valuable extent.

There seemed to be little doubt Oyama had dispatched a cavalry column with flying artillery for a rapid movement north through Manchuria toward Tsitsihar. It was evident, too, the Marshal was massing large bodies of his troops for an important move, and it was the belief of military experts here that he intended to force the fighting on a much larger scale than at present in the immediate future. He has hampered the Russian commander terribly by the destruction of stores at Hussitai, Kaiyuan and Changtu, as well as at other places, and the Czar's soldiers have been suffering keenly from shortage of provisions and forage.

General Linevitch has been relying largely largely on his Cossack cavalry and horse batteries for defense of the army from the attacks of Japanese raiders. Mistchenko's Cossacks have been the most active command in the Russian army, and their losses of late have been severe. They engaged in a brisk skirmish with the advance guard of the Japanese centre, retiring with several killed and many wounded after drawing the enemy's heavier field artillery fire.

Togo's Fleet Off Mindanao.

Chicago, Ill.—A special to the Daily News from Batavia, Java, says: "Admiral Togo's fleet was sighted south of the island of Mindanao, the southernmost of the Philippine group."

Riots in Baltic Provinces.

St. Petersburg, Russia.—Reports of peasant uprisings in the Baltic provinces, especially in Lithuania and Courland, continue to be extremely disquieting. At Werra, where a regiment of Cossacks fired on a mob which had complete possession of the town, the rioters were dispersed, but the latter broke up into smaller bands, which terrorized the neighboring land owners. Similar incidents occurred at other places. The smaller bands drive off cattle, burn barns and fodder and help themselves to grain and provisions. Dispatches from dozens of places tell of panic produced by the depredations of roving bands of peasants.

FROM FACTORY TO PALACE.

J. G. Phelps Stokes to Take Poor Jewish Girl as Bride.

New York City.—The engagement of J. G. Phelps Stokes, member of an old and very wealthy New York family, to Miss Rose Harriet Pastor, a young Jewess, who until two weeks ago was a special writer on the Jewish Daily News, and prior to that worked in a Cleveland cigar factory, has been announced. The date for the wedding has not been definitely settled, but the event will take place some time in July.

On July 13, 1902, Miss Pastor was assigned by the city editor of the Jewish Daily News to interview Mr. Stokes, who was then as now a resident worker in the University Settlement in Rivington street.

Miss Pastor is twenty-five years old. She was born at Augustove, Russia. When twelve years of age she came to America with her parents and drifted to Cleveland, Ohio. It was after years of hardship and by dint of hard work she finally obtained a position on the journal referred to.

Her forthcoming marriage has created a great stir among her friends and the "Fifth Avenue" society circles.

Killed by Earthquake.

Czar Not at Review.

Contrary to his usual custom, the Czar failed to review the parade of the Horse Guards on the Feast of the Immaculate Conception in St. Petersburg, Russia, but extraordinary precautions were taken by the police to prevent an outbreak.

President at San Antonio.

President Roosevelt arrived at San Antonio, Texas, to attend the Rough Riders' reunion, after speaking at Austin, Waco and other places in the State.

BABY ONE SOLID SORE

Could Not Shut Eyes to Sleep—Forty Boils on Head—Spent $100 on Doctors —Baby Grew Worse—Cured by Cuticura For $5.

"A scab formed on my baby's face, spreading until it completely covered her from head to foot, followed by boils, having forty on her head at one time, and more on her body. Then her skin started to dry up and it became so bad she could not shut her eyes to sleep. One month's treatment with Cuticura Soap and Ointment made a complete cure. Doctors and medicines had cost over $100, with baby growing worse. Then we spent less than $5 for Cuticura and cured her. (Signed) Mrs. G. H. Tucker, Jr., 335 Greenfield Ave., Milwaukee, Wis."

THOUGHT SHE WOULD DIE.

Mrs. S. W. Marine, of Colorado Springs Began to Fear the Worst—Doan's Kidney Pills Saved Her.

Mrs. Sarah Marine, of 428 St. Urain street, Colorado Springs, Col., President of the Glen Eyrie Club, writes:

"I suffered for three years with severe backache. The doctors told me my kidneys were affected and prescribed medicines for me, but I found that it was only a waste of time and money to take them, and began to fear that I would never get well. A friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. Within a week after I began using them I was so much better that I decided to keep up the treatment, and when I had used a little over two boxes I was entirely well. I have now enjoyed the best of health for more than four months, and words can but poorly express my gratitude."

STOP! WOMEN,

AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman —a woman whose experience with woman's diseases covers a great many years.

You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man—besides a man does not understand—simply because he is a man.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation:

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. — Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Following we publish two letters from a woman who accepted this invitation. Note the result.

First letter.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For eight years I have suffered something terrible every month with my periods. The pains are excruciating and I can hardly stand them. My doctor says I have ovarian and womb trouble, and I must go through an operation if I want to get well. I do not want to submit to it if I can possibly help it. Please tell me what to do. I hope you can relieve me."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 59th and E. Capitol Sts., Benning P.O., Washington, D.C.

Second letter.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"After following carefully your advice, and taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I am very anxious to send you my testimonial, that others may know their value and what you have done for me.

"As you know, I wrote you that my doctor said I must have an operation or I could not live. I then wrote you, telling you my ailments. I followed your advice and am entirely well. I can walk miles without an ache or a pain, and I owe my life to you and to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I wish every suffering woman would read this testimonial and realize the value of writing to you and your remedy."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 59th and E. Capitol Streets, Benning P. O., Washington, D. C.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women whose testimony is so unquestionable, you cannot well say, without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it is free and always helpful.

ANGRY IN OLD MADRID

MANY VICTIMS RECOVERED.

Soil on Which Reservoir Was Built Was Pronounced Bad—Rigid Investigation Will Be Made.

Madrid, Spain—It appears that underneath the foundations of the reservoir which gave way with disastrous results on Saturday were water pipes used to supply the palace and old Madrid. It is said that this was the cause of the subsidence, and not the surface of the ground which when tests were made sank only eleven millimetres. The vault was built of cement with iron girders, as were also the supporting columns. The first fall caused all the pillars to bend, and the end of the iron work to stretch, resulting in a general and uniform collapse. These explanations, however, cannot be considered as final.

Madrid newspapers publish assertions that the disaster has been foreseen, by engineers, as well as workmen.

It is now recalled that the bad condition of the soil on which the reservoir was constructed caused keen opposition, and numerous criticisms were made while the construction was being discussed in the cortes. Workmen who have been questioned say that they were compelled to build too rapidly with materials so defective that a disaster was bound to happen.

Many heart-rending incidents and painful scenes are reported. Ten of those who were rescued alive have gone mad

Crowds of workmen and women carrying black flags forced all theaters to close Saturday night.

Alphonso Uses Telephone.

King Alfonso had a telephone wire laid from the scene of the disaster to the palace, and by that means was kept constantly informed. The king again visited the hospitals here.

Some of the injured have died. One body was recovered from the ruins during the night, but none later. Seven hundred workmen are engaged in clearing the debris.

During the day students and working men paraded the streets collecting money for the families of victims of the disaster. The public contributed freely.

The governor of Madrid has prohibited a great popular demonstration which the workingmen proposed to organize, but he received the delegates of the workmen's association, who he informed that the street procession would be permitted under certain restrictions.

Police Stoned by Crowds.

Madrid, Spain.—Carrying black banners, five thousand workmen made a demonstration near the scene of Saturday's reservoir disaster. The police, on seizing the flags, were stoned by the crowd and several persons on both sides were seriously injured.

Charged With Arson.

Fort Worth, Tex.—Professor T. R. Dunlap, who has been vice president of Jarvis college at Thorpe Springs, Tex., has been arrested on a charge of arson. On the night of March 20th the main building of the college was burned.

No lives were lost, but neither was there any apparent reason for the fire. President Dunlap, who was formerly president of the college, was suspected, it is alleged, and his arrest followed. He is 52 years of age and has a family. President Jarvis, who lives in Fort Worth, declined to make a statement.

Dr. Sellers Robbed.

Birmingham, Ala.—Dr. H. C. Sellers, of West End, reported to the police Saturday night that he was held up and robbed of a watch and $5.20 about 8:30 o'clock near Hawkins' station, on the Powderly car line, by two young white men.

BETWEEN TWO FIRES

Togo Must Stay in Jap Waters. Fleet to Be Sent South to Furnish Aid.

BATTLE WILL NOW BE AVERTED.

Positions of Fleets Thought to Offer an Opportunity for Russia to Propose Peace Terms.

St. Petersburg.—There is reason to believe that Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's entrance into the China sea has been followed by orders for the cruisers Gromoboi, Rossia and Bogatyr, which have been ready for some time at Vladivostock, to put to sea. Whether it is the intention to send them south immediately, or to hold them in the vicinity of Vladivostock, is not known. Their appearance outside the roadstead of Vladivostock would constitute a potential threat against Admiral Togo's rear, which will compel the retention or dispatch of a number of heavy fighting ships to Japanese waters.

Thus Admiral Togo seems to be virtually placed between two fires.

The peace influence in the government urge that this favorable strategic position presents the psychological moment for offering officially the olive branch to Japan, reasoning that no matter now confident the Japanese government may be of Togo's victory, it cannot overlook the possibility of defeat, nor fail to appreciate the complete disaster which would follow a transfer of the mastery of the sea to Russia.

Interested in Avoiding Conflict.

With so much depending upon the issue, they argue both countries have mutual interests in avoiding an actual test, and it is not impossible therefore that a new move in the direction of peace may come just as the world expects to hear the call to quarters for the greatest naval battle of modern times. Certainly the spirits of the war party have been greatly raised by Rojestvensky's success in penetrating to the China sea; and the prospect of a naval battle, even with the odds against a Russian victory, which would change the entire complexion of the situation, has aroused something like a flash of enthusiasm in many Russian breasts.

Some naval officers express the opinion that Rojestvensky, having now safely navigated the straight, instead of sailing north to meet the Japanese, can afford to calmly await Vice Admiral Nebogatoff with his division of the squadron, who could arrive in about three weeks.

Long Dispatch from Singapore.

The Russian admiralty on Sunday received a long dispatch from Singapore, but no intimation as to its contents has been given to the newspapers. The papers of Sunday morning print Singapore dispatches without comment, the Sviet being the only exception.

This paper views the news from Rojestvenski as an auspicious prelude to a decisive battle, which may show that over Rojestvensky still shines the happy star which helped him when a lieutenant to save the fragile Vesta in an unequal conflict with a Turkish battleship. The Sviet expressed the hope that Rojestvensky is destined to turn the tables, and that even in case of defeat some of his vessels will be able to break through and reach the Japanese sea.

Fifty-one Ships in Squadron.

Singapore—Fifty-one ships of Admiral Rojestvensky's Second Pacific squadron passed here. The most important fighting vessels of the squadron, including the battleships Kniazsouvaroff, Alexander II, Borodino and Orel, with their complement of cruisers, torpedo boat destroyers, did not arrive, and their whereabouts are unknown.

The vessels which passed Singapore were the following:

Battleships Sissoi, Velliky and Olegy; cruisers Admiral Nakhimoff, Dimitri, Donskoi, Aurora, Izumrud, Jemtchug, Almaz, Russ, Anadyr, Furst Bismarck, Kaiserin Maria Theresa, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, Kaiser Friederich, Rion and seven torpedo boat destroyers, all sailing under the naval flag. Under the commercial flag were the volunteer steamers Voronez, Kieff, Yaroslav, Tamboff, Vladimir and Orel, the Russian Navigation company's steamers Meteor, Jupiter and Mercury, and the East Asiatic company's steamers Korea and Kaitai, the North Baltic company's steamer Kniaz Gortchakoff, one salvage ship and sixteen colliers.

A French steamer arrived here Sunday with a sailor belonging to the Admiral Nakhimoff, who fell overboard and was picked up at Malacca after having been twelve hours in the water.

South Carolina Peonage Case.

Charleston, S. C.—After being out all night, a Federal Court jury reported inability to reach a verdict in the peonage case involving Italian labor contractors who were charged with holding employes in involuntary servitude. Judge Breawley ordered a mistrial recorded and dismissed the jury. This is the first case in the south in which it was charged that white men were held as peons.

Little Girl Killed.

Cloyd's Landing, Ky.—A most deplorable tragedy is reported to have occurred at Kettle, in the southern part of the county. Miss Lena Scott, a 13-year-old girl, and her mother, Mrs. Susan Scott, were sawing a large log into wood with which to warm their little cabin. When the log was nearly in two it broke loose and one end of it rolled down hill over the girl, horribly mangling her body, from the effects of which she died almost instantly.

This sad and pathetic death is said to be indirectly due to the dissipation of the dead girl's father, Tom Scott, who committed suicide a few years ago after having dethroned his reason and wasted his property by the use of strong drink, thus leaving his wife and children in destitute circumstances.

Saloons Close on Sunday.

Kansas City—Saloons in both Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kans., and the suburbs of the latter city, as well as outlying saloons and wine gardens in Jackson county, Missouri, were closed Sunday. Last Sunday when the closing order went into effect in Kansas City, Mo., many made a pilgrimage across the line into Kansas, or to the many gardens in the country on the Missouri side. Sunday, however, the closing order took in all places, including hotels where liquor is sold.

American School in Mexico.

Mexico City—A company for the purpose of establishing an American school in Mexico has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000. Consul General James Russell was not able to secure the consent of the state department to serve as president of the association, so the association unanimously elected Paul Hudson as its president.

Mr. Hudson is business manager of the Mexican Herald. Mr. Vernon Backus, formerly of Toledo, O., was named as vice president, and the Rev. W. H. Sloan was elected second vice president. The association expects to open the school the coming autumn, simultaneously with the school openings in the United States.

Big Order for Coal.

Pittsburg, Pa.—The Pittsburg Coal Company will close a contract within a few days with the United States Steel Corporation to furnish the latter all the coal it may require during a period of twenty-five years at market price. The contract calls for all the coal the corporation may need after the product of its own mines are exhausted. The amount of coal necessary for the company to furnish will probably be between 6,000,000 and 10,000,000 bushels a year.

Notorious Anse White Captured.

Lexington, Ky.—After being hunted a week Anse White was captured by one of the five special bailiffs sent to Breathitt county. He is an important witness for the commonwealth in the cases of the Hargis brothers and Ed Callahan, who are to be tried here on the charge of complicity in the murder of James Cockrill at Jackson. His absence has caused three postponements of the trial. He will be brought here Monday and the cases will be called Tuesday.

Died From Injuries.

Gadsden, Ala.—Henry O'Barr, a miner employed in Hammond Brothers' ore mines, was run over by the Southern passenger train Friday night at 11 o'clock, cutting off both legs and crushing his right hand.

O'Barr had left the city Friday night for home, two miles above Gadsden. He evidently got sleepy and laid down on the track, when the train ran over him. He was found later by parties attracted by his groans. He was brought to Gadsden, but died shortly after one leg had been dressed. O'Barr was 43 years old. One leg was found on the track where it had been severed.

Has Narrow Escape from Death.

Florence, Ala.—Waverly Garner, the 15-year-old son of B. B. Garner, a prominent merchant of this city, had a miraculous escape from death. In the alley beside his father's store is a walled up hole fifteen feet deep, twenty feet long and just wide enough to admit the body of a horse. Young Garner was just beside this hole when the horse he was riding became frightened and backed in, carrying the boy with him. In some miraculous way he escaped injury, but the horse was so badly hurt that after being brought out with a block and tackle he was shot.

Killed and Robbed.

Birmingham, Ala.—W. T. Hill, a well-known and prosperous merchant of Smythe, five miles from Birmingham, was killed and robbed in a thicket near that place Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock. He was shot four times with a shotgun. Saturday was pay day in Smythe and Mr. Hill is known to have had considerable money with him.

Killed by Caving Earth.

Florence, Ala.—Lee Reed was killed by a caving bank near the Southern depot. Reed, with several others, was digging hard-pan for the city. Two tons of hard-pan fell on him, crushing his skull and killing him instantly.

New Electric Lights Turned On.

Attalla, Ala.—The electric lights were turned on Saturday night by the new water power plant and found to be highly satisfactory.

JAPS AGAIN PRESS NORTH

After Several Sharp Skirmishes Oyama Drives Russians On.

LOSSES HAVE BEEN HEAVY

Czar's Cavalry Has Been Engaged in the Defense—Japanese Forming a Chain of Supply Stations in Their Rear—Togo Reported—Riots in Baltic Provinces.

Gunshu Pass, Manchuria.—Rapidly increasing activity by the Japanese against points on the road to Kirin betrayed a movement in force in that direction on the part of at least one of Marshal Oyama's armies. The column using Kaiyuan as a base was operating vigorously over a long stretch of the military road northeast of that place, and has captured several points of minor but undoubted importance in the past few days. A half brigade of infantry with two squadrons of dragoons attacked the Russian garrison twenty-six miles northeast of Kaiyuan, in Aishenkao, and after a sharp fight, in which the losses on both sides were heavy in proportion to the numbers of troops engaged, the Japs drove the Russians northward.

Hot pursuit of the retiring Russians was made by the Japanese cavalry, but it ceased when the retreating forces had drawn six miles from Aishenkao. The dragoons retired on their infantry and the Japs hastened to fortify the position. It was evident Marshal Oyama intended establishing a chain of fortifications along the Kirin road, for he has pursued the same policy with every town and village northeast of Kaiyuan taken recently. The successful turning movement against the Russian left in the battle of Mienhuachieh at night gave the Mikado's troops a decided advantage in position. It appeared impracticable at this stage of the marshal's general move for General Linevitch to check him to any valuable extent.

There seemed to be little doubt Oyama had dispatched a cavalry column with flying artillery for a rapid movement north through Manchuria toward Tsitsihar. It was evident, too, the Marshal was massing large bodies of his troops for an important move, and it was the belief of military experts here that he intended to force the fighting on a much larger scale than at present in the immediate future. He has hampered the Russian commander terribly by the destruction of stores at Hussitai, Kaiyuan and Changtu, as well as at other places, and the Czar's soldiers have been suffering keenly from shortage of provisions and forage.

General Linevitch has been relying largely largely on his Cossack cavalry and horse batteries for defense of the army from the attacks of Japanese raiders. Mistchenko's Cossacks have been the most active command in the Russian army, and their losses of late have been severe. They engaged in a brisk skirmish with the advance guard of the Japanese centre, retiring with several killed and many wounded after drawing the enemy's heavier field artillery fire.

Togo's Fleet Off Mindanao.

Chicago, Ill.—A special to the Daily News from Batavia, Java, says: "Admiral Togo's fleet was sighted south of the island of Mindanao, the southernmost of the Philippine group."

Riots in Baltic Provinces.

St. Petersburg, Russia.—Reports of peasant uprisings in the Baltic provinces, especially in Lithuania and Courland, continue to be extremely disquieting. At Werra, where a regiment of Cossacks fired on a mob which had complete possession of the town, the rioters were dispersed, but the latter broke up into smaller bands, which terrorized the neighboring land owners. Similar incidents occurred at other places. The smaller bands drive off cattle, burn barns and fodder and help themselves to grain and provisions. Dispatches from dozens of places tell of panic produced by the depredations of roving bands of peasants.

FROM FACTORY TO PALACE.

J. G. Phelps Stokes to Take Poor Jewish Girl as Bride.

New York City.—The engagement of J. G. Phelps Stokes, member of an old and very wealthy New York family, to Miss Rose Harriet Pastor, a young Jewess, who until two weeks ago was a special writer on the Jewish Daily News, and prior to that worked in a Cleveland cigar factory, has been announced. The date for the wedding has not been definitely settled, but the event will take place some time in July.

On July 13, 1902, Miss Pastor was assigned by the city editor of the Jewish Daily News to interview Mr. Stokes, who was then as now a resident worker in the University Settlement in Rivington street.

Miss Pastor is twenty-five years old. She was born at Augustove, Russia. When twelve years of age she came to America with her parents and drifted to Cleveland, Ohio. It was after years of hardship and by dint of hard work she finally obtained a position on the journal referred to.

Her forthcoming marriage has created a great stir among her friends and the "Fifth Avenue" society circles.

Killed by Earthquake.

Czar Not at Review.

Contrary to his usual custom, the Czar failed to review the parade of the Horse Guards on the Feast of the Immaculate Conception in St. Petersburg, Russia, but extraordinary precautions were taken by the police to prevent an outbreak.

President Roosevelt arrived at San Antonio, Texas, to attend the Rough Riders' reunion, after speaking at Austin, Waco and other places in the State.

Then her skin started to dry up and it became so bad she could not shut her eyes to sleep. One month's treatment with Cuticura Soap and Ointment made a complete cure. Mrs. S. W. Marine, of Colorado Springs Began to Fear the Worst—Doan's Kidney Pills Saved Her.

Mrs. Sarah Marine, of 428 St. Urain street, Colorado Springs, Col., President of the Glen Eyrie Club, writes:

"I suffered for three years with severe backache. The doctors told me my kidneys were affected and prescribed medicines for me, but I found that it was only a waste of time and money to take them, and began to fear that I would never get well. A friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. Within a week after I began using them I was so much better that I decided to keep up the treatment, and when I had used a little over two boxes I was entirely well. STOP! WOMEN,
AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with woman's diseases covers a great many years.

You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man—besides a man does not understand—simply because he is a man.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation:

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Following we publish two letters from a woman who accepted this invitation. Note the result.

First letter.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For eight years I have suffered something terrible every month with my periods. The pains are excruciating and I can hardly stand them. My doctor says I have ovarian and womb trouble, and I must go through an operation if I want to get well. I do not want to submit to it if I can possibly help it. Please tell me what to do. I hope you can relieve me."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 59th and E. Capitol Sts., Benning P.O., Washington, D.C.

Second letter.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"After following carefully your advice, and taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I am very anxious to send you my testimonial, that others may know their value and what you have done for me.

"As you know, I wrote you that my doctor said I must have an operation or I could not live. I then wrote you, telling you my ailments; I followed your advice and am entirely well. I can walk miles without an ache or a pain, and I owe my life to you and to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I wish every suffering woman would read this testimonial and realize the value of writing to you and your remedy."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 59th and E. Capitol Streets, Benning P. O., Washington, D. C.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women whose testimony is so unquestionable, you cannot well say, without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it is free and always helpful.

Conviction Follows Trial

When buying loose coffee or anything your grocer happens to have in his bin, how do you know what you are getting? Some queer stories about coffee that is sold in bulk, could be told, if the people who handle it (grocers), cared to speak out.

Could any amount of mere talk have persuaded millions of housekeepers to use

Lion Coffee,

the leader of all package coffees for over a quarter of a century, if they had not found it superior to all other brands in

Purity, Strength, Flavor and Uniformity?

This popular success of LION COFFEE can be due only to inherent merit. There is no stronger proof of merit than continued and increasing popularity.

If the verdict of MILLIONS OF HOUSEKEEPERS does not convince you of the merits of LION COFFEE, it costs you but a trifle to buy a package. It is the easiest way to convince yourself, and to make you a PERMANENT PURCHASER.

Hints on Teaching a S. S. Class

It is impossible to teach a thing you do not know; then first of all master the lesson. To do this begin a week ahead before you have to teach it. Read the Scripture often and meditate on it day and night. Read good lesson helps on commentaries and study the connection the passage has with other parts of Scripture; but think over the lesson as taken from the Bible until you are perfectly familiar with every verse and meaning of every word. Be able to ask questions from any part without a lesson help. Teach by asking questions. Don't lecture the class. The best philosophers taught by asking questions. Jesus asked many questions to impress his teachings. A teacher can make a great show and leave a good impression of himself by lecturing the class, but unless a class is recruited by new material from Sunday to Sunday, lecturing will kill it. Only say enough to enable the scholars not familiar with lesson to answer, ask each scholar as you pass from one to the other a pointed personal question, calling the person's name and suffer no one to answer until a fair chance is given the one asked. Encourage the timid, if you have to help them answer. Kindly but firmly hold down the forward. Don't slight any one, and don't ask at random. If your scholars find that they can always have a chance to tell what they know about the lesson, they will try to learn something to tell. Encourage them to study at home. Be as particular with each one as if you believed his soul's salvation depended on the question; for it may be so. Stick to the lesson verse by verse, thought by thought. Make personal applications of every truth as it comes up, and if possible explain by illustration. Don't suffer an argument to come up; decide every question yourself and be prepared before you come to the class to do this. Let no member of your class know as much about the lesson as you do. Then if a difference of opinion arises push right along without arguing the question. Time is too precious to waste on argument; no one is ever convinced by it. Find out the spiritual condition of every member of your class, whether a Christian or not. It is presumed that they come to be taught about spiritual things; do not hesitate to ask if they are true followers of the Jesus you are teaching about. Urge every unconverted scholar personally to become a Christian; hold out the advantages as taught in the lesson of a Christian's life. Ask openly the sympathy and prayers of the Christian members of the class for the unconverted. Pray over the lesson; but for the light thrown over Scripture by the spirit of God, it would be dark; ask for light, no need of seeking a place to hide yourself; no need of asking the class to pray with you, God is near you, go to Him in the spirit before the lesson, during the lesson, you need the spirit's power, but never so much as when trying to teach. Be in earnest. If you have any doubt about the truth of the Bible, the plan of salvation, the power of Jesus to save, don't try to teach a Sunday school class. If you have faith in God, believing all things, hoping all things, then be in earnest and show you are in earnest. Don't worry about results, for you have nothing to do with results, God will attend to that. Teach as if you never expected to see your class again, it may be so.

S J HIGGINS,
Secretary Salem Sunday-school.

MIGHT AND WILL VS
GRIP GERMS MAGNIFIED 1000 TIMES

Let us illustrate vividly the difference in meaning of the words might and will—the child might live; the child will live. Might implies doubt; will means certainty. Might live means might die; will live means will not die.

These two words aptly illustrate the difference between Johnson's Tonic and the horde of commercial remedies on the market, and that vast horde of inert professional remedies which only bear the sanction of the High Priests of medicine.

USE JOHNSON'S TONIC
in a bad case of Grip and you will live!
Use inert, or commercial products, and you might live.

Johnson's Tonic quickly drives out every trace and taint of Grip. It is not simply good, it is supremely good—not good as anything, but better than everything—a genuine life-saver. Those who believe in it are safe—doubters are in danger and jeopardize their lives. Summed up, Johnson's Chill and Fever Tonic is the best Grip medicine on earth. This is the sober, serious, earnest truth.

NEW PATENT BRIDGE APPROVED.

We, the undersigned Commissioners of Chilton County, having officially inspected the bridge built for the County of Chilton over Yellowleaf Creek, ten miles east of Clanton, and duly accepted the same on behalf of the County, beg to say to all parties interested that the bridge, in our opinion, is one of the very best in this County, and we heartily recommend Joseph W. Headley, the Contractor and Patentee, to all who desire to build a neat, strong and sound bridge, his patented idea insuring a safe and firm bridge at a very moderate cost.

This 4th day of April 1905.

County Commissioners—W. H. Conway, Alex Glasscock, Moses Robinson, R. P. Kendrick.

To all whom it may concern:

It affords me much pleasure to state that the bridge built over Yellowleaf Creek for the County Commissioners of Chilton County is very satisfactory in all particulars. It was built for the County by Mr. Joseph W. Headley, under letters patent held by him, the chief features of which comprise a bridge of timber, braced with iron rods, giving great strength and stability to the structure. I consider it an economical bridge from the fact that the iron rods are practically everlasting, and any portion of the timber work can be removed and reinstated at any time. I consider it to be the best bridge at the cost I have ever seen.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

Clanton, April 3, 1905

Editor Banner—I wish to suggest through your paper that the S. C. A. hold a county meeting on the 4th day of July, 1905, and have in connection a double dinner—i.e., a basket picnic and an up to date barbecue. Everybody to be invited to come with their families. To have the best lecturers possible to address the people on the agricultural needs of the day and other subjects that are strictly non-political. Why can't we give Clanton the largest gathering of its life and yet make it profitable?

How pleasant would it be to assemble the people of old Chilton in one solid body all working for the advancement of education and agriculture. Hoping to hear from others on this subject at an early date, I am,

Respectfully yours.
J. N. DENNIS.

Thorsby, Ala., April 17th, 1905

Editor Banner: Please allow me space in your valuable paper to say a few words in regard to our singing convention, As Mulberry and Rockymount both asked the convention to meet with them the fifth Sunday, our President, R. D. Durham, instructed me to write the executive committee and ask them to find out as best they could which place the majority of the members of said convention desired to meet with at this time. Which I done, and, according to their report, the majority desire to meet at Rockymount. We trust that no one will become offended at this decision. We would pleadingly ask that Mulberry omit their singing for this time and meet with us at Rockymount. We feel that you are interested in the work and we desire to meet with you at a future date. Yours in the work,

JAMES FRANKLIN, Sec.

Rockymount.

There will be an all-day singing at this place the fifth Sunday in April, and the Chilton County Singing Convention has a special invitation to be present on this occasion. Come one, come all, and bring all the books you can get, (Singing for Joy) and all that can conveniently do so, bring well filled baskets and enjoy the day worshiping God and singing praise to His Holy Name.

JAMES FRANKLIN, Sec.

Maplesville.

Mr. Cal Foshee is to see his brother, Wheeler, at Belle Sumter.

Aunt Sibbey Jamison, who is a helpless invalid, is very grateful to her white friends who wrapped her in blankets while the fire from an adjoining house was burning.

Mr. Yates of Riderville was visiting Mrs. Ricketts' family the 16th. His visit brought most vividly to mind the legend of Cupid flying round with his quiver well filled with arrows.

It is a remarkable fact that a certain young merchantman is physically able to handle heavy merchandise cannot walk over the Bridge of Sighs without being led by his fair companion where they "sigh" in very happiness.

Some Maplesville friends enjoyed a visit from Mr. William Walker the 16th.

Rev. Davis will give us an Easter sermon the night of the 23d, when our gifted teacher, Miss Adair, will have the children to sing some appropriate songs. All are cordially invited to attend.

We regret to say Mr. Burwell Fosnee is suffering from a severe cold. Success to the Banner and all its readers this chilly weather.

BASE BALL

The young men interested in base ball held a meeting at the residence of Mrs. S. E. Johnson last Wednesday night, and elected officers for this season. Dr. N. S. Johnson and Mr. J. C. Dennis were elected as managers and Mr. G. C. Giles as captain. Individually, the team is not so strong as last season, a catcher, pitcher, first baseman and short stop will have to be developed before the first game can be played, but with about 25 players to pick from it is believed this will be easily accomplished. Dr. Johnson and Mr. Dennis have always backed base ball in Clanton, often going to a great deal of expense and trouble in order to help the local boys win out, and the players are delighted to have them at the head of the team. The players expressed their faith in Mr. Giles' ability as captain by unanimously electing him to that place, he takes great interest in base ball and it is believed that he will do much to produce the harmony and co-operation on the team that is so necessary in winning ball games.

The farmers are getting along nicely with their work, all are done planting corn and some have planted cotton.

Now boys, finish planting cotton and plow your corn and be ready and let us all get us a girl and go to Highland the fifth Sunday and have a big time at the singing.

We are glad to see Mrs. Rainwater, who has been quite sick, improving, hope she will soon be up again.

Mr. W. M. Barrett was in town Saturday.

Mr. Fonzey Culp of Billingsley was a visitor in our community last Sunday.

There will be an egg hunt near Mr. W. G. Burnetts' the fifth Saturday evening, everybody invited.

The entertainment at Mr. Joe Williams was enjoyed by all last Saturday night, we are anticipating another in the near future.

Mr. Robert Williamson of Birmingham was here Sunday.

The advice to young men by Mr. Gulledge, in last issue, should be carefully considered and practiced as much as possible. He is experienced along this line and gives some good advice.

The largest audience in a number of years was out Sunday night to hear Dr. Montague, who preached an eloquent sermon.

CLANTON, ALA.

All shall rise and call the mother of a large family blessed, said the President; but in nine cases out of ten she will not be here to hear, comments the New York Herald.

Religion is changing its form. It is not passing away. Any day there may be a transformation into something new and strange as wonderful as the metamorphosis of the butterfly.

If it were possible to tell why, in street dress, a man has in his clothing twenty pockets and a woman has none, we might perhaps be able to define the essential difference in temperament and character between the two.

There are more than 40,000 locomotives in use on the railways of the United States, states the New York Sun. The average cost of a locomotive is $15,000. This item of railway equipment represents a total investment of over $600,000,000, a colossal figure, when it is considered that the short life of a locomotive makes it perishable railroad property.

Some day the railway companies may run their own motor omnibuses on the present permanent way of their suburban lines, with the rails removed and the track laid with wood pavements, says the Car. I believe that many of us will live to see in the next twenty years some such plan come into operation. There will in that case be no rails to maintain, no signal posts or signalmen.

In all the published accounts of visits which European surgeons have made to the Japanese hospitals stress is laid on the immunity from the after effects of wounds which has resulted from the Japanese soldiers' care of the body, within and without, remarks the London Post. "The Japanese soldier," says one observer, "has been taught how to treat his inside, and consequently his inside is now treating him with equal consideration," and in addition to this, flesh wounds, owing to the national cleanliness, have healed very quickly.

The burning question of profit-sharing by employer and employe is illuminating discussed by John Bates Clark, Ph.D., LL.D., professor of political economy in Columbia University, in Harper's Magazine. Professor Clark points out the fact that profit-sharing has been a success thus far only in a limited number of instances, and he presents the reasons that appear to have caused the failure of labor's struggle for better conditions. Arbitration, he believes, holds out much future hope, for even in Australia and New Zealand its possibilities have not "been fully tested." Professor Clark thinks that the general problem to be solved is that of monopoly, with its attendant bad influences.

Jacob Riis is visiting the Pacific Coast for the first time and is enthusiastic over the way travel broadens a man's ideas. He would make the test for the franchise—not property or literacy, but knowledge of one's own country. He would not let a man into Congress, he says, till he had traveled North, South, East and West. Impracticable as this idea is, there is truth in it, remarks Pathfinder. "Provincial" is the adjective that describes the person whose experience is confined to his own narrow world. People can be very intellectual, and still be provincial and narrow; some of our most prominent public men are so, and this fact explains some of their actions. In politics, religion and many other departments of life, how many people there are who believe in the absolute infallibility of their own position and who not only do not know anything about the "other side," but do not want to know anything about it.

No age limit with reference to the emploment of children has been established in Delaware, Georgia, Idaho and Nevada. And yet these States are considered old enough to vote, comments the Newport News Times-Herald.

Statistics, recently compiled, comparing imports of artificial flowers and millinery goods into the United States from France, during 1904 and the previous year, show that in 1904 the imports were valued at $5,358,000, while in 1903 they were $8,859,600, a decrease during the year amounting to $3,501,600, states the Millinery Trade Review.

The West has led in the movement, now gaining mass and speed, against the power of money to make and beat the law, asserts the editor of Collier's Weekly.

GIGANTIC . ˙ . CAVERNS.

LARGE ENOUGH TO HOLD THE NAVY'S BIGGEST SHIP.

One of Them Is in Santa Cruz Island, Out in the Pacific—Few Persons Have Visited It, as the Owners Object to Trespassers.

EXTENDING far beneath the rocky hills of an island off the coast of California is a cave into which the battleship Oregon could enter for hundreds of feet and still have ample room above her masts and beneath her keel. How far a small boat could go no man knows.

This big cavern is in Santa Cruz Island, twenty-five miles out in the Pacific Ocean from Santa Barbara, says a writer in the Chicago Journal. Few persons visit the island. It is used to pasture sheep and its owners object to trespassers.

Once a year some Mexicans and Indians are sent over from the mainland to shear the flocks and care for the wool, and nearly every year a little party of men goes over from Santa Barbara to capture some of the seals which abound there, for shipment to zoos. A few fishermen, mostly Japanese, make occasional trips to fish or gather abalone shells. Beyond these visitors are very rare. That explains why the island and its wonders are not better known.

About the island are remarkable submarine gardens. The water is so clear that when it is quiet and the sun is bright, as it usually is, the bottom can be seen at a depth of fifty feet or more. The pictures that one sees looking down from the boat are magnificent beyond description.

Where the water is deep one looks down upon what seems like a forest of rare and curious trees of varying colors swaying to and fro, among which are gliding beautiful and strange fishes of great variety. Brilliant gold perch, emerald fishes, bass, albicore, yellow tail and many other varieties varying in size from the tiny minnow to fish three or four feet in length, dart about or lie lazily flapping their fins among the branches. The sun shining down into this transparent water casts shadows from all these moving things, producing a kaleidoscopic effect that is often almost bewildering.

Beneath the water along the rocky shores other equally splendid but different pictures may be seen. Here marine plants of most brilliant and variegated colors, scarlet, purple, blue, green, brown, cling to the rocks, while mingled with the flowers are to be seen great lazy lobsters, star fishes, abalones, sea cucumbers and occasionally an octopus. It is doubtful whether at any other place in the world, not excepting even Santa Catalina Island, can views of such marvellous beauty be obtained.

But nature did not lavish all her wonders on the marine life of Santa Cruz. Even more marvellous are the wonders that she has wrought in the domain of geology.

Although no craters have been found on the island, it is evidently of volcanic origin. It is one of the projecting summits of a nearly submerged range of mountains.

The shores are irregular and indented with a number of small bays, but generally bold. Either by some great upheaval or by the wearing of the waters for many ages, great caverns extending far into the bowels of the island have been formed. It is said that there are not fewer than fifty of these caves.

One of them is about a mile from Lady's Harbor. The entrance is through an arc perhaps twelve feet high and scarcely ten feet wide. Not far from the entrance the cave widens and verges into a great, silent cavern, the walls of which present a variety of splendid and beautiful colors.

Valdez's cave is so called because it was once, according to local tradition, at least, the headquarters of a pirate and smuggler named Valdez. Long before the place was a favorite resort for Indians. It is rumored, too, that in recent years smugglers have made use of this cave as a storehouse and stopping place for their transportation business. Chinamen have also sometimes found it a convenient place while seeking to evade the exclusion law.

It does not need tradition or romance, however, to give interest to the place. Just above the surface of the water there is an opening cut far back into the rock, thus forming a broad, sheltered retreat, with a good landing place in front. From this spacious shelter in the rock a great archway or tunnel extends entirely through a projecting point of rock to the opposite side, where it opens out again upon the sea beside great, rough walls. Fishermen often stay at this cave, sleeping on the smooth, sandy slope of its floor. No tent or other covering is needed.

But most wonderful of all the wonders of Santa Cruz is the Painted Cave. No one has yet fully explored this cave and its extent is unknown. The opening is about 300 feet wide at the water line, and 150 feet high. A line dropped at the entrance showed the water to be about seventy feet deep. Within the cave is ample room for the biggest battleship in the American navy to lie at rest, with plenty of space above her masts and with thirty feet of water below her keel. The size of the entrance permits the light to enter so that not only the walls of the cave but objects in the clear water as well may be seen.

It is the coloring of the walls that has given the name to the cave. In variety and splendor the colors here exceed those of any of the smaller caves that we visited. They are wonderfully beautiful. The walls are like vast mosaics of gray, brown, green, yellow, red and other colors, varnished with moisture. The effect is such that one feels almost as if he were in some great cathedral with frescoed walls and stained-glass windows.

Looking down into the clear, greentinted water another wonderland presents itself. When all is still a multitude of forms of sea life is seen in the depths below.

Here, again, the brilliant golden perch and many other varieties of fishes of various sizes and hues are disporting themselves, sometimes darting through the water, sometimes lying at rest, and sometimes moving about cautiously. Sometimes an ugly shark passes leisurely along and finally disappears among seaweed.

A moment later a seal passes by en route from the other waters to the inner recesses of the cave. A little further in starfish are seen on the bottom. The herds of seals that make their home in the deep retreats of the great cavern now and again set up a howling, and the echo and reverberation make a noise like thunder or an earthquake.

How far these caverns extend, or what others there may be beyond them no one knows. Up to this point light enough comes from the entrance to make artificial light unnecessary. But inside the deeper caverns one plunges soon into profound darkness.

Uncle John's Preference.

A number of stories are related concerning a quaint old man, "Uncle John" Berry, of Holderness. One in particular is connected with a "series" of meetings at the Holderness Meeting House, conducted by a pastor from a neighboring town. The preacher was accompanied by members of his congregation, who assisted in the services. Among these was a Mr. and Mrs. Smith. "Uncle John" took much interest in the meetings, and, having an eye for feminine charms, became especially interested in Mrs. Smith, whose singing seemed to lend a potent charm to the services.

One night the pastor, having no conveyance, rode to Holderness with Mr. Smith, the latter's wife staying at home. On arriving at the meeting house Smith was met by a man who owed him a small sum, and who, in paying it, said: "Here's fifty cents for bringing the minister."

"Uncle John" overheard the conversation, and was not slow in showing his astonishment. "Did he give you a half-dollar for bringing the parson?" he asked.

"Didn't you hear what he said?" replied Smith.

"Well," said the old man, "I'd ruther gin you fifty cents to fetch up your wife."—Boston Herald.

Might Have Got It.

A young fellow in a country town in the north is a somewhat disreputable character, and is almost continually begging from his friends. In the latter connection he tells an amusing story, although it is at his own expense. He went up to an old schoolfellow, and said:

"Look here, H——, will you be so kind as to give me the loan of a sovereign? I'll pay you back in a few days."

The schoolfellow smiled faintly, and replied:

"Well, if you had asked me in a candid and straightforward manner for the loan of a sovereign I would have lent you the money, but asking me in the way you do gives me reason for distrusting you."

The borrower looked the astonishment he felt, and said:

"I don't quite understand you."

"You asked me if I would be so kind as to lend you a sovereign."

"Yes," said the borrower; "what then?"

"Well, if you had been candid you would have said to me: 'Look here, H——, be such an ignominious ass, such a hopeless idiot, as to lend me a sovereign,' and with words like these you might have got it."—London Tit-Bits.

Found Ten Cents, Paid a Dollar.

C. S. Peach, of North Adams, has received a letter from New Hampshire, where he lived many years ago, and in it was enclosed a dollar bill.

The letter is not dated or signed, but the writer says that when he was a child he visited Mr. Peach's room, where he boarded, and found ten cents there, which he kept. The matter has troubled him of late, and so he sought out Mr. Peach's address and forwarded the dollar in order to restore the original sum of ten cents with interest.

Mr. Peach has no idea who the person is that sent the letter and money.—New Haven Palladium.

Our Candy in England.

A deputation of confectioners, mineral water dealers, glass bottle manufacturers and allied and subsidiary trades of Great Britain recently waited upon the Chancellor of the Exchequer to urge the discontinuance of the tax on sugar, because "it was exercising most disastrous effects upon the industries represented." A Mr. Edwards, the first speaker, said that America was sending to Great Britain 150,000 tons of confectionery per month, with no duty on it.—Consular Reports.

THE PULPIT.

A SCHOLARLY SUNDAY SERMON BY THE REV. F. F. SHANNON.

Subject: The Thousandfold Man.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Sunday morning, in Grace M. E. Church, the pastor, the Rev. Frederick F. Shannon, had for his subject "The Thousandfold Man." The text was from Joshua xxiii:10: "One man of you shall chase a thousand: for the Lord your God, He it is that fighteth for you, as He spake unto you." Mr. Shannon said:

World building is not so interesting as man building. Some philosophers held that tasks are interesting in proportion as they are difficult to perform. If this be good logic, then swinging worlds into space must take secondary rank to building a man in time. We have no intimation that God had any trouble stringing planets along the path of His power. Yet the centuries unite in the verdict that God has had much trouble in producing the divine style of manhood. Therefore, it is safe to conclude that God never undertook a vaster plan than to build a man. Worlds play out His purposes in the harmony of gravitation. They spell out His plans in the law of obedience. But man ofttimes thwarts those purposes and destroys those plans by setting his own will over against the will of God. Thus he wanders, a kind of lost human pleiad, through the space called time, always and ever coming to himself, but never wholly arrived.

Yet man is God's human world—greater than any star-world twinkling in space, because he thinks, loves, feels and wills. Now, some men exercise these functions more largely than their fellows. Then we label them with that ancient degree called greatness. After conferring the degree, we spend the rest of our lives musing over what such men did when they got together. They may have been great thinkers, great fighters, great talkers, great writers, or great friends. But in the last analysis, the greatness men adore is the adoration great men have given to God. This is why we never tire of studying the friendship of Moses and Joshua. They are two links in the golden chain which moors this old world to the throne of God. Napoleon said that history is a fable about which men are agreed. Rather say history is a stream flowing out from the Eternal Heart. Sitting along its shores, like deathless sentinels, are the men God raised up for handing His name and truth down the ages.

Our text asks for a consideration of the thousandfold man, and the reason for his multiplied power. "One man of you shall chase a thousand!" More startling words could hardly knock at the door of the human intellect. They are too vast in their outranging meaning to be easily comprehended. Naturally enough, the mind asks for a second consideration of them. But a second reading fails to rob them of their significance. Really big things don't grow less on second sight. Like St. Peter's, their bigness only helps the mind expand to a more capable appreciation of their true dimensions. It is so with men, and it is so with the great objects in nature. Just so a great sentence like this, pregnant with large thought, is not stripped of its treasure by a second or third reading. It is a thought centre round which the mind may revolve with increasing profit.

Strictly speaking, then, what is meant by one man chasing a thousand? Does it mean that one man, by his physical prowess, can drive a thousand men before him? You wonder at the folly of such a question. Still some people are so fond of measuring life and men by the yardstick of physical bulk that its absurdity may mock them into a better view. Physical things never did run smoothly on a spiritual track; and they never will, because it is impossible. The thousandfold man, according to Joshua, is the man in league with God, housing God's purposes and co-operating with God's plans, awaiting God's signals and answering God's voices, watching God's strides in history and hearing God's truth, dropped in golden numbers, from "the harp of God's eternal years." He is the man with his feet on the earth, his head among the stars, and his heart located in heaven, because heaven is located in his heart. He is the son of yesterday, the man of to-day, the heir of to-morrow—grateful for yesterday's goodness, inspired by to-day's blessings, and rejoicing in to-morrow's hopes. And he is all this because he is in league with God, and knows it; because he is in love with God, and feels it; because he is living in obedience to God, and wills it.

Moreover, the thousandfold man is the man God waits for. It has ever been "one man of you" who has opened the largest doors of opportunity and achievement in the history of the world. One man and God—they are absolutely unconquerable. Grasping the tangled threads of history, they have tied them into one solid knot of divine purpose. And that purpose for ever stands the pledge of a better world and a nobler race. Do you wonder that even God can afford to wait for such a man? Then let your wonder give away before this mighty fact: God has to wait, so long as the world remains constituted as it is, for a man to come forward and say, "Here am I—use me." God answers back, "I have to use you, because I haven't anything else to use." When a man comes out like that from the littleness of self into the largeness of God, that moment he stands forth in God's universe a thousandfold man! Chasing a thousand becomes the business of his life. Chasing a thousand temptations, chasing a thousand sins, chasing a thousand civic wrongs, chasing a thousand social evils! But does he stop there? Never! Chasing a thousand lost men toward God, chasing them into fellowship with Jesus Christ, chasing them up from their haunts of sin toward the splendor touched peaks of a pure and radiant manhood! That is the mission of the thousandfold man. And in these days the mission is crying as with the lips of God. Where is the man?

Furthermore, if history teaches one lesson it is this—God has His waits and pauses. And for what? Why, for some man to lay hold of His purposes and carry them out. God has been waiting, and still waits, for men in the everyday walks of life to be true to Him. O, men, that means you and that means me! God calls a few men to carry on great reforms. He calls all men to carry on a reform within their own lives. And it is the man who will do this in God's way, and in the spirit of Jesus Christ, that becomes the thousandfold man. He is the determining factor in this world's progress toward universal righteousness. He holds the balance of power which will usher in the millennial dawn. Gone forever the man fearing spirit. Gone forever that stolid indifference. Gone forever that fast shut pocketbook. He lives for God. He talks for God. He gives for God.

Consider, also, one of the two reasons for the multiplied power of the thousandfold man: "For the Lord your God, He it is that fighteth for you." Any man is braver for the battle if he knows that God is his champion. He may have been ready to show the white flag, leave the field in defeat, steal away in disgrace. Then let him lay vital hold of the truth that God is fighting for him. Instantly every ingredient of cowardice will vanish from his nature. Something akin to omnipotence begins to play along the nerve of his arm. The soul's battlesongs of victory began to swell the rising harmonies in his heart. Championed by God, he knows that, though the worlds may fall, he shall not meet with defeat. Camping along the path of his destiny is the Sleepless General, who holds the stars in His hand, and the interests of His child in His heart. What magnificent music for the soul to hear, as we go out to life's battle: "For the Lord your God, He it is that fighteth for you."

Let us give the truth its proper setting in our lives. We hear so much of men fighting God's battles. And we rejoice that this is so. But let not the lesser truth obscure the greater—that God is fighting our battles. And do we not sometimes get so busy fighting God's battles that we forget that God is fighting our battles, which is of much more importance. It may be that God could get along without our reinforcements, after all. But if God's troops fail to come up, a spiritual Waterloo awaits us for certain. Let us make room for this neglected truth in our creed. It will make us better soldiers of the cross. It is one of the silent forces which builds the thousandfold man.

But some man says, "How does God fight for me? I want to know." God is not in the habit of doing things as man does them. Therefore, it is safe to conclude that God does not fight for us after the manner of men. His methods are not man's methods, and His weapons are not carnal weapons. Briefly, here are a few battlefields where God has fought for you: On the Judean plains shepherds are watching their flocks by night. Suddenly the heavens are musical with choirs of singing angels. Then one great golden star, as if driven out of its course by the finger of God to signal the shepherds, trembles above the manger. Coming to the spot, they find the babe wrapped in swadling clothes. That was the beginning of God's greatest battle for you—and the battlefield was a manger! But that Babe increased in stature and wisdom. He reached the highest type of manhood known to man or God. Great as a teacher, He was greater as a man. Great as a man, He was greater as a God, for in Him the fullness of Godhead made its home. For the first time, man was taught by a Life how to live his own life. God fought for you in the incarnation of His Son. God fought for you in the mysterious agony of Gethsemane. God fought for you in the blood-red suffering of Calvary. God fought for you in the darkness of the tomb. God fought for you on Mount Olivet, when Christ was taken up, the glory of His ascending body throwing a shining splendor over the track yours will go. In countless ways, the Lord your God, He it is that fighteth for you! He fights for you in the blessings He rains upon you day by day. In your home, in your business, in your society, in every privilege you enjoy, God fights for you. God's battlefields are smokeless, but they are victorious!

We discover the second reason for the multiplied power of the thousandfold man in the last clause of my text: "As He spake unto you." It is Joshua's way of telling us that God always keeps His engagements. "O," says some one, "he is talking about God's promises now—and they are old." Yes, let us admit the promises are old. But in growing old they have kept their youth. What sturdy youngsters they are! We can't afford to rule them out on account of age. Most of the best things in this world are old. The sun is old, the stars are old the ocean is old, the mountain is old, love is old, music is old, father is old, mother is old, our dearest friends are old. But we are not ashamed of them on that account. So God's promises are old. But they have grown old so gracefully that we ought to be proud to walk life's pathway, keeping step to their mighty music. What would we do without them? Certainly this world would be a very lonely place, if the old promises didn't now and then steal into our hearts and hush their fears. A man's spiritual exchequer is worth something when he knows it is backed by promises as changeless as God Himself. "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." That promise alone is enough to make a man a spiritual millionaire. But, remember there are over 33,000 in God's Word that sing the same tune. The thousandfold man makes much of the old promises, because they have made much of him.

To Have Telephone Exchange.

Jacksonville, Ala.—J. L. Brown, manager of the Anniston office of the Southern Bell Telephone exchange, was in this city and plans were perfected by which Jacksonville will have a local telephone office at an early date.

Thus far Manager Brown has succeeded in placing thirty phones, and as soon as he secures a few more orders, he says, he will return to this city to put in the fixtures at the Jacksonville office.

Anniston Troops Inspected.

Anniston, Ala.—The Calhoun Rifles were inspected in their armory at Oxford Thursday night by Capt. J. C. Goodfellow, U. S. A., and Gen. W. W. Brandon, adjutant-general of the state. The inspection was most creditable, and the inspection officers paid the company, officers and men, high compliments on their good showing.

Sheriff of Choctaw.

To Regulate Sale of Morphine.

Union Springs, Ala.—The city council has passed an ordinance to regulate the sale of cocaine, morphine and other kindred drugs. This became necessary since so many negroes are becoming addicted to the habit.

Furnace Relighted.

Pratt City, Ala.—No. 3 furnace of the Republic Iron and Steel Company at Thomas was relighted and the first run of iron made. This plant has been closed down for the past several weeks, during which time the furnace has been relined from bottom to top and repaired in many ways.

All three of the furnaces and the three batteries of coke ovens are in blast at Thomas, and the indications are that all former records will be broken during the coming months.

The only handicap that the company is now confronted with at Thomas is the scarcity of labor. It is stated that the company is in need of about 200 men to work around the furnaces, coke

Prosperity in Athens.

Athens, Ala.—Athens is soon to have a large and profitable industry. The Hollon-Blow Stave Company has secured a splendid location here and will at once erect a $20,000 stave finishing mill, which will give a large number of laborers employment at good wages.

A cracker and candy factory will soon be added to the other industries of Athens, and will be managed by Mr. Henry Christensen.

Moonshiners Captured.

Scottsboro, Ala.—A big wildcat raid was made Friday, and three mountain moonshiners captured red-handed and landed in the county jail. Messrs. Rolfe, deputy collector, and Henry Arnold, a deputy United States marshal, received information several days ago that a large moonshine still was in operation. They found a large fifty-gallon copper wildcat still in full blast and caught Bill Lyman, John Lyman and Bill Peak red-handed.

The latter were nervy and in the place of trying to make their escape showed fight. One of the Lymans made for his shot gun, a Colt's 45-calibre, but it hung somehow in the scabbard and Deputy Marshal Henry Arnold got the drop on him, and after disarming him took charge of his pistol.

Besides capturing the fifty-gallon still in operation, they also got a brand new still of sixty-gallon capacity, just set up preparatory to making a run, together with fifty gallons of beer, mash and singlings and sixteen gallons of the pure "mountain dew."

The copper worm and the two stills were taken in charge by the revenue officers, together with the prisoners.

The prisoners are all young men and do not look the desperate men that the mountain "wildcatter" usually are.

Cement Bluffs Sold.

Montgomery, Ala.—The governor has sold to C. S. Batchelder of Salt Lake City and J. W. McIntyre of St. Louis rights to mine cement at Oven's Bluff forty miles above Mobile, on the Alabama river on lands owned by the state for $15,000.

Several capitalists of the west have gone into the company which is to mine cement by a new process with a capital of one million dollars. The mines will be located on deep water to Mobile all the year round and it will be possible to float the product into Mobile for very little freight. It has always been hard to get a uniform cement, but with the new process and the Alabama product, it will be easy. Several Alabama men are in the scheme. The idea will be to get to work in time to catch the Panama trade. Part of the money to the state has been paid over.

Another Act Smashed.

Montgomery, Ala.—The supreme court of Alabama has declared unconstitutional the act of the last legislature attempting to repeal an act of the legislature of 1899 which established the county court of Morgan county. The case in which the decision was rendered was that of the state of Alabama ex rel. Massey Wilson, attorney-general, vs. D. W. Speake, judge of the Eighth judicial circuit.

A mandamus was issued directed to Judge Speake compelling him to restore to the docket of the county court a certain case in question.

Huntsville, Ala.—The New Market Banking and Trust Company has been incorporated under the laws of Alabama to engage in the banking business at New Market, Ala. The officers W. E. Rodgers, J. W. Cochran, T. C. Yarbrough, vice-president, and T. C. Wesson, cashier. The capital stock is $10,000, and is held by a majority of the leading business men of the village. W. F. Yarbrough, J. M. An Old Lady Injured.

Centerville, Ala.—Friday Mrs. Rachael Owens, one of the oldest citizens of this section, sustained severe injuries from a fall. On account of her advanced age it was at first thought that her wounds were fatal, but the physician now says that she will recover.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—The contract has been let with J. T. Heflin to bore a well at the intersection of Cotton and Greensboro streets, between the court house and the McLester Hotel, and the work will be commenced within a few days. The contract calls for a well eight inches in diameter and 1,000 feet deep, if necessary to go that far.

Governor Refuses Bond Bids.

Montgomery, Ala.—Governor Jelks has refused to accept any of the bids opened April 4th for the issue of $3,000,000 of refunding bonds to take the place of bonds coming due within the next fifteen months. He says that the number of bids at prices large enough to justify the state in selling were too small to be counted as covering the situation and he has, therefore, decided to sell none at all.

WAS SPIRITED BIDDING

For the Scout Cruisers of the Fast Type That are to be Built—New and Unique.

TO COST MILLION AND A HALF.

Turbine Machinery May Be Installed, the Department Stipulating That It Is to Be Allowed.

Washington, D. C.—The lowest bids for three scout cruisers opened at the navy department Saturday were as follows:

Fore River Shipbuilding company, Quincy, Mass., one at $1,629,000, or two at $1,557,000 each.

Union Iron Works, one at $1,689,000, or two at $1,666,000 each.

The bids are for the construction of the cruisers under the department's plans with reciprocating engines. The lowest bids submitted for cruisers

Fore River Shipbuilding company, two at $1,468,000 each.

Bath Iron Works, two at $1,573,000 each.

Bidding Was Spirited.

The liveliest interest was manifested in the reading of the bids. The large reception room of the Secretary of the Navy held one of the largest crowds that has recently attended the opening of proposals for ship construction. Seven concerns entered into the competition. Under the law two ships can be awarded to any one concern. The Newport News Shipbuilding company having contracts for the building of two vessels under the act authorizing the construction of the scout cruisers and other ships, consequently was not a bidder.

The bids were under two classes, one for construction under department plans and one proposing the installation of turbine engines. The Maryland Steel company, of Sparrows Point, Md., proposed to build one under either class for $1,875,000. The New York Shipbuilding company, Camden, N. J., proposed to build one cruiser, department's plans, for $1,824,000; with twin-screw turbine engines, $1,830,000, or with three screw turbine for $1,866,000.

William Cramp & Sons, ship and engine builders, proposed to build two cruisers, department plans, at $1,750,000 each, or two with turbine engines, three or four screws, at $1,825,000 each.

The Bath Iron Works submitted a number of proposals, offering to build two cruisers, department plans, at $1,729,000 each. For turbine installation they submitted prices ranging from two ships at $1,573,000 each to one ship at $1,680,000.

The Union Iron Works proposed to build one cruiser, department plans, for $1,689,000, or two at $1,666,000 each.

The Fore River Shipbuilding company, Quincy, Mass., submitted a number of bids, offering to build one cruiser, department plans, for $1,629,000, or two at $1,557,000 each. For ships with turbine installation, their prices ranged from $1,468,000 on basis that they be awarded two ships, to $1,572,000 for one.

New and Unique Type.

With the completion of these ships there will be added to the navy a new and unique type of vessel. In the opinion of naval officers the war in the far east has demonstrated the great value of scout ships, and since these are planned to have a speed of 24 knots and great steaming radius, they are expected to prove important additions to the naval service.

Their building also opens up the possibility for the introduction of turbine machinery, as the department in the advertisement for bids announced that alternative proposals for the installation of turbine engines would receive the department's consideration.

The scout ships are to be 420 feet long with a breadth of 46 feet 8 inches, and a draft of 16 feet 9 1-2 inches. The displacement on speed trial is to be not more than 3,750 tons. Provision is made for a total coal-carrying capacity of about 1,250 tons.

Each will be provided with a battery of twelve 3-inch rapid-fire guns, and two submerged torpedo tubes.

Girl's Body Found.

Little Falls, Minn.—The dead body of Annie Rintop was found in the woods about four miles from here. It was entirely stripped of clothing, a handkerchief was tightly twisted about her neck, the head was a mass of bruises, and there were evidences of outrage.

Two negroes were seen in the vicinity of where the body was found, and search is being made for them. If caught it is feared a lynching will follow. A posse has been organized and the country is being scoured in search of them.

Outgrowth of Machinists' Strike.

Topeka, Kans.—It develops that the strike of the Santa Fe boilermakers is an outgrowth of a strike begun over a year ago by machinists of the road. The strike was called in the interest of the machinists. If the Santa Fe does not yield to this, a strike of the blacksmiths and carbuilders will be called, according to J. D. Buckalew, who is in charge of the machinists' strike.

Tragedy in Georgia.

Covington, Ga.—News was received here of a tragedy near Broughton, a station on the Central railroad, 15 miles east of Covington, at a late hour Saturday night.

Kelsey Cranford, white, 22 years of age, accompanied by his younger brother, Walter, while walking along the public road near the home of John Clack, was fired upon by four unknown negroes. Twelve shots were fired. The elder Cranford was killed outright, falling in the middle of the road within a few feet of his assailants. Walter Cranford received the contents of one load of buckshot in his left arm. He outran the assassins and gave the alarm.

Young Cranford was not able to identify the murderers, but suspicion points to a family of negroes with whom the Cranfords had been at outs over a plantation road. Much excitement prevails in the community.

At 10 o'clock Sunday no arrest had been made, the arrival of officers from Madison being awaited.

Loan Floated.

Athens, Ala.—A loan of ten thousand dollars has been floated for the improvement of the Athens Female college. W. L. and I. C. Vaughan, two of the county's wealthy citizens, taking the bonds. Work will begin in a few days to improve the historic building, where so many of the women of the south have been educated.

This is the second chartered institution for the higher education of women in the world, its charter dating back nearly seventy-five years, and thousands of women have been educated here. It is now enjoying a very fine patronage and is managed for the second time in its history by a woman president, Miss Mary N. Moore, one of the brighest women in the south, a native Alabamian.

Race to Coal Fields.

Birmingham, Ala.—The Louisville and Nashville railroad and the Southern railway will engage in a merry chase to enter Walker county and get to the heart of the coal bearing lands which have recently been purchased by the Pratt Consolidated Coal company and which are to be developed on a large scale shortly.

It is stated that the L. and N. will extend its Mineral Springs branch, building two bridges across the Warrior river. The Southern will extend the Ensley Southern from Short Creek in Jefferson county to Parrish in Walker county, connecting with the North Alabama railroad, which would give a new line to Memphis from Birmingham. The Pratt Consolidated Coal Company will mine a couple of million tons of coal annually when the Walker county property is developed.

Bad Burglar Caught.

Birmingham, Ala.—Detectives have arrested a young negro giving his name as Elijah Jones, alias Williams, on suspicion of being the perpetrator of a dozen or more burglaries which have taken place in Birmingham during the past four months. The negro was "sweated" thoroughly and made a full confession. He has told the officers the different places that be robbed. He claims Florida as his home and states that he stopped en route to Birmingham in Atlanta and other places, where he committed a few burglaries. He claims that he never carried a weapon and at no time was overcome with fear.

At the residence of J. B. Cobbs a number of diamond rings, watches and other jewelry, valued at $1,200, were stolen. The negro states that he sold the jewelry, being paid $1.50 each for rings and $3 and $4 for watches. He claims that at one place he found a lot of beer and honey and that he drank so much beer that he almost became intoxicated. He afterwards went to sleep on some church steps and in the morning made good his escape. The detectives have already recovered some of the stolen goods and are now on the track of more. It is believed that the better portion of the booty will be returned to the victims.

Does Not Violate Law.

Danville, Ark.—In a speech here to a large gathering of farmers and business men advocating a reduction of cotton acreage, Governor Jefferson Davis combatted the idea that the organization of farmers with a view to securing better prices for cotton was in violation of the anti-trust law of Arkansas. If it were held otherwise by the courts, the governor declared, he would pardon all farmers prosecuted and convicted under the new act.

Young Beveridge Stabs Him.

Mataon, Ill.—Thomas Beveridge, 23 years of age, nephew of United States Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, seriously stabbed James Datewood. The fight followed a quarrel in a saloon. While attempting to escape arrest Beveridge was shot twice by an officer. Both injured men are in the hospital, but will recover. Warrants have been issued for their arrest.

Sentence was suspended pending good behavior. The offense was committed September 30th last when the three women broke the windows of a wholesale liquor house. The women voluntarily surrendered some time ago.

Only Two Persons Hurt.

Vicksburg, Miss.—Only two persons were injured in the derailment of north-bound passenger train No. 13 on the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley railroad near Hardee station. The injured are James DeCoureney, the express messenger, and Adelaide Smith, a negress.

The ditching of the train was caused by the opening of a switch leading to a spur track. The train was running forty-eight miles an hour at the time. Both engineer and fireman escaped.

Terrific Explosion Near Knoxville.

Knoxville, Tenn.—At a late hour Thursday night a heavy detonation was heard here, accompanied by a shaking of houses, that suggested an earthquake. Half an acre of ground was torn up where the explosive was stored. It is not known if any lives were lost.

THE Russian and Jap fleets have not come together yet, but when they do there'll be something doing.

IT is well to attract new industries to us, but it is also good business to patronize those already established. It is no inducement to a prospective settler to learn that home enterprise gets no encouragement from our own people; he is apt to think that that may prove his fate also, and he had better not risk it. Every prosperous industry in a place is an encouragement to others to come in too.

Southern Cotton Association Notes

The Southern Cotton Association is not a class proposition. It is big enough to take every man in who wants to help us win the fight. There is no conflict between us in any line of business in the South and there never will be

We realized that we had this surplus of 2,000,000 bales and that the Southern people should take care of it, and that to do so it would have to be held. Our plan is to get up a stock company of $10,000,000. But we are going to wait until May 1 before we begin this. We can't tell until then whether the acreage is going to be reduced, and unless it is reduced we won't ask you to hold a bale five minutes.

Another solution of the cotton problem is to get broader markets for our cotton. There are 500,000,000 people in Asia who ought to be wearing our cotton on their backs. Get the world to consuming 25,000,000 instead of 10,000,000 bales.

The farmer who doesn't reduce his acreage is an enemy to his country as well as to himself. I think that that is one time the American farmer is going to live up to what he says. They are going to reduce their acreage. They have held their cotton since Dec. 3, and the value of the surplus they have held has increased $25,000,000. This fact has not only surprised the buyers and speculators, but it has received their commendation.

At this stage of the game it is more important that farmers should know how to sell their products than how to produce them. Scientific production has been taught, and scientific selling must be taught.

One of the finest sights I have seen in a good while was a bunch of white face steers kicking up their heels in a Brazos valley alfalfa field.

For hay, alfalfa should be cut when the blooms begin to appear in quantities, and saved just as clover hay should be. Care should be taken to save the leaves, as they are the most nutritious part of the plant. The meadow should be mowed just as often as it makes sufficient growth to begin to bloom, which will be from three to four times per year. It should not be mowed too late in the fall, but a good coat of tops should be left to protect the plant during the winter.

The problem of efficient labor on the farm is made more simple by the adoption of a system of crop rotation. The farmer is enabled thereby to keep labor employed throughout the entire year, thus avoiding the necessity for short time service. Such a provision also allows the farmer to keep his animals employed throughout the year instead of allowing them to stand idle a considerable portion of the time You should join an alfalfa association, so as to be able to secure the best information on that important subject.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, D. C., April 17, 1905

While the President of the United States is receiving the plaudits of the people of Texas, and of the Southwest generally, a tribute to the position he occupies and to the man of warm, red blood, the kind of man who is admired down in that section of our country, he is having a few bricks thrown at him here in the capital of the nation by some of the thinking men of congress who have remained in the city. No man is saying anything unkind of the personality of the President, but of his acts as President in the recent past. I spoke in my letter of last week of the Panama canal business and of the action of the President in the Santo Domingo matter as things that are being criticised by the men who make the laws of the country. Some of the Senators who think that congress has a right to feel aggrieved with the President, point out his action in the Santo Domingo case, which was taken in the face of vigerous odposition and the expressed wish of the Senate. Some of those talking go so far as to say if the President keeps up this kind of progress he will loose many friends and admirers, as the sentiment of the country is opposed to the creating of offices with large salaries by arbitrary authority of any kind, even if that authority is the President.

One of his latest acts is the appointment of C. E. Grunsky, one of the former members of the isthmian canal commission, as engineer of the irrigation and reclamation service, at a salary of $10,000 a year, and it is attracting attention and much criticism among the men of congress who are here. They cannot understand his authority in making such an appointment and his right to fix a salary of this kind. Congress has not made a provision for an office of the sort to which Mr. Grumsby has been appointed. In fact, congress failed to pass a bill to create an office of any kind. Such a bill was introduced by Senator Hansbrough, but congress refused to pass the bill or make an appropriation for such a salary for a place of the kind, yet, the President creates the very office which congress did not see fit to make and arbritarily establishes a salary. Another instance of his unauthorized action, his illegal action, was the appointment of a board of architects to confer with the heads of departments about the location of public buildings in Washington in accordance with the plans adopted by the park commission a number of years ago. Although there was no provision of law for such a board, the President named five or six well known architects as a board and directed that no building should be located without consultation with them.

The President announced that the board would serve without compensation. Some one pointed out a law which prevents any appointee of the President from serving free. Thereupon the President issued an order directing that the members of the board be paid $10 a day and expenses out of the appropriation for the buildings to be erected. This was again referred to as a worse violation of the law than the other, inasmuch as the laws of the land provide that no money can be paid out except upon specific appropriation by congress. Attory-General Moody informed the President that his amendment fixing salaries was illegal, and the President proceeded to annul the whole thing and have a statement made that the architects would consult him as individuals and friends, thereby accomplishing his purpose, C. A. EDWARDS.

mankind would have to invent milk. Milk is Nature's emulsion—butter put in shape for digestion. Cod liver oil is extremely nourishing, but it has to be emulsified before we can digest it.

Scott's Emulsion

combines the best oil with the valuable hypophosphites so that it is easy to digest and does far more good than the oil alone could. That makes Scott's Emulsion the most strengthening, nourishing food-medicine in the world.

For the Children

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. You know it makes the blood pure and rich, and builds up the general health in every way.

The children cannot possibly have good health unless the bowels are in proper condition. A sluggish liver gives a coated tongue, bad breath, constipated bowels. Correct all these by giving small laxative doses of Ayer's Pills. All vegetable, sugar-coated.

Providence.

As I havn't heard or seen any news in the Banner of Providence I will write a few words.

First of all, many thanks are ascending the heavens for the progressive Sunday school at this place, It is with great sympathy and for some special porpose that the Holy Father hath given our old fathers and mothers together with the youthful characters who are as gay as the rose of Spring to meet each Sabbath morn as a Sunday school group, and most of them with almost perfect lessons, ready to discuss questions that are asked in regard to our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. As the Lord gave his life for us as His sheep, we should give our best time in thanks to Him. We should not take Sunday school as an organization or as public speaking, but regard it as a special service to our Creator. It seems to me that if I was a boy out of Sunday school I would be as a lost sheep of the forest wandering to and fro into strange lands or in indecent company. I have been a Sunday school boy quite awhile, and expect to remain so. In conclusion, I am glad to say our old Sunday school Vice President and family are enjoying very good health at their new home. As ever yours,

SUNDAY SCHOOL BOY.

A Dandy for Burns.

Dr. Bergin, Pana, Ill., writes: "I have used Ballard's Snow Liniment; always recommended it to my friends, as I am confident there is no better made. 'It is a dandy for burns.' Those who live on farms are especially liable to many accidental cuts, burns, bruises, which heal rapidly when Ballard's Snow Liniment is applied. It should always be kept in the house for cases of emergency." 25c, 50c and $1.00 Sold by Upchurch Drug co.

Burned To Death by a Wire.

Huntsville, Ala.—A horrible spectacle, that of a man astride an electric wire slowly burning to death beyond the reach of assistance, was witnessed by hundreds of people on Jefferson street Saturday.

Will Gray, a lineman employed by the Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, was climbing a telephone pole when he came in contact with an electric wire charged with about 2,500 volts. The man lost his hold and fell across the wire. His body lodged there and was ablaze with electricity fully five minutes before falling to the ground and crushing his skull. Gray was picked up in an unconscious condition and died in a short time.

It is not believed he ever knew what happened. One leg was cooked, the other was burned to the bone by the wire and other parts of his body were burned fearfully. Gray came here from Scottsboro.

Short of Men.

Bessemer, Ala.—It is understood that Little Belle furnace at Robertstown is ready to be lighted, and the company is only waiting to increase their force somewhat to start operation.

Labor has been scarce here for some time, and the company has been unable to obtain sufficient hands to operate the Little Belle furnace. It is stated that the same trouble is in the way of the operation of Nos. 1 and 2, at least one of which is now ready to light, and has been for some little time past.

A number of foreign laborers have been brought to this city recently, and it is thought many more will be imported, in case the companies are not able to obtain native labor. A squad of about fifteen Russians and Poles were started to work in the Bessemer rolling mill a few days ago.

Williams Captured.

Huntsville, Ala.—John Williams, the white farmer of Cullman county, who is charged with the murder of Senator Robert L. Hipp, of Cullman, was brought here from Marshall county by his captors and lodged in the Madison county jail to escape a mob.

S. A. Harper, who captured Williams has known the prisoner about twenty years. He states that while driving a log wagon through the woods near Eddy, in Marshall county, on Friday, Williams appeared on the side of the road and told him he would surrender if Harper would protect him from the posse that was after him. Williams told him he was charged with Senator Hipp's murder and would be certainly lynched if taken back to Cullman.

Harper agreed to do what he could and drove to the house of J. G. Narrell, who also agreed to help get Williams out of the country. The posse was close on Williams' trail at this time, and fearing trouble, the three men went to the house of G. L. Hall, a cousin of Senator Hipp, and induced him to join the party.

Shooting on Sand Mountain.

Gadsden, Ala.—The news of a shooting affair on Sand mountain, near Bailey's chapel, a few days ago, has just reached Gadsden. Jeff Underwood and Alex Davis, both members of good families, were drinking and engaged in a row in which Underwood was shot and dangerously wounded by Davis. Underwood was shot twice in the body and there is said to be no chance for his recovery. No facts leading up to the shooting could be learned.

Repenting at Leisure.

Dadeville, Ala.—The wife of W. B. Partridge and his brother, who ran off to Columbus, Ga., and were married, were placed in jail at Dadeville tonight. Mrs. Partridge left her husband and two children. The parties live at Jackson's Gap on the Central railroad.

Officials in Trouble.

Birmingham, Ala.—John A. Turner, mayor, and Joseph M. Crolley, marshal of Adamsville, a mining town 13 miles west of Birmingham, and Julian Linton, a negro, were arrested on coroner's warrants charging them with complicity in the murder of Isaac Weaver, a negro, two weeks ago. All three of the men were placed in the county jail without bond.

At the same time Weaver was assassinated Mayor Turner served on the coroner's jury which held an inquest over the remains and Marshal Crolley served all the warrants on witnesses who testified before the jury.

Tried to Kill Wife.

Girard, Ala.—George Washington, a negro, of the Oswichee neighborhood in this county, formerly a mail carrier, is in jail charged with the attempted assassination of his wife by shooting at her at night with a shot gun. A few of the shots struck her, but did not do serious injury. In a previous difficulty between the two in a field she got the best of her husband, striking him with a hoe, and he left, vowing vengeance.

Soda Tank Explodes—Much Damage.

Blocton, Ala.—Saturday a soda water tank exploded in the drug store of Greene Brothers, West Blocton, which did a considerable damage. Baboon Bernard, a 15-year-old negro boy who was helping Mr. Coleman Parker charge the tank, had his left arm broken in two places by the explosion. The tank tore in two somewhere near the center and one part blew up, breaking several pieces of ceiling, while the other piece tore a hole in the floor. Coleman Parker, who was standing within a few feet of the tank at the time of the accident, was blown a distance of four feet into a window, but he escaped with slight bruises.

Mr. Maurice Letaw was filling a prescription seven feet from the tank and the force of the explosion hurled him to the floor. He escaped, however, without injury.

The negro boy received surgical attention at once. The accident caused great excitement and within a few minutes after there were nearly a hundred curious people at the wreck.

Minister Held Up.

Birmingham, Ala.—Rev. F. W. Ambler, the Episcopalian minister at Woodlawn, was held up by a lone highwayman about 10:30 o'clock Saturday night while returning home from the city, where he attended a meeting at St. Mary's-on-the-Highland, preaching a sermon there on "Honesty." Just as the minister was about to enter his own premises the highwayman presented a revolver and ordered him to give up his valuables. The minister began preaching to the highwayman, telling him of his sermon just an hour previous. Scripture was quoted to the highwayman and he was advised to lead a better life. With tears in his eyes, the highwayman begged the minister not to say another word, but he did not return a watch and some money taken.

C. C. Moore, a citizen of Woodlawn, was also held up last night by a lone highwayman and relieved of a watch and some money.

Preacher Elopes.

Gadsden, Ala.—From Marshall county comes news of the elopement of a Missionary Baptist preacher and school teacher with the 17-year-old sister of his wife.

The Rev. W. T. Dyer, of Reedbrake, accompanied by his sister-in-law, Miss Eddy Adams, aged 17 years, secured a horse and buggy at Guntersville to carry them to Cullman county, on their way to El Paso, Tex., for which place they were headed.

It seems that several years ago Dyer eloped with his wife. A sister of Mrs. Dyer lived with them, and an infatuation sprang up between the two, which culminated in the second elopement.

Dyer wrote a note to the girl's father that he would marry her. The heart-broken wife and a little child are left to shift for themselves.

Again Indicted.

Athens, Ala.—For the second time within a year John Morris, Sr., one of the wealthy farmers of this county, is in jail on an indictment of murder in the first degree. He was implicated in the killing of B. F. Grisham, and for this was indicted by the grand jury for murder in the first degree. He was tried and convicted of murder in the second degree and given ten years. This was under the Lusk act and that court being declared unconstitutional, he was given another chance. The next grand jury failed to indict him, and he has been at liberty since, but the grand jury just adjourned found a bill charging murder in the first degree. The old man was arrested and sent to jail.

Birmingham, Ala.—Sidney Duckiet, a miner, was arrested charged with making threats and preventing Frank Schultz "from engaging in a lawful occupation of working as a laborer at a place where he saw fit." Duckiet was released on a bond signed by W. R. Fairley and Adam Powe.

Senator Hipp's Slayer in Jail.

Montgomery, Ala.—The office of the governor has been notified that John Williams, the slayer of State Senator R. L. Hipp in Cullman county, has been captured and is now in jail at Huntsville. Solicitor Almon and a deputy sheriff have gone to Huntsville to make sure the right man has been taken in.

Special Term to Try Carpenter.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—Judge Henry B. Foster will issue an order today for a special term of the grand jury to try John Carpenter, the negro who last week is said to have killed Stewart Champion while seated at his home holding in his arms his young baby. This is the first time a special term has ever been called in this county to give a speedy trial for such a deed.

Senator Morgan Improving.

Washington, D. C.—Senator Morgan, of Alabama, continues to improve and has accomplished a good deal of work in the past week. The senator has not yet been able to leave his room, but sits up two or three hours daily.

Brakeman Killed.

Birmingham, Ala.—W. S. Morris, a brakeman on the Southern railway, received injuries this morning by falling between the cars which caused his death while being operated on in an infirmary in the city. He was riding on a box car when the preceding car jumped the track and threw him on the track. He lived formerly in Tuscaloosa, to which point his body was taken tonight for burial.

NOW IN COLORADO.

The President is Nearing the Haunts of Big Game—Grand Greeting.

PRESENTED WITH BIG STICK.

A Novel Gift is Received From the School Children of Pueblo—Reception Was Enthusiastic.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—Fully 10,000 people assembled at the Santa Fe station to welcome the President. Promptly at 7:30 o'clock the Presidential train pulled into the station. Wild cheering greeted the President as he stepped out on the platform of the car. The President responded to a call for a speech, spoke briefly.

Promptly at 9:30 the train pulled out of the station, the President standing bare-headed on the rear platform waving his handkerchief. The train is due to arrive at Newcastle tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock.

Presented With Big Stick.

Pueblo, Colo.—Pueblo citizens to the number of 5,000 greeted President Roosevelt upon his arrival at the union station here. When the special was first sighted a mighty cheer went up, and this continued until President Roosevelt appeared on the rear platform and began to address the crowd. His speech was interrupted by the presentation of a "big stick," the gift of the school children of the city. The President spoke briefly.

Promptly at 5:50 the special pulled out over the Colorado and Southern for Colorado Springs. The trip since crossing the Colorado line has been uneventful, except that at every station great crowds gathered to greet the chief executive of the nation.

The passenger yards had been cleared, and the President's special was handled without a hitch. A special committee of citizens headed by Mayor Brown greeted the nation's executive, and welcomed him to the city.

Warmly Greeted at Trinidad.

Trinidad, Colo.—Seven thousand persons, including 2,000 school children, waving small flags, greeted President Roosevelt here with cheers. The depot platform had been roped off and fifty special officers appointed to keep the crowd in order. A number of rough riders and other veterans acted as a guard of honor to the President.

The President was introduced by Mayor H. B. Brown as "the greatest man in the world" and talked for five minutes, warmly greeting the old soldiers. Turning to the children, the President told them how glad he was to see them, "for," he said, "you know I am as great on children as I am on irrigation, and you know what my views are on irrigation."

The remainder of his talk was on the subject of irrigation.

The pulling out of his train interrupted the President's speech. As the train moved away, the crowd broke through the ropes, climbing on to his car, and he shook hands with as many as was possible. The train left Trinidad at 1:45 after a stop of only seven minutes. The President's train was preceded by a pilot train and track walkers were placed at all curves and other precautions were taken by the Colorado and Southern Railroad Company to insure the President's safety.

Special in No Danger.

Trinidad, Colo.—Many rumors were afloat that President Roosevelt's train narrowly escaped being wrecked near Walsenberg from cars on a siding getting away, and running onto the main track, where they were derailed. As near as could be learned a box car got off the track near Walsenberg some time after the special passed. At no time was the President's special in any danger.

Big Deal in Oil.

Beaumont, Tex.—The largest deal in oil ever made in the south took place here, Messrs. Carns, Bass and Benckenstein, of Beaumont, purchasing from Messrs. Laertel and Cafferty, of Franklin, 1,750,000 barrels of oil in storage at Jennings. The sale gives the purchasers a total of three million barrels in storage at Jennings.

Springfield, Ill.—Ex-Governor Yates has been retained with ex-Governor Black, of New York, to assist in the defense of Caleb Powers, who will be placed on trial again at Georgetown, Ky., the first Monday in May. Powers is charged with murdering Governor Goebel.

Indiana Bank Robbery.

Cherubasco, Ind.—Three unknown robbers robbed the private bank of Oscar Gandy & Co. of $8,840. Mrs. Gandy, wife of the banker, was shot in the neck by one of the two guards stationed outside, but will recover.

Earthquake at Keokuk.

Keokuk, Ia.—A slight earthquake shock was felt in and near Keokuk. Buildings were shaken, but no serious damage was done.

John Paul Jones' Body Found.

Paris, France.—The remarkable search which Ambassador Porter has conducted for the body of Paul Jones has been crowned with success by the discovery of the body and its identification by the highest French medical experts as unquestionably that of the famous American admiral, who founded the American navy.

Ambassador Porter cabled to Washington tonight announcing the successful result of his long and difficult search. The body is in a good state of preservation considering that the interment took place over a hundred years ago.

General Porter has conducted the search for the last five years and when Congress recently took no action on the President's recommendation for the expenses incident to the search the Ambassador continued the search with laborers at his own expense. A large force of workmen had been engaged night and day tunneling and cross tunneling the old St. Louis cemetery. This constituted a huge operation embracing nearly a block covered with buildings and requiring a system of subterranean mining.

Wants Immigration South.

Washington, D. C.—Dr. Adolphe Danziger, United States consul at Aberdeen, Scotland, and until some months ago consul at Madrid, Spain, is preparing a bill for introduction in the coming session of congress, having the warm sanction of prominent Hebrews all over the country providing that for the next year there shall be no alien steerage immigration to any of the eastern ports of the United States, but permitting as much immigration as the steamships can bring when the immigrants are landed in the south or west.

It is stated that the measure will have the approval of practically all the Hebrews of the country, as well as of many thoughtful men of all races now engaged in studying the rush of immigrants to this country. Serious consideration has been given to the subject.

Dr. Danziger is a Hebrew himself and is well known in the literary world. He points out that the congestion of poverty stricken aliens in New York is growing worse each year. The Hebrew immigrant lands in New York and finds his fellow countrymen engaged in peddling and earning a precarious living of that sort, and he follows suit of sheer force of example. It is claimed that he is turned toward other parts of the country he will follow the examples he sees there and become a farmer, mechanic or laborer.

Officers' Changes.

Washington, D. C.—An order has been issued from the war department directing change in the stations and duties of general officers as follows: Major General Samuel S. Sumner, temporarily relieved from the command of the Southwestern division and assigned to the command of the Pacific division during the temporary absence of Major General Arthur MacArthur; Brigadier General Frank D. Baldwin, from the department of the Colorado to the Southwestern division during the temporary absence of Major General Sumner; Brigadier General Charles A. Buchanan to the Philippine division; Brigadier General Tasker H. Bliss to Manila, P. I., for duty pending assignment to the command of a department.

May Be Lynching.

Nashville, Tenn.—A dispatch from Verona, Tenn., says that Isom Boyd, a half-witted negro, met Allen Reynolds a prominent young white man, in the road, took his gun from him and shot the top of his head off. The negro was arrested and placed in jail. A mob soon gathered and told the sheriff if the negro was not tried at once he would be lynched at once. Judge Richardson has the matter under advisement and the mob is now waiting on his decision.

Died as He Left Train.

South McAlester, I. T.—Frank Willman, business manager of the Gordon Theatre at Memphis, Tenn., died at the station here immediately after he stepped from a train. He was en route to San Antonio, Tex., where he hoped to regain his health.

Struck a Mine in Hampton Roads.

Norfolk, Va.—The Philadelphia tug Peerless came into port and reported having struck a torpedo mine in Hampton Roads without damage to the boat. Investigation developed the fact that the government is now engaged in the secret laying of mines in Hampton Roads, preparatory to the coming army and navy maneuvers in June.

Woman Kills Woman.

Cripple Creek, Colo.—Mrs. S. W. Widler, the wife of a newspaper man shot and killed Mrs. H. Douglass, of Colorado Springs, in the National hotel. Jealousy is supposed to be the cause.

Indictments Against Standard Oil.

Frankfort, Ky.—About 400 indictments charging the Standard Oil Company with failure to take out peddler's license as required by the Kentucky statutes will be returned by the Franklin county grand jury. Similar indictments have been returned recently in several counties of the state.

Mexico City.—The gold standard will go into effect without postponement in May.

ANNA AND THE RATTLER

By Mrs. Cornell.

A VOICE rose wrathfully in the back yard. "Wee-lie! What iss this? You fell in the pig trough? Come here, that I beat you! Come here, I say!"

Willie did not accept the invitation. A shrill whimpering was his sole response. Twelve-year-old Anna stepped to the kitchen door, peeping round the sash. "Pa's scolding Willie," she announced to her mother.

The storm continued to rage in the back yard.

"Shust look at your clothes! Go now! To the creek wit' you! Come not in the house until you are cleaned. Ach!"

Ex-Sea-Captain Schulz, now prune grower in the mountain boundary west of Santa Clara Valley, turned in at the kitchen door.

"I don't know what to do wit' the boy. Go, mine Anna, get the lad a clean shirt, and take it down to the creek."

On Anna's return from the bathing-pool she said softly to her mother: "Willie isn't at the creek. Perhaps he has run off."

"O child, don't bother me about Willie! He'll run back again fast enough, he's that scared of the mountains and the trees."

Anna was conscious of an undercurrent of sympathy with the forlorn waif her father had brought from the city some months before. The very love and awe with which the mountains filled her imaginative soul gave her comprehension of the fear with which they imbued the dull-witted offspring of San Francisco gutters.

Willie did not return all that long August day. The captain and his American wife spread and dipped prunes busily on the hot south slope. The box-laden wagon rolled by at intervals. Household duties went helter-skelter under Anna's management. At 6 o'clock Mrs. Schulz, hot and tired, wakened her lazy little daughter, outstretched beneath the hollyhocks and poppies in the small front garden.

"For gracious sake, Anna! Hurry! You've not done the dinner dishes!"

"Have the cows come?" Anna asked, resourcefully.

"Land! If I hadn't forgotten about Willie! Come—hurry! You'll have to go for the cows. I'll wash the dishes."

Anna felt quite in the mood to go for the cows. It meant an hour or so of patting barefooted and bareheaded along the soft dust of the road, or over the slippery brown grass of the mountain pastures, with tall pines on every hand, and a gold-blue sky above.

She mused about the missing Willie. Had he carried out his occasional threat to run away?

"The road iss open, go when you like," was her father's one reply to such futile outbursts. But they well knew the road was not open to Willie. The six mountain miles intervening between their ranch and the station formed an impassable barrier to his timorous soul.

"I guess he's afraid of the bigness of things," Anna concluded. "And he's got no call to run away. Papa threatens him, but he's never laid hands on him yet. I s'pose it's on account of the bath he ran away."

There was no Willie at the bathing-pool. The checked gingham shirt fluttered lonesomely where she had that morning placed it.

Some minutes later, shuffling deliciously among the dappled leaves of a hill trail, she sprang aside in quick dismay.

"Goodness!" What had seemed to be a bunch of dry leaves and grass coiled swiftly, with the rattling whir that goes straight to the fear centre of the human heart. In a flash Anna's hands were full of rocks. The first article in every California mountain child's education is to destroy every rattlesnake that comes in sight. Anna dodged the first strike of the snake, and before he could get nearer she began a fusillade of such efficiency that the reptile enemy sought retreat.

Then Anna was privileged to witness a strange thing—a very strange thing; so unusual, in fact, that when reported to the head of the zoological department of the State University that conservative gentleman would have given the story little credence had it not been for the unimpeachable authority of a celebrated naturalist, who had reported it as occasionally occurring among the large, much-to-be-dreaded species of the Eastern States—the Crotalus horridus, or banded rattler.

To Anna's unutterable surprise, the snake turned for refuge to a near-by oak tree. Perhaps he came against it unintentionally, as the rattlesnake sees badly by daylight. At any rate, he reared his head against it much as he would have done in ascending the side of a sunny boulder in the early days of his chilled awakening from his winter sleep.

He writhed spirally but slowly up its rough trunk, which seemed from eighteen to twenty inches in circumference. When the rocks ceased flying he would halt, evidently not half-liking his task, to wave his bluntly triangular head in the direction where the moving shadow indicated to his blurred vision the position of his enemy. But on the resumption of active hostilities he would begin again his painful ascent.

"Ow-w-w-ch!" sounded a howl from above.

Looking up at the cry, Anna discerned among the clustering leaves of the black oak a huddled figure, with Wasp Expert.

Studying wasps for scientific purposes is the recreation of Miss Wilhelmina Enteman, who is at present investigating the conditions of their life in California. Though biological investigations have had her attention for only five years, Miss Enteman has studied wasps from childhood, and has traveled extensively in making her investigations. She thinks them a much maligned insect, and finds them vastly interesting, insisting that they are as industrious as bees and as wise as ants. Wasps possess the sharpest eyes of any insect, she has ascertained, and while possessed of a vast amount of curiosity, they are no more quarrelsome than other little animals. During the years of her study, Miss Enteman has very seldom been stung while handling the fiery little midgets, though moving them from tiny wire cages and feeding them on the tip of her finger.

HONEST CONFESSION.

A Doctor's Talk on Food.

There are no fairer set of men on earth than the doctors, and when they find they have been in error they are usually apt to make honest and manly confession of the fact.

A case in point is that of an eminent practitioner, one of the good old school, who lives in Texas. His plain, unvarnished tale needs no dressing up:

"I had always had an intense prejudice, which I can now see was unwarrantable and unreasonable, against all muchly advertised foods. Hence, I never read a line of the many 'ads.' of Grape-Nuts, nor tested the food till last winter.

"While in Corpus Christi for my health, and visiting my youngest son, who has four of the ruddiest, healthiest little boys I ever saw, I ate my first dish of Grape-Nuts food for supper with my little grandsons. I became exceedingly fond of it and have eaten a package of it every week since, and find it a delicious, refreshing and strengthening food, leaving no ill effects whatever, causing no eructations (with which I was formerly much troubled), no sense of fullness, nausea, nor distress of stomach in any way.

"There is no other food that agrees with me so well, or sits as lightly or pleasantly upon my stomach as this does. I am stronger and more active since I began the use of Grape-Nuts than I have been for ten years, and am no longer troubled with nausea and indigestion." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"The Good Old Times."

According to one of the old English chronicles, royalty, in 1234, had nothing for a bed but a stack of straw. Even in the days of Queen Elizabeth at least half of the population of London slept on boards. Blocks of wood served as pillows. The sleeping chambers of the queen were daily strewn with fresh rushes. Henry VI, immediately on arising, tossed off a cup of wine. Tea, coffee and chocolate were, of course, unheard of at that time. Sugar was to be had only in drug stores, and then by the ounce. These were the good old times.

The Crown Prince's Salary.

In the British civil service estimates for 1905-06 is an item for $100,000, "as a grant to the Prince and Princess of Wales in aid of the expenses they may incur on the occasion of their visit to India. The expense of the voyage to and from India is provided for in the navy estimates. The Prince of Wales draws annually from British taxpayers $100,000. The Princess receives $50,000 a year.

ALL BROKEN DOWN.

No Sleep—No Appetite—Just a Continual Backache.

Joseph McCauley, of 144 Sholto street, Chicago, Sachem of Tecumseh Lodge, says: "Two years ago my health was completely broken down. My back ached and was so lame that at times I was hardly able to dress myself. I lost my appetite and was unable to sleep. There seemed to be no relief until I took Doan's Kidney Pills. Four boxes of this remedy effected a complete and permanent cure. If suffering humanity knew the value of Doan's Kidney Pills they would use nothing else, as it is the only positive cure I know."

MISS JULIA MARLOWE

Heartily Approves of Peruna For the Nerves.

IN a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., Miss Julia Marlowe, of New York City, writes the following:

"I am glad to write my endorsement of the great remedy, Peruna, as a nerve tonic. I do so most heartily."—Julia Marlowe.

Nervousness is very common among women. This condition is due to anemic nerve centres. The nerve centres are the reservoirs of nervous vitality. These centres become bloodless for want of proper nutrition.

This is especially true in the spring season. Every spring a host of invalids are produced as the direct result of weak nerves.

This can be easily obviated by using Peruna. Peruna strikes at the root of the difficulty by correcting the digestion.

Digestion furnishes nutrition for the nerve centres. Properly digested food furnishes these reservoirs of life with vitality which leads to strong, steady nerves and thus nourishes life.

Peruna is in great favor among women, especially those who have vocations that are trying to the nerves.

Buy a bottle of Peruna to-day. If you do not receive all the benefits from Peruna that you expected, write to Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

NO TONGUE CAN TELL

How I Suffered With Itching and Bleeding Eczema Until Cured by Cuticura.

"No tongue can tell how I suffered for five years with a terribly painful, itching and bleeding eczema, my body and face being covered with sores. Never in my life did I experience such awful suffering, and I longed for death, which I felt was near. I had tried doctors and medicines without success, but my mother insisted that I try Cuticura. I felt better after the first bath with Cuticura Soap, and one application of Cuticura Ointment, and was soon entirely well. (Signed) Mrs. A. Etson, Bellevue, Mich."

Large Families.

About Rheumatism

There are few diseases that inflict more torture than rheumatism and there is probably no disease for which such a varied and useless lot of remedies have been suggested. To say that it can be cured is, therefore, a bold statement to make, but Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which enjoys an extensive sale, has met with great success in the treatment of this disease. One application of Pain Balm will relieve the pain, and hundreds of sufferers have testified to permanent cures by its use. Why suffer when Pain Balm affords such quick relief and costs but a trifle? Mr. F. A. G. is giving the boys some good advice. It looks like he has given up the farmers and merchants of Chilton. I guess he considers them too hard cases for him to handle. Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kauble, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

MIGHT AND WILL VS "GRIP"

Let us illustrate vividly the difference in meaning of the words might and will—the child might live; the child will live. Might implies doubt; will means certainty. Might live means might die; will live means will not die.

These two words aptly illustrate the difference between Johnson's Tonic and the horde of commercial remedies on the market, and that vast horde of inert professional remedies which only bear the sanction of the High Priests of medicine.

USE JOHNSON'S TONIC
in a bad case of Grip and you will live!
Use inert, or commercial products, and you might live.

Johnson's Tonic quickly drives out every trace and taint of Grip. It is not simply good, it is supremely good—not good as anything, but better than everything—a genuine life-saver. Those who believe in it are safe—disbelievers are in danger and jeopardize their lives. Summed up, Johnson's Chill and Fever Tonic is the best Grip medicine on earth. This is the sober, serious, earnest truth.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

The more Magazines there are, the more Indispensable is The Review of Reviews

"Indispensable." "The one magazine I feel I must take." "The world under a field-glass." "An education in public affairs and current literature."—these are some of the phrases one hears from noted people who read the Review of Reviews. The more magazines there are, the more necessary is the Review of Reviews, because it brings together the best that is in all the most important monthlies of the world. Such is the flood of periodical literature that nowadays people say that the only way to keep up with it is to read the Review of Reviews. Entirely over and above this reviewing section, it has more original matter and illustrations than most magazines, and the most timely and important articles printed in any monthly.

Probably the most useful section of all is Dr. Albert Shaw's illustrated "Progress of the World," where public events and issues are authoritatively and lucidly explained in every issue. Many a subscriber writes, "This department alone is worth more than the price of the magazine." The unique cartoon department, depicting current history in caricature, is another favorite. The Review of Reviews covers five continents, and yet is American, first and foremost.

Men in public life, the members of Congress, professional men, and the great captains of industry who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided that it is "indispensable."

NEW PATENT BRIDGE APPROVED

We, the undersigned Commissioners of Chilton County, having officially inspected the bridge built for the County of Chilton over Yellowleaf Creek, ten miles east of Clanton, and duly accepted the same on behalf of the County, beg to say to all parties interested that the bridge, in our opinion, is one of the very best in this County, and we heartily recommend Joseph W. Headley, the Contractor and Patentee, to all who desire to build a neat, strong and sound bridge, his patented idea insuring a safe and firm bridge at a very moderate cost.

This 4th day of April 1905.

County Commissioners—W. H. Conway, Alex Glasscock, Moses Robinson, R. P. Kendrick.

To all whom it may concern:

It affords me much pleasure to state that the bridge built over Yellowleaf Creek for the County Commissioners of Chilton County is very satisfactory in all particulars. It was built for the County by Mr. Joseph W. Headley, under letters patent held by him, the chief features of which comprise a bridge of timber, braced with iron rods, giving great strength and stability to the structure. I consider it an economical bridge from the fact that the iron rods are practically everlasting, and any portion of the timber work can be removed and reinstated at any time. I consider it to be the best bridge at the cost I have ever seen.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

Jemison, April 24, 1905

Editor Banner—Please let me say a few words in your paper about a cotton seed oil mill, guano mixer and warehouse all combined. I think it would be a good investment for Chilton county. It will cost about $17,000 to equip it; there is good dividend to the stockholders, then it builds up the community in which it is built. First, it encourages stock raising and stock feeding for profit. Second, it builds a market for cotton seed and also country produce; we need to build home markets, a start of this kind would bring a yarn mill. Now, farmers, you could take stock and pay it in seed. Every farmer in the county ought to take stock in an enterprise like this. I suggest each district have a meeting on May 3, at 7 p m. and discuss the above subject and elect two delegates to meet with the county association on May 6 at Clanton, I will invite a good speaker to meet with us. Thanking you for past favors, I remain yours for better times.

Pine Hill, Ala., April 20, 1905

It seems like cold winter is coming back again, we had heavy frost and ice here this morning; don't think the gardens are hurt very much, though jack frost may come tonight and take them all in. Don't know very much about Clark county and Marengo county at this time. Mrs. Katy Traywick and baby spent last week with her mother-in-law at Thomasville.

Mrs. Dr. Boroughs is quite sick.

Mr. Latham has visited his sister, Mrs. Cox, recently.

Mrs. Fred Von is quite sick with mumps.

Rosco Meroney is on the sick list this week; hope he will soon be well again.

Misses Mary Daniels and Ruth Dunn will have an entertainment at my house on Friday night.

Burney Meroney has gone to Nanafalia to work; we miss his bright face and cheerful smiles when he goes away.

We have a very good school here this season.

Sorry to hear that Miss Fannie Daniel is very sick at the A. C. F. C.

Our school children have a fine time playing base ball, tennis and hop scotch.

Little Earl McConnell has gone to Peach Tree for her health.

Would love to hear something from Bethsalem. With best wishes to the Banner and its readers.

Thomas Meroney.

Greenlee, N. C., April 30, 1905

Mr. J. W. Biddix went to Marion Wednesday.

Miss Hattie Burgin of Marion has been visiting Mrs. G. B. and Miss Belle Dobson.

We are sorry to state Miss Carrie Greenlee is on the sick list.

It seems that Mr. George Dobson means to farm right, he has eleven hands planting corn on his farm.

If some of the Alabama boys could be at Greenlee and see the wild geese they would not fox hunt any more, I'm sure. Success to the Banner.

Forsaken and Forgotten,

Lily.

As we seldom see anything from this place, we will send in a few items to let the people know we are still flourishing and enjoying life. Spring is here in full and everyone looks pleasant, although the farmers are kept quite busy preparing for another crop.

Quite a number of our young people attended the concert at Stanton Friday night and report a royal time.

Rev. Connell preached at Mulberry on Saturday and Sunday last.

Messrs. Joe and Burt Malone of Selma visited home folks Easter.

Mr. Hugh Jones' friends are glad to have him home again.

Some of the young folks from here went to Maplesville to Easter services Sunday evening.

There must be some attraction in "Jonestown" for John Sims, as he is quite a frequent visitor here.

The Mulberry base ball team will cross bats with Fairview next Saturday afternoon at this place.

The friends of Miss Velma White are very grateful to her for the nice singing and Easter egg boiling at her home on Saturday night.

Misses Pearl and Ethel Rasberry have recently visited Stanton.

We sympathize with Mr. Walker very much in the loss of his nice buggy horse, for we are sure the inconvenience of having to walk is very disagreeable to him

Mr. Chas. Rasberry is at home for a few days from the capital city

Messrs. Reub Cox and Bas Washburn visited here Sunday.

There will be an all-day singing at Mulberry next Sunday, the 30th. Everybody that enjoys fine singing will not be disappointed if they are present.

Concord.

Dear Editor—I come again after a long absence. Quite an enjoyable time was spent by 66 Concordians at the noble egg hunt given by Misses Charlotte and Martha Jane Mims and Mr. A. N. Miner. At 3 p.m. the crowd gathered and a chapter of St. Luke was read by Mr. A. N. Miner, and recitations by Misses Lettie Dupree and Martha Jane Mims and Mr. Grady Armstrong, which was beautiful to hear. Then to the pine grove where the eggs had been hid by Mesdames E. H. Mims and A. N. Miner and Mr. J. S. Parrish, The children and old folks too went to see who could find the most. Laughing, talking and throwing the straw, they began, and after 30 minutes hunt they returned to give an account of how many was out; Miss Martha Dupree taking the names, and after all had returned Mr. A. N. Miner found the highest number, 19; Messrs. Tommie Taylor and William Easterling finding next highest, 7; then 35 others found less; 30 finding none. Hurrah for the next Easter hunt, and let us have 20 dozen eggs and a pail of salt in a lovely oak grove.

Little Frencha Bates of Verbena was a welcome visitor at the egg hunt. Mr. Linzie Thompson from Pinedale was gladly welcomed at the hunt. Best wishes to Banner.

The importance of good lights in the evening is not generally appreciated. A poor light is very trying and injurious to the eyes. We can remember when one tallow candle was the usual light for a family at night, and if two were burning at one time it was considered great extravagance. The following from the Inland Farmer is very good: "If we were to name the greatest achievements of the closing days of the last century, we would unhesitatingly place the perfection of the lamp among the first."

A hundred years ago there was a very decided feeling in this country that princes and dukes and earls were a bad lot, both as to those then existing and as to those who were going to exist. That opinion at that time was both reasonable and just, the Hartford (Conn.) Courant opines. To enlarge General Hawley's memorable phrase, each generation must be judged by the light that it has; and that was exactly the light in which those early generations of freemen on this continent worked.

The scientific world is taking great interest in the suggestion recently made by Professor Simon Newcomb that a central bureau of exact science should be established, remarks the Daily True American. Professor Newcomb believes that the head thereof should be aided by experts from various countries, with a view to co-ordinating the many lines of scientific research throughout the world. The distinguished scientist does not hesitate to assert that a large part of the data accumulated by students in the past century is utterly useless, so far as the working out of results is concerned.

We have no thought that Great Britain will feel humiliated at having contracted an alliance with the victors at Port Arthur and Mukden or that the United States will regret having opened Japan to the world and having been her "next friend" for half a century, says the New York Tribune. Upon the death field of Mukden there rises the puissant figure of a new great power, the peer of any, and it will be the world's part of wisdom to recognize it as such, and to regard it not with contempt as of old, nor yet with fear, as some have affected to do, but with the frank spirit of equal brotherhood in friendly rivalry in the progress of civilization.

The city of Glasgow, Scotland, says the New York Evening Sun, owns a public library of 160,000 volumes, and is erecting a number of district libraries; conducts seven model lodging houses—one for women—which shelter 2430 persons every night and pay 5 percent profit; owns 27 blocks of buildings, which shelter 9000 people; public banks, including Kosher banks for Jews, and also warehouses, in which hot water is furnished at a trifling price for family laundry work; gas and electric light and power works, in which 3000 men are employed; the street railway system, which employs 3500 men and carries 170,000,000 people annually. Furthermore, it owns nine public markets, including one for old clothes; a telephone system that pays 15 percent on the invested public capital; a labor bureau and a home for inebriates.

The Swiss and the Italians, boring from opposite sides through the Alps, have met; the Simplon tunnel is pierced. How much more inspiring than the waste and woe of war it is to see two nations making mutual battle against the obstacles to peaceful travel and commerce! To offset the advantages to France from her construction of the Mont Cenis tunnel, 7.6 miles long, Germany moved for construction of the St. Gothard, entering into treaty with Switzerland and Italy. That "great bore" of 9.14 miles was opened twenty-five years ago, and the Simplon, 12.21 miles, will now be prepared for traffic. With the entente between France and Spain the people of the Peninsula are agitating ardently for the long dormant project of a railway tunnel through the Pyrenees; closer relations between England and France have revived the demand for a tunnel under the Channel, and work on the Isthmian Canal is now vigorously under way. This is a great engineering age, and the natural barriers to free movement of commerce are rapidly disappearing. Pity some of the extreme artificial barriers in the way of tariffs could not go with them.

PRES. BIGELOW SHORT

Wheat Speculation Makes Him a Defaulter for a Million and a Half.

RUN MADE ON THE BANK.

F. G. Bigelow One of the Most Prominent Financiers in Northwest.

Stood High Socially.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Frank G. Bigelow until Monday president of the First National bank of Milwaukee, was arrested Monday charged with the embezzlement of over $100,000 of the bank's funds.

The arrest of Mr. Bigelow followed his confession to the board of directors of the bank that he was a defaulter to the extent of $1,450,000. Following Mr. Bigelow's confession he was removed from the presidency of the bank and the facts in the case were laid before the federal authorities.

The complaint was sworn to by United States District Attorney H. K. Butterfield. It charges that Bigelow, as president of the First National bank, embezzled a sum exceeding $100,000. A complaint and warrant identical with these in Bigelow's case were made out to Henry G. Goll, assistant cashier of the bank, but Goll could not be found up to 7 o'clock Monday night.

President Bigelow was before United States Commissioner Bloodgood Monday night. He waived a hearing and was held to the federal grand jury under $25,000 bond. Dr. H. N. Brown and A. N. McGoch certified as sureties, and Bigelow was released. The next federal grand jury has not yet been summoned, but it is expected it will meet some time next month.

The announcement of the defalcation was followed by a rush of depositors to withdraw their money from the First National Bank, and from the Wisconsin Trust Company, the savings department of the bank. Many thousands of dollars were withdrawn, but on the other hand, large numbers of people having confidence in the institution, increased their deposits. Arrangements were hastily made to meet the run, and the officers of the bank express full confidence in their ability to keep them open.

President Bigelow's confession was made at a special meeting of the board of directors held Saturday evening, and continued Sunday and all of Sunday night. In addressing his fellow directors President Bigelow said he had a painful statement to make—a confession that he had misdirected the funds of the banks, and that an examination of his books would show that he was indebted to the bank to the amount of over $1,450,000. This money he said had been lost in speculation in wheat and stocks. Not a dollar of it could be recovered, and the only sum he could offer toward recompensating the bank was personal security valued at approximately $300,000.

The confession of President Bigelow astounded the directors of the bank. Mr. Bigelow had been recognized as one of the foremost financiers of the northwest. He has been associated with the First National Bank in various capacities for more than fifteen years, and his business connections—trust companies, concerns, real estate deals and other similar ventures—number scores. He was honored a year ago by election to the presidency of the American Bankers' Association, and by its members was looked upon as a leader in financial matters.

The manipulation of accounts has been going on for months, according to the statement of one of the directors, but so cleverly was the work done that neither the directors nor the national bank examiners were able to discover the fact that anything was wrong with the funds of the bank. The first intimation that there were irregularities came to Charles F. Pfister, one of the directors, Friday evening. An employe of the bank called at Mr. Pfister's home and told him he had something to reveal regarding the bank. While his information was meager, it was sufficient to awaken the suspicions of Mr. Pfister and to start an investigation. Bigelow was taxed with the irregularities and he is said to have admitted his guilt. Then followed the meeting of the directors and the full confession.

As soon as the directors ascertained the full extent of the speculations steps were taken to protect the depositors and other creditors. Charles F. Pfister subscribed $600,000 to a fund to make good the surplus. John I. Beggs, president of the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light Company, gave $300,000. William Bigelow, a brother of the president, added $100,000 to the amount. Other directors subscribed lesser sums until the amount raised reached $1,635,000.

To Make Many Improvements.

Knoxville, Tenn.—The city council took the first step for a city park Saturday night. Alderman Murphy's resolution to tear down the Central Market building and make a park out of same was carried.

An ordinance passed to build more sewer and school room. An ordinance was introduced regulating telephone poles on the street to four in one block.

Two Accidents.

Scottsboro, Ala.—A. B. Howell, a popular young man and student of the Scottsboro Baptist Institute, met with a very painful accident Saturday afternoon, that will lay him up for some time. He was assisting in hauling an organ and chairs to the college to be used in the Easter services, and fell from the wagon, breaking both bones in his arm, the bones protruding through the flesh and making a very ugly and painful wound.

While returning from a drive Sunday evening in company with her husband and guest, Miss Bell, of Hill City, Tenn., Mrs. John Will Payne was thrown violently from the buggy to the hard pike, caused by the horse shying. The wheels ran over her, painfully hurting and bruising her. She was picked up and was able to be carried home.

Will Build Court House.

Scottsboro, Ala.—The new thirty-five thousand dollar court house, the contract for which was let by the Board of County Commissioners of Jackson county a year ago to Messrs. Dodson & Bynum, contractors, of Montgomery, and over which considerable litigation has been the outcome, will now, in all probability, be erected.

The contractors were enjoined from building the new court house by a number of prominent citizens of the county, and it was taken to the chancery court. That court dissolved the injunction and it was carried to the supreme court. The case was affirmed by that court. The new Board of County Commissioners which have been elected since the contract was let by the retiring board have rescinded the old board's contract. But it is thought here that the court house will be built and that work will begin at an early day.

Griswell, Tampa, Fla., in which he despondently stated that he had decided to take his life, intimating ill health and financial affairs as the reasons.

Another note, which was sealed, was addressed to Miss Pansy Morgan, 1109 Florida street, Tampa, Fla. No valuables were found among his effects.

German Officer Commits Suicide.

Newport News, Va.—Lieut. L. A. P. F. Stark, of the German cruiser Bremen, committed suicide by shooting himself with a rifle aboard the ship Monday. His fellow officers declare he was temporarily insane as a result of ill health.

The body will be interred with full naval honors in Green Lawn cemetery. The Bremen and the United States ships in the harbor have their flags at half mast on account of the lieutenant's death.

Shot the Flagman.

Demopolis, Ala.—Just as the 6:15 passenger train was pulling out from Spocari, one mile east of this city, an altercation occurred between Flagman Burns and a negro. They came to blows on the platform and another negro, whose name was not learned, standing near the train, pulled a pistol and shot the flagman through the neck.

Mr. Burns was brought to this city and his wound dressed. His condition is considered serious. The negro who did the shooting was not in the row and after the shot was fired made his escape.

Father Kills Son; Deed of Dastard.

Montgomery, Ala.—W. T. Sheets, 45 years of age, shot and killed his son Claude Sheets, near the city Sunday.

The young man was foreman of a gang of laborers in which his father worked. The old man was discharged and blamed the son.

Yesterday the boy went home, being afraid to do so Friday night, and had words with his father, who shot him dead in the yard.

AN ALABAMA WOMAN'S

Resolution Creates a Sensation in Its Attack on the Morman Church.

THE CHURCH IS TREASONABLE.

Convention Endorses Her Stand—Interesting Proceedings of Patriotic Organization.

Washington, D. C.—After a recess of one day, the congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution reconvened to conclude its business. There was a notable diminution in the attendance, many of the Daughters having left the city.

President General Fairbanks extended an invitation to the president general-elect, Mrs. Donald McLean, and to C. A. Kauffman, of South Carolina, a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, to take seats on the stage. Mr. Kauffman delivered a brief address in which he felicitated the D. A. R. on its achievements and complimented its outgoing and incoming officers.

An echo of the election of Mrs. McLean came at the close at the reading of the minutes when President General Fairbanks expressed regret that Mrs. Sternberg's motion to make Mrs. McLean's election unanimous had not been carried unanimously. Mrs. Ballinger, District of Columbia, urged that some of the "noes" had been withdrawn, but the president general held that all had not been withdrawn and that the election of Mrs. McLean was not unanimous.

Mrs. Donald McLean, the president general-elect, on motion of Mrs. Murphy, of Ohio, was elected chairman of the Continental Memorial Hall Committee, the action being in accordance with precedent.

Mrs. McLean on Platform.

During the announcement of the new state regents, Mrs. McLean was escorted to the platform. She presented to President General Fairbanks a beautiful floral star, the emblem of the New York City Chapter, and said that the star was the pledge of loyalty of the chapter to the national organization. Mrs. McLean then said that in accordance with the sentiments expressed by the floral piece she desired to present from New York Chapter a practical testimonial in the form of checks for $1,000 from Mrs. Jas. H. Aldrich; $10 from Mrs. James W. Randall and $100 from Mrs. A. J. Robinson as contributions to the Continental Hall fund.

At 1 o'clock a recess was taken for luncheon. When the congress reconvened at 3:30 p. m. a discussion which occupied considerable time was continued. It related to a construction of the constitution as to the admission of members of Children of the American Revolution to the D. A. R. A motion by Mrs. Day, of Tennessee, which had precipitated the discussion, finally was passed. By its provisions the national board is directed to interpret literally the constitution as it now stands. This will enable members of the D. A. R. of eligible age to become members of the D. A. R. without payment of initiation fees.

A proposition was made by Mrs. Elizabeth C. Williams, of Maryland, that the society take steps looking to the deposit of the remains of John Paul Jones at the naval academy at Annapolis. Amendments were offered requesting that the remains be deposited in Philadelphia and Fredericksburg, Va. The whole question finally was laid on the table. A resolution was adopted providing for the appointment of a committee to wait upon the Fifty-ninth congress to obtain permission for the interment in the National cemetery at Arlington of the remains of Pierre Charles, l'Enfant.

Mrs. Murphy, of Ohio, offered a resolution which was adopted providing that the president general appoint a special committee to promote the introduction into the public schools of the United States of the system of a "school city." The idea is to promote the teaching of good citizenship in the public schools and induce the school children to govern themselves in their schools.

Mrs. Goode's Statement.

Mrs. Goode, of Alabama, brought to the attention of the congress the Mormon question in a sensational statement. She declared that the Mormon church was violating, through its leaders, the laws of the land; that it was a treasonable institution owing its highest allegiance to its own organization, and that it was a stain on the good name of the United States. She offered therefore this resolution:

"That as daughters of the patriots we most earnestly call upon the national congress to pass such remedial legislation as will put a stop to polygamy and polygamous living and political control of the Mormon hierarchy.

"And that this congress also urge the United States senate to refuse Mr. Reed Smoot, of Utah, an apostle of of this church, and one of its highest officers, the right to continue as senator of the United States.

"And that we further urge an amendment to the federal constitution making polygamy, under whatever guise or pretense, a crime against the United States."

Mrs. Allen, state regent of Utah, claimed the right to second the resolution, her position being taken, she said, upon purely patriotic grounds. She wanted the word "church" eliminated from the resolution and the word "hierarchy" substituted.

"This is a hierarchy we are dealing with," she declared, "and the overthrow of the government is what it is at." The change was made. The resolution was adopted by a rising vote.

Mrs. Richardson, state regent of South Carolina, presented to President General Fairbanks a beautiful drawing of the Fairbanks coat-of-arms, and an illuminated card bearing the insignia of the Palmetto state and the name of the D. A. R. chapters of that state.

A recess then at 5:15 was taken until 8 o'clock.

At the night session the convention voted to go ahead with the work of collecting funds for its completion. The treasurer general, Mrs. M. E. S. Davis, of the District of Columbia, stated that $53,000 is on hand with which to continue the work of construction.

After expressing the usual resolutions of thanks the congress adjourned sine die, the delegates late reassembling at the Ebitt house to greet the new president general, Mrs. Donald McLean, of New York.

Cullman Ships First Strawberries.

Cullman, Ala.—The first shipment of strawberries from this place this season was made Friday. They were handled by J. D. Searcy, shipping clerk of the German Farmers' Strawberry Association, and consigned to Douglass Bros., Birmingham. The berries were of a very fine variety, large and of a very delicious flavor, which is generally characteristic of the Cullman berry.

Survived the Shock.

Florence, Ala.—Charles Venson, foreman of a telephone construction gang, is alive and at work again after having 22,000 volts of electricity pass through his body. The accident occurred in Sheffield Saturday. Venson was working with some telephone wires, when by mistake he caught hold of a wire of the Sheffield Street Car Company, which was heavily charged. He was standing in the mud and this caused the current to pass through him. His hand was horribly burned, and it was four hours before he was restired to consciousness. It was thought at first that the man was dead, and his recovery is considered almost miraculous.

A Skyscraper for Montgomery.

Montgomery, Ala.—A trade was consummated Friday whereby James H. Cook and George Laurie, of Montgomery, purchased for $26,000 the old Baptist church property on the triangular block bounded by North Court, Coosa and Bibb streets and Madison avenue, on which the new owners expect to erect a ten or twelve-story steel structural office building.

Oil Fight in Missouri.

Jefferson City, Mo.—A motion was filed in the supreme court by Attorney-General Hadley to strike out the pleadings filed by the Standard Oil Company and the Republic Oil Company to his information alleging combination to control the supply and price of oils in this state. These pleading deny the allegations set forth in the information filed by the attorney-general and at the same time attack the constitutionality of the anti-trust law.

Attorney-General Hadley in his motion contends that such pleadings cannot be filed in the supreme court and bases this contention on decisions in the case of former Attorney-General Crow vs. fire insurance companies several years ago.

Boys Charged With Housebreaking.

Jasper, Ala.—Dan Willingham and Charles Williams, two boys between the age of ten and twelve years, have been lodged in the county jail on a charge of breaking into houses at Horse Creek. The boys are alleged to have maliciously entered four stores, a blacksmith shop and one dwelling at Horse Creek within the past few weeks. Every effort of the parents of the boys failed to have any effect on them, and it was necessary to have them locked in the county jail.

Shipping Strawberries.

Brewton, Ala.—At Castleberry, 12 miles north of here, it is estimated that there are over 1,500 berry pickers present on account of the opening of the strawberry season. The population of the town is ordinarily about 250, but estimates place those now located there at several thousand.

Seven car loads were shipped during the first three days of last week, and indications point to a heavy crop, probably 125 car loads. There are 600 acres in this vicinity devoted to the succulent fruit.

Montgomery, Ala.—The reports of the tax collectors of the state for the year shows that the total collections of poll taxes for the year 1904 have been $62,750. Of this amount $2,447 is credited to 1903, $1,309 to 1902, and $499 to 1901. Those counties which have the largest amounts in 1904 taxes are given as follows: Blount, $1,172; Clay, $1,109; Cullman, $1,700; Etowah, $1,167; Houston, $1,017; Jefferson, $4,763; Madison, $1,220; Marion, $1,110; Marshall, $1,657; Mobile, $1,510; Montgomery, $1,657; Morgan, $1,405; Pike, $1,019; Randolph, $1,222; Shelby, $1,089; St. Clair, $1,040; Tallapoosa, $1,093; Tuscaloosa, $1,123; Walker, $1,430. It is shown that for the year 1904, therefore, the taxes of this class collected amounted to $58,945.

The collections for the year 1903 were the first under the new lay by which a man may leave off his tax and disfranchise himself. These ran back to cover 1901. They were, for that year, $132,663, divided as follows: 1903, $118,726.50; 1902, $11,347.50; 1901, $2,589.

For 1902 the total collections were $101,819, and so far in the fiscal year of 1905 they have been $90,275.81.

Wreck on the Mobile & Ohio.

Mobile, Ala.—Thursday afternoon while trying a new engine just overhauled in the Whistler shops of the Mobile and Ohio railroad, five miles north of Mobile, the engine ran into an open switch, and while going at full speed ran into a string of box cars on a siding. Those injured were:

Thomas Kohl, leg broken and lost two fingers.

Richard Kelley, right leg broken, right arm broken, badly bruised about the body.

To Hang for Murder.

Guntersville, Ala.—Bob Watts was convicted in the circuit court of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hung. The crime for which Watts is to be hung was the killing of Jack Winkle, a Confederate soldier, on January 11, 1905.

Watts hid behind a large tree on the public road which Winkle was to pass late in the evening from work, and as Winkle passed he shot him in the back with a .38-calibre Martin rifle. The purpose was to secure money which Watts supposed Winkle carried. Winkle was mortally wounded but his cries brought help and Watts fled.

Watts had purposely on the same day dug a hole near the road at this place which was supposed to be Winkle's grave.

Court House to Remain.

Edwardsville, Ala.—Captain Sedberry, state examiner, who was sent up from Montgomery to examine the petition for the removal of the court house from Edwardsville to Heflin, has been here examining the papers. Thursday was the day for the trial, and after examining the petition it was found that 196 had withdrawn and about 400 were unqualified. There being only 875 on the petition asking for the removal, this left only 275 of the 1,445 asking for the removal.

They then adjourned until Friday morning at 8 o'clock. The leaders came up from Heflin and had a meeting with their lawyers, and Friday they withdrew the petition, thus closing a strong fight, which in all probability settles the question for the future, as the new jail is to be commenced at once, the contract already being let, which calls for the completion by October, 1905.

White Man Kills an Old Negro.

Gadsden, Ala.—Pink Jones, white, aged about 30, shot and killed Fayette Jelks, colored, aged 65, near Attalia about 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. Jones had threatened to kill W. S. Hathaway on sight, and had lain in wait for him as he came along the trail coming from his work at the furnace. Jones and the negro were together when Hathaway came upon them. Jones commenced cursing Hathaway and threatening to kill him. Hathaway told him he was unarmed. Jones then cursed the negro and without a word of warning emptied the contents of his gun into the negro's left breast, causing instant death. Jones escaped. The negro Jelks was an herb doctor, old and inoffensive. Jones has a bad reputation.

Tragedy Near Mobile.

Mobile, Ala.—Friday night Frank Joulian, proprietor of a road house on Bay Shell road, was called to his door and asked if he had wine. He replied, "No, but we have beer," and then turned to re-enter the house, when he was shot, supposedly by John Ellis, a contractor, formerly of Indian Territory, but who has been a resident of Mobile for some months.

Ellis was accompanied by Earle Rosselle in a single buggy. Another couple was also accompanying them—John Morris, alias Robert Mohr, and Della Howard.

The shooting is the sequel of a personal encounter some weeks ago between Ellis and Joulian in a saloon in this city, in which Ellis was worsted. All parties were arrested. Ellis was slated for shooting with intent to murder and the other three as witnesses.

Joulian was taken to the City Infirmary, and the chief of police at 1 a. m. was called upon to take his dying statement.

Two illicit distilleries were destroyed by the officers near Roeton on the 19th inst., one of them belonging to Hurston and Arrington and the other to W. H. Stone.

Davis was seen fishing while the grand jury was in session, but escaped in his boat from the officers, who were unable to follow. Friday morning the officers were provided with a boat and the man was captured. He was put under $100 bond to appear next Thursday.

THE PULPIT.

AN ELOQUENT SUNDAY SERMON BY DEAN F. K. SANDERS, OF YALE UNIVERSITY.

Subject: The Most Beautiful Book.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—In the absence of Dr. A. J. Lyman, the pastor, the pulpit of South Congregational Church was occupied Sunday by Dean F. K. Sanders, D. D., the head of the Divinity School of Yale University. He took for his subject "The Most Beautiful Book in the World," and said:

My theme rests on the authority of one renowned for his literary knowledge, Renan, who is deservedly famous as a student of literature and of the Bible. He declared that the gospel of Luke was the most beautiful book in the world. No one can, of course, test this statement who is not familiar with the gospel. To the superficial reader it is only one of the stories of the life of Jesus. The skill, the power, the pathos and the sympathy of the writer become clearer with every reading of the book. An early tradition spoke of Luke the painter, and said he had painted a portrait of the Virgin. That tradition, whether true or not, was not very far from right. It may be said that he gave us, in a fashion, the most beautiful picture of Mary of Nazareth; it stands out before us with lively distinctness. Everything goes to show that Luke was a Greek, familiar with the best literature of his day, a keen observer and careful investigator. He seems to have had unusual opportunity for observing and describing the life and personality of the Lord. Among other things he gives evidence of possessing the true historic spirit. You will notice how he is interested in tracing the Lord's active ministry from place to place. The story is told in an orderly fashion that helps us to arrange the facts far better than the other gospels could. You will notice also that Luke is fond of following up the physical and moral growth of our Lord. He is also careful to connect his story with the history of the time—with Roman and Syrian history. He is careful to place the life of Jesus in its larger environment and to show what Jesus was in relation to the world about him, and we shall see why it was that that point of view laid such hold upon him. This was natural to a cultured Greek, and it was necessary if his purpose was to influence his cultured countrymen.

What is it, we may ask, that constitutes a beautiful book, and does this third gospel possess those attributes in a supreme degree? It would seem to me that a beautiful book ought to have in the first place a noble conception, which in some way awakens and dominates the soul, and it ought to have a skillful, but simple plan of development rightly grasped and enjoyed. There must be good taste and right judgment in the choice of the material which enables us to grasp details and to see the gradual unfolding which the writer would set forth. And there should be felicitous expression of everything which the writer seeks to set forth. These are the fundamentals of a beautiful book.

First, in its beautiful conception. The theme is the active life of Jesus, and it is far more than that; it is the broad life which He lived with others. Luke loses no chance to show how outsiders sought opportunities to come in contact with Jesus and always evoked a response. We see His parents, disciples, friends and casual acquaintances with entire directness, and yet it was not Jesus the man that Luke tells about, but the Lord Jesus. Luke never forgets that those to whom he refers are now the risen Lord and the apostles of the church. A famous critic said: "Luke ever spares the twelve, especially Peter." He omits many little details even regarding our Lord, such as the agony in the garden, and many about the apostles, especially Peter, which are given in Matthew and Mark. Why? Apparently because he did not think it was worth while. He was studying the work of the Lord in reverent fashion. It was not his purpose to simply put down facts, but to show those facts which would bring out the explanation of the fact that Jesus was the risen Lord of humanity, and that the twelve were the "glorious company of the apostles." It was not even just that, but to show Jesus in all His power, and greatness, and holiness, and grace, the friend of all who were in any kind of need, the Saviour of human kind, the one power to whom the whole world ought to bow. That seems something like the thought that was in the mind of Luke.

But to go to the plan of development. It is extremely simple. Mark's gospel consists of a series of scenes which bring out the life of Jesus with startling realism. Luke and Matthew are not like that. Luke seeks to give the historical association, a plain and simple view of the development of the life, and it is unique in its simplicity. He has two chapters devoted to the infancy and boyhood of Jesus, and in the last two verses he shows the thirty years of growth of Jesus. Then two chapters serve to bring us to the point when, in full maturity, and with absolute command over Himself and His purposes, He was ready for the work which opened before Him. So three or four chapters give us the preparation for this public ministry, tell us of John the Baptist, how Jesus came to him, the details of the baptism and temptation; then follows the genealogy, and we are prepared for the actual story of the active work of Jesus. Then comes the story of His ministry, from Galilee to Jerusalem, and then the last week in Jerusalem, the Passion, and lastly the resurrection and ascension, easy to follow and comprehensive. Luke adds six out of twenty miracles and eighteen out of twenty-three parables and a great deal of choice material.

In the third place is the exquisite taste and sympathy. Luke's gospel is a universal gospel. He emphasizes the fact that the ministry of Christ was for all. Dante called Luke the writer of the story of the gentleness of Christ. He alone tells the stories of the good Samaritan, the prodigal son, the great supper, the Pharisee and the publican, the dinner in the house of Simon, and, lastly, the story of the repentant robber. All is a part of his great theme. Nor was it accidental that Luke shows us so many types of women and gives them honor, a strange thing in his day. His remarkable delineation of Mary, the mother of Jesus, with her strong, deep womanliness, gentle, trustful and pure, resolute and self-controlled; how is it done? Just a word here and there. Truly we call his the gospel of womanhood, but it is only a part of that broader vision of the true purposes of Jesus and His work.

Perhaps the most direct proof of the quality of Luke's gospel is in its charm of expression. Where can you find anything more exquisite than the story of the birth at Bethlehem, or of the scene in the synagogue at Nazareth, or than the pathetic story of the widow's son, or of the woman "that was a sinner?" We should need to take a whole book to make such profound impressions. The stories of Mary and Martha and of Zacheus of that walk to Emmaus—how impossible to read it without having our hearts burn within us also! Luke was truly a portrait painter. An ancient legend said Luke was the founder of Christian art.

Now the last and finest test of perfection is unity. Passages in the book of Luke are like gems in a royal crown. The book is a tribute of a reverent disciple to the Lord Christ, showing His relationship to man and striving to convey the impression of His personality. As if Luke should say: "Cannot you see that He embodied the universal ideal of a perfectly God-like life; that He over-passed human possibility and gave in His life the evidence of being divine?" To be appreciated the book must be constantly and reverently read until it is fixed in the memory. Then it will do its constructive work in our souls. It will encourage us, that gospel of Luke, to let the whole Bible have its right of way in our lives, and it will suggest the way in which the Bible can become, in our hearts, the source of genuine and constant upbuilding.

The Pulpit Vitalized.

Pulpit power, which for a time seemed to be on the wane, is returning, and it is largely because the preaching is less of a literary character, less of finished essays and topical discussions, semi-secular. It is now more vitalized and energized with the Spirit's power. Those who heard some of our most famous preachers ten years ago would scarcely believe they were the same men speaking if heard to-day. Dr. Gunsaulus, who used to deliver those polished sermons in Plymouth Church, Chicago, ten years ago, could not hold the great audience in the down-town auditorium which he addresses now if he used those old-time sermons, or better ones of the same order. Something seemed to come into this fine man's life a few years ago which admonished him that nothing but the power of God could make a sermon great, and he has been preaching great sermons since that day. Dr. Hillis used to charm a literary audience in Central Music Hall with an essay which glittered like a newly cut stone from the hands of a lapidary, but if reports are true, that is not the kind of sermons that Dr. Hillis is preaching now. Indeed, he himself is quoted recently as saying that oratorical pulpit flights are the bane of preaching, and that clergy and laity shared an equal responsibility in the saving of souls. "The preacher," said Dr. Hillis, "must not treat on topical subjects Sunday after Sunday, but must preach the gospel of Jesus Christ. The church is not the preacher's field; it is his force, and it is the man who has not crossed the church's threshold for years upon whom you have a claim." It is that possibility which makes a preacher's work inspiring, but also tremendously responsible. What Sabbath may he not have among his hearers a soul that is hungering and thirsting for the bread and the water of life? What an infinite crime to give him a stone, or quite as bad, a handful of artificial flowers."

Be Good For Something.

The highest virtue consists of more than merely being good. It is being good for something; and good for something not to one's self alone, but to others and to God. That negative, self-complacent virtue which is only a strict abstention from evil, is of a quality far inferior to the virtue which suppresses evil or helps another to resist it. Virtue, in the old Latin sense, is synonymous with valor. It implies not only an espousal, but a championship, and, if necessary, a fight. Virtue is not only being good, but doing good, and the better we are the more we ought to do. We believe in these words of R. R. Bowker:

"It is bad for the ignorant and the vicious to do ill. It is worse for the educated and honest to do nothing."

Disloyalty.

When a Christian is at peace with any sin in his own life, when he is reconciled to any evil habit, or becomes indifferent to anything in his own character which renders him unlike Christ, he is disloyal to his Master. In like manner, when a citizen of the Kingdom of God is at peace with any sin of society, becomes reconciled to any evil habits of the community or indifferent to anything that is inconsistent with the full coming of God's Kingdom on earth, he is disloyal to the kingdom.—Josiah Strong, D. D.

Open the Doors.

You close your doors and brood over your own miseries and the wrongs people have done you; whereas, if you would but open those doors, you might come out into the light of God's truth, and see that His heart is as clear as sunlight toward you. If you would but let Him teach you, you would find your perplexities melt away like the snow in the spring till you could hardly believe you ever felt them.—George Macdonald.

Christ Walks on Our Feet.

Christ would still seek the lost, but He must do it now on our feet; He would still minister, but He must do it with our hands; He would still warm and comfort and encourage and instruct, but He must do it with our lips. If we refuse to perform these offices for Him, what right have we to call ourselves members of His body in vital union with Him?—Josiah Strong.

A Wonderful Light.

If you are willing to choose the seeming darkness of faith instead of the illumination of reason, wonderful light will break upon you from the Word of God.—A. J. Gordon.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR APRIL 30.

Subject: Jesus Washing the Disciples' Feet, John xiii., 1-14—Golden Text, Gal. v., 13—Memory Verses, 12, 13—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

I. At the supper table (vs. 1-3). 1. "The Passover." This was one of the three great Jewish feasts and was also called the feast of "unleavened bread," because only unleavened bread was allowed. "Hour was come." His approaching agony and death. There was no uncertainty with Him. So perfectly did He work with the Father that He knew when He had come to the close of His earthly labors. "Depart unto the Father." His entire passion and ascension are included in this departure, as taking place in this one hour. "His own." His disciples. "Which were in the world." Who were to continue longer in its troubles and difficulties. "Loved them unto the end." 1. To the uttermost limit of love (margin of R. V.). 2. With a love without end.

2. "Supper being ended." Rather, the meal having begun—that is, they had already reclined. It appears from Luke's account that as they took their reclining couches at the table, a strife arose for precedency, and by this is explained the washing of the apostles' feet by Jesus—a reproof and a lesson on humility and peace. "Devil having now put." Judas formed his plot six days before this, on the occasion of what happened at the house of Simon, the leper; see Matt. 26:14. 3. "Jesus knowing." This verse is sublime. An unclouded perception of His relation to the Father, the commission He held from Him, and His approaching return to Him, possessed His soul. By His incarnation Jesus came from God; by His death and resurrection He went to God. Christ came from heaven to bring God to us. He went to heaven to bring us to God.

II. Jesus washes the disciples' feet (vs. 4, 5).

4. "Riseth from supper." Soon after they had taken their places at the table. The washing should have taken place before the supper. "Laid aside His garments." His outer mantle, a cloak which would impede His action, leaving the tunic, which was the ordinary dress of a servant. "Girded Himself." The girdle represents a readiness for service. The towel was to complete the full dress of a servant or slave. A bold contract between the Master, who was about to enter into glory, and the aspiring disciples, who were too lofty to wash each others' feet, and were anxious about their stations in life. 5. "Began to wash." We have a very erroneous idea of the meaning of this action if we imagine that it was performed for a mere example of humility, or even as an illustration. It was simply a humble, menial service that ought to have been done by the disciples, but which they refused or neglected to do. Then He arose and performed the menial service Himself. No wonder that the conscience-smitten disciples were amazed, and that Peter felt that Jesus must not wash his feet.

III. A conversation with Peter (vs. 6-11). 6. "Then cometh he." When it was Peter's turn to be washed. Lord, dost Thou." Dost Thou, the Son of God, the Messiah, perform this humble office of a servant toward me? Peter had often seen the humility of his Lord, but never as in this instance, and he recoiled with an unutterable sense of shame and astonishment. The other disciples seem to have allowed Jesus to wash their feet in silence.

7. "Knowest not now." You do not see that it is a visible expression of My whole mission, in which I laid aside My glory with the Father and took upon Myself the form of a servant. "Shalt know hereafter." A little better understanding was gained in the Master's words in verses 13 and 14; a still clearer understanding after the crucifixion; better still after Pentecost; a full knowledge of all that Jesus did for His own was to be gained in eternity.

8. "Shalt never." Not to all eternity shalt Thou wash my feet. "Wash Thee not." With the higher washing of which this is only a type. If thou wilt not submit to this thou wilt object to that. "No part with Me." Because, 1. The first condition of discipleship was submission to Christ. 2. This washing was a symbol of spiritual cleansing, and so Peter understood Christ's words (v. 9). 9. "Not my feet only." He goes from one extreme to the other. 10. "He that is washed." Bathed; for it was the custom of the Jews to bathe twice, in preparing themselves for the paschal solemnity. "Ye are clean." You are upright and sincere. Jesus did not mean that their hearts were cleansed from all sin, for that did not take place till Pentecost. "But not all." This was a rebuke which only Judas could understand.

IV. Christ teaches humility (vs. 12-14). 12. "Know ye what I have done." Consider what I have done—the meaning and significance of it. That He intended His disciples to get the spiritual meaning of this act is seen from what follows. 13. "Master and Lord." One who has authority, whose example should be followed, and whose commands obeyed. 14. "If I then." The Master lost no dignity, authority or power by His condescending love. He was truly great, in that He stooped to necessary humble work when others refused to do it. "Ye also ought." The servant is not greater than his master, and you will do well to imitate Me. If this lesson has entered your understanding, cease all strife for position, and only surpass in service to each other.

HON. Charles P. Lane, editor of the Huntsville Tribune, announces himself a willing candidate for the Republican nomination for governor next year, and advocates a primary to be held by that party. It is too much to expect the Republican machine to agree to have a primary, but it is possible Mr. Lane may get the nomination in a convention, as he is so willing to sacrifice himself, and there are few of his faith that are anxious for the empty honor of the nomination.

FROM the report of the State Auditor just issued, we find that 998 poll taxes were paid in Chilton county in 1904, putting $1497 into the school fund. This is a remarkably good showing for Chilton. Only 21 counties in the State paid a greater number of poll taxes than Chilton, and, according to the census of 1900, fifty four counties had a larger population than Chilton. A comparison with our sister counties is interesting.

Education the Best Gift.

After a man passes forty, his chief concern, if he be a parent, is for his children. For them he plans and toils and labors. His ambition is for them rather than for himself. And yet, many parents forget or seem to overlook the fact, that the best possible gift which they can bestow upon their children is a good education. In nine cases out of ten every dollar left to the young man by his parents is a hindrance rather than a help, a curse rather than a blessing. Leave your boy with a sound education by all means. See that he is properly trained mentally, morally and physically, and then turn him loose to "paddle his own canoe." If he cannot succeed, after being thus equipped, he does not deserve success. — Chattanooga Weekly Press.

The Second Quarterly Conference of M. E Church South, Clanton Circuit, will convene at Mt. Moriah church, on May 6 and 7 All official members earnestly requested to attend.

Japan's Triumph a Solid One.

These who wonder why Japan, since she boasts that she could put a million men into the field in a comparitively short space of time, has not done this and annihilated Kuropatkin, but has permitted him to escape each time from the clutches of her generals, forget that the Japanese Government and general staff have been always counting on the effect of the victories upon European Russia. The question of beating Kuropatkin's army and getting him out of the way is a secondary consideration. The great purpose of Japan has been not to win victories so much as to impress upon the Russian Government the absolute futility of Russia maintaining in the far East such an empire as would menace the national existence of Japan. With each successive blow, Japan knows that Russia's danger at home increases. The Tokio government has aimed to gradually force the Russian armies out of Manchuria, and several facts, perhaps not sufficiently emphasized, will indicate that winning battles on the field is only part of the task of the sons of Japan. Among the ablest "brains" of Oyama's army are Generals Nisshi and Hasegawa. General Nisshi is now at Dalny; he is military and civil commander of that part of Manchuria which the Japanese have conquered; and his headquarters hereafter will be at Port Arthur. General Hasegawa, commander of the famous Imperial Guard, is military and civil governor of Korea, subject, of course, to the fiction of the authority of the Korean Emperor. What the Japanese armies have marched over Japan has made her own, and the presence of these two of her ablest executive and vigerous, brainy men in the occupied territory back of the fighting armies is sufficiently indicative of the fact that the Japanese Government realizes to the full the importance of all the factors in the problem before it.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for April.

Verbena.

I hate to keep apologizing for my appearance, but Verbena has got a few things too good to keep, and being of a repeating style of guns, guess it is befitting for me to shoot some of them at you. The farmers have bought about all the fertilizer and I believe have settled down to work or gone fishing, as we see very little of them, but gee! we've got something didding any way.

There was an Easter hunt in the park at Mr. J. A. Colley's, Saturday evening that had a fine attendance by people of all ages, and was quite an enjoyable occasion.

Miss Lula Colley entertained again Sunday evening a few of her friends; among whom was Miss Clevie Cox, one of Verbena's prettiest and decidedly most popular young ladies, who later was escorted to the depot by her charming hostess and a few others select, where with tearful eyes and aching hearts her many friends bid her adieu. 'Tis quite a blow to the social set to lose her, but we wish for her even a more enjoyable and profitable life in her new home than she found among those who miss her. Colonel, we hope for your sake the will come back.

We had splendid Easter services at both churches Sunday. The inclemency of the weather, however, prevented the evening service.

Rev. R. C. Williams had the misfortune of losing his buggy horse Sunday evening from lung fever.

Prof. B. R. Richardson closed his school Friday last and you ought to see the kids, didn't know we had so many.

Mr. D. I. Deramus went to the Magic City Monday on business.

Mr. F. C. Pinkston will leave in a few days to accept a position in Birmingham. We didn't think he would do it.

Can anyone tell me what has become of our old friend Mr. H. B. Northington? When last heard of he was near Birmingham. We need him so badly if Mr. F. C. P. does leave.

Mrs. J. C. Clisby has moved up to her summer home in Verbena, and we are looking for other families soon. Let them come on.

Miss Sadie Hayes, one of Birmingham's brightest flowers, is visiting Miss Sadie Mitchell.

We heartily endorse Mr. F. A. Gulledge's article as regards young people marrying, and feel assured some of the fair sex will also endorse it. So brace up, boys, before you get gray as rats, and don't let any more single girls leave Verbena. I will furnish a list of single men and women on application, and furnish all other assistance possible.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, D. C., April 24, 1905

The question of railway rate regulations is once again actively before the public because of the Senate committee hearing. What the outcome will be is too problematical for me. But I feel sure it will neither be the proposition for Government ownership nor Senator Newland's plan for national incorporation, national taxation and national control, which is his idea of what the Democratic policy should be.

The Democrats should get together quickly on some scheme, if they don't intend to let the Republicans steal their thunder and effect some sort of compromise that will be more or less satisfactory to the railroad corporations. Railroad men say they are more than willing, in fact, are anxious to have rebates done away with; discriminations by way of excessive allowances to short terminal tracks that connect factories or warehouses with main lines wiped out; and the private car lines, with their exorbitant charges, eliminated forever from the railroad problem. All these are evils that have forced railroads to give up part of their legitimate earnings, by a system of mercantile brigandage and jiu-jitsu games, that even the shrewdest railroad managers cannot beat.

Shippers will tell the committee that they do not ask for a reduction in rates; that rates are low enough now, as the Interstate Commerce Commission has said a half dozen times in their reports; that all they want is a uniform rate for everybody, everywhere an at all times, and that the railroads would give them that now, if the Interstate Commission would only enforce the laws against the favored ship ers who have the railways by the throat, instead of howling for a power to fix future rates--a power they do not need to eliminate present troubles, and one they would not know how to exercise it if they possessed it. They admit that neither the producer nor the consumer would benefit a penny by any rate reduction, this side of bankruptcy for the carrier, but that the broker and middleman would get it all.

"Suppose you could ship hats from Danbury, Conn., to Louisville, for 3 cents less a hat, or shoes from Lynn to Omaha for 2 cents a pair less, or coffee for a tenth of a cent a pound less from New York to Chicago," said one of them to me in the lobby of the New Willard Hotel here. "That would be a huge reduction in freight rates—over 25 per cent. And would the consumer benefit any by it? Not on your life.' As I'm not a puzzle editor, I gave it up.

Workingmen, labor unions, railroad employes are coming here to protest against rate reduction because they think it is going to hurt them. Perhaps it will. I can't tell just now. But the Democrats ought to have some one here to answer these questions and take a front seat on the band wagon.

The New York City railroads have the most valuable traffic franchises in the world, and make profits so great that the shares of the latest one constructed have more than doubled in value in Wall Street in the first six months of operation, yet there is not one of them that gives anything approaching the service the people have a right to expect. Nothing has conduced so greatly to graft and bribery in municipal and State affairs as the fact that franchises of enormous value for public utilities are to be obtained by favor of certain officials.

Throat Coughs

A tickling in the throat; hoarseness at times; a deep breath irritates it;—these are features of a throat cough. They're very deceptive and a cough mixture won't cure them. You want something that will heal the inflamed membranes, enrich the blood and tone up the system ∴ ∴ ∴ ∴ is just such a remedy. It has wonderful healing and nourishing power. Removes the cause of the cough and the whole system is given new strength and vigor ∴ ∴

Scott's Emulsion

For Thin, Poor Blood

You can trust a medicine tested 60 years! Sixty years of experience, think of that! Experience with Ayer's Sarsaparilla; the original Sarsaparilla; the strongest Sarsaparilla; the Sarsaparilla the doctors endorse for thin blood, weak nerves, general debility.

But even this grand old medicine cannot do its best work if the liver is inactive and the bowels constipated. For the best possible results, you should take laxative doses of Ayer's Pills while taking the Sarsaparilla. The liver will quickly respond, and so will the bowels.

Dr. Bergin, Pana, Ill., writes: "I have used Ballard's Snow Liniment; always recommended it to my friends, as I am confident there is no better made. 'It is a dandy for burns.' Those who live on farms are especially liable to many accidental cuts, burns, bruises, which heal rapidly when Ballard's Snow Liniment is applied. DANCE OF THE CARABAOS.

A LAUGHMAKING DIVERSION OF THE FILIPINOS.

The Awkward Animals Taught to Sing and Dance—The Ludicrous Performance Made Funnier by the Effects on the Carabaos of Barley Soaked in Alcohol.

The carabao of the Philippines is domesticated and serves the purpose of ox, horse and cow. It is very gentle and is very obedient to all the commands of its master when it can understand and obey them. Though awkward, it can even be taught to dance.

When it is young its Indian owner trains it in somewhat the following manner: He begins to play on a reed flute, and with a small switch gives the Carabao light raps on its hind legs as a hint that they must be raised, one at a time. Thus he continues until it learns to move its legs quickly when it hears the music of its master.

Then it is taught to raise both its hind legs at once, and also the same movement with its front legs, as a leaping dog. Afterward it is taught to stand upon its hind legs, holding its front legs raised, and in such fashion make hops around a circle indicated by its master.

When it knows perfectly these exercises the Indian teaches it to dance to the sound of the flute. The mother has usually received similar instruction in her youth, and is present on these occasions. It seems as if she delights in seeing her son making progress in its education. In proof of this opinion, many times she gives samples of her own ability to dance before the eyes of her son as if to demonstrate how exceedingly easy a thing it is to do when once you know how.

When the calf has learned all these movements the Indian teaches it the last, which is very difficult. This is jumping forward and back. Raising itself on its hind legs, it leaps forward. Then, bracing itself on its front legs, it makes a leap backward. Thus it executes a movement forward and back, almost as if it were entirely in the air.

Next begins the vocal culture. This is the most difficult of all. The poor animal does not know what its master requires of it, and the Indian, in order to make it comprehend, plays on its reed flute and at the same time pricks the calf on its loins with a rod tipped with a steel filed to a fine sharp point.

This process of instruction is necessarily painful to the pupil, and must not be carried out in the presence of its mother, because she would be apt, in defence of her calf and in answer to its cries of pain, to kill her master.

The little animal, on feeling the pain, naturally bleats and baas. The Indian continues the operation, and by dint of repetition the calf apprehends at length that in order to escape the pricks of the steel it must sing at the sound of the flute.

So effective is this mode of training that ever afterward when it hears the pito music it baas desperately and for a long time without ceasing.

These exercises being mastered, its education in both dancing and singing is completed. In other words, it has received a liberal education.

Thereafter when the master begins playing his flute the mother and calf dance andante or allegro according to the time of the music, and they sing, as it may by courtesy be termed, together in duet.

If one wishes to laugh until exhausted, laugh to split his sides, he should attend an Indian festival and enjoy the singular event of the dance and singing of the carabaos to the sound of the pito.

When the Indians wish to divert themselves with this particular song and dance they begin by feeding the carabao early in the morning with barley soaked overnight in alcohol. This meal, which the carabaos enjoy greatly, is heating, and reduces in them a condition of nervousness and extraordinary liveliness. If the truth of the matter must be told, the fact is that under the influence of the alcohol they get a little gay.

When preparing for this exhibition the Indians gather in some plaza or where there is room for a large circle in the open air.

They eat and drink to repletion and almost to intoxication. When the feasting is concluded each owner brings into the circle the carabaos which he has brought with him for the occasion, large and small. The Indians then take out their pitos of cane and begin the music.

When the carabaos hear the pito they begin to dance and to sing, following in chorus the playing of the Indians. In the same degree that the Indians play their pitos more quickly the carabaos become more and more animated, but when the players begin a quick gallop the carabaos bellow loudly, filling the air with the thundering noise of their united bellowings.

They dance desperately, as though insane, the large and small carabaos all mingled together in a confused herd. They leap from one side to another in concert, giving each other powerful buttings with the head, but without wounding one another. They rise, with their front legs raised high in the air and appear like wild beasts about to engage in a furious combat.

The Indians shriek with delight and the fun grows fast and furious. The medley of voices make a tremendous roar, and the carabaos on hearing it redouble their jumps, leaps and running until they fall exhausted to the ground as though dead. This fatigue lasts but for a short time. When the Indians cease their babel of shouts and begin to play upon their pitos, the carabaos immediately get up again and resume their dancing and singing.

Says Mr. de Moreno, "In my life I have laughed much, but if this dancing and singing had continued much longer my body would have burst with so much laughing, or I would have fallen to the earth exhausted by so much riotous laughter and clamor. He who wishes to laugh, however sad may be his state, should attend one of these dances, and he will laugh until he drops to the ground from his excessive mirth, nor will he ever be able to forget the fantastic dance of the carabaos and their burlesque singing."—New York Sun.

SOME FATAL BOOKS.

Authors Who Have Suffered Terrible Deaths Because of Their Writings.

A young German officer, who recently wrote a novel dealing with the scandals of army life, was promptly deprived of his commission by his offended Kaiser, was afterwards imprisoned in a fortress, and has now, on his release, a score or so of duels to fight, in one or the other of which he is pretty certain to lose his life, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

In times gone by, however, it might easily have gone even harder with him.

For instance, so lately as 1859, an Austrian pamphleteer named Tekli was shot at Gratz for writing and publishing a book reflecting on the good faith of Count Buol, the foreign minister. The work was published at 9 o'clock in the morning, at 10 it was ordered to be suppressed, half an hour later the unhappy author was being tried by drumhead court-martial, and before noon he had been pronounced guilty and executed.

Napoleon gave equally short shrift to writers who offended him, shooting some and hanging others with scarcely even the form of trial. One of the most notorious of these judicial murders was that perpetrated at the expense of poor Palm, a Nurnberg publisher, who was shot because he refused to give up the name of the author of a book attacking the usurper. Later the Bourbons had troublesome authors quietly "removed" by hired assassins. After this fashion died the gifted Paul Courier, whose foul murder, on April 10, 1825, aroused to fury all lovers of liberty.

Daniel Defoe narrowly escaped a similar fare for his "Short Way with the Dissenters;" and, as it was, he was three times stood in the pillory, besides suffering all the horrors then incidental to a long imprisonment in Newgate.

Urban Grandler, because he offended the mighty Richelieu in a book entitled "The Shoemaker of Loudun," was burned alive.

Simon Morin, in 1647, published at Paris a little work called "Thoughts." For so doing he was sentenced to perform public penance in his shirt, with a rope round his neck and a torch in his hand. Afterward he and his book were burned together and the ashes thrown into the air.

The similar punishment meted out to Servetus at Geneva, because of his book "On the Restitution of Christianity," is historical. By a refinement of cruelty the brow of the unhappy author was crowdned with a crown of straw sprinkled with brimstone and new, moist fagots were purposely used in order to prolong his sufferings.

Antonius Palearius, an Italian author of the sixteenth century, had the audacity to write a book attacking the Inquisition. He was sentenced to be "hung, strangled, and burnt." Jordane Bruno, the friend of Sir Philip Sidney, was punished in like manner for having written a book entitled "The Expulsion of the Triumphing Beast."

A sorry fate befell John Williams, who foolishly sent two samples of spring poetry to King James I.

For safety, the unhappy poet enclosed the verses in an iron box, and James, who always feared assassination, jumped to the conclusion that the latter contained some sort of an infernal machine.

When the real nature of the contents came to light, the timorous monarch and his counsellors became the laughing stock of England; and James, in revenge, caused the unfortunate Williams to be hanged, drawn, and quartered.

Wit of an Australian Bishop.

A certain bishop, happily still with us, though retired from the cares of his colonial diocese, was famous throughout Australia no less for his wit than for his spiritual vigor and eloquence.

When one of the clergy described a wealthy parishioner as a careless, indifferent sort of man, who cared only for his garden during the day and his billiard room at night, he said: "Garden! Billiards! Don't call him careless; he evidently minds his peas and cues."

To the rude question of a dissipated passenger on board ship, "Why do you wear that thing?" (a cross), he replied: "For the same reason that you wear a red nose—as a mark of my occupation."—Strand Magazine.

A SIMPLE CIPHER USED IN HIGH FINANCE

When Wall Street first caught the fever for "industrial combinations" and began the reorganization of everything in sight, one of the votaries of high finance found himself in Chicago in extreme need of communicating with his New York office.

He had almost completed an arrangement for the consolidation of several Western enterprises, but in order to get the final authority he needed from New York, he must explain all he had done by wire to his partners.

There was no time to write. He had no cipher code. For a long time he tried to think out some way to send the information so that it would be plain to his partners and meaningless to any one else. His secret was a valuable one, and once sent over the wire might be sold out to his rivals in Wall Street for a large sum.

At last he decided to take the chances in plain English. Accordingly he wrote the message and gave it to his assistant to send.

Half an hour later, when the assistant came back, he asked him if he had sent it.

"Not just that way," said the clerk. "I rewrote it, the first word on a Postal blank, the second on a Western Union, and so on. I sent half by each company, and neither half meant anything. Then I sent a second message by one line, saying, 'Read both messages together, alternating words.'"

The scheme was too simple for the high financier to have evolved, but it worked perfectly.—Brooklyn Eagle.

His Tips Total $30 a Week.

A woman who appealed to the Charity Organization Society for help one day last week said that her son was able to assist her if he would.

"What does he do?" she was asked.

"He is the brusher, and has charge of the bootblack chair in a hotel," was the reply. "He makes between $30 and $40 a week."

The agent sent out to investigate and found the woman's statement true. Her son is employed in one of the big hotels close to Madison Square, and has been for six years. He declined to assist his mother because she had turned him away from home. He was married, he explained, and it cost him $100 a month to run his flat.

This young man told the agent he was no exception; that the position of brusher in a large hotel was worth at least $30 a week if a young man attended to his business. Hotel patrons are liberal tippers. The brusher is expected to find seats for customers if the barbers' chairs are filled, and to hand around the morning and illustrated papers. The boss barber pays them no salary. Permission to work in the shop is considered sufficient compensation. The hours are long, and in most cases brushers are allowed a boy as an assistant.—New York Press.

Cupid and the Recruits.

"Cupid is one of the best recruiting officers that Uncle Sam has," confided one of the sergeants attached to the recruiting headquarters. "Back of nearly every enlistment there is a woman in the case. Lovers' quarrels chase a lot of fine lads into the service. Your romantic youth gravitates to the recruiting office after a serious break with his sweetheart as naturally as a duck takes to water. It seems to him the most fitting way in which to sacrifice himself when love's young dream is apparently dispelled. Way down in his heart he nursed the idea of making his erstwhile inamorata sad, and it's the Army or Navy, with the possibility of death in battle, for him. Again, other first-class material is recruited by the desire of young fellows to sport a uniform before their girls. In such cases Cupid does his recruiting through vanity. But in both ways he manages to fill up big gaps in the ranks of Uncle Sam's fighters."—Philadelphia Record.

His First Attempt.

They were in a carriage going to a ball. He was just of age and was wearing his new dress suit. It was his first attempt at "doing things up in style." Never before had he worn a dress suit or taken a girl to a social function in a carriage. He had dressed in nervous haste, and yet he had tried his best to see that his raiment was absolutely faultless.

As they were driven rapidly toward the hall they talked of the fine time they expect to have. Suddenly the girl stopped talking and gazed intently at the bottom of the hack. The youth noticed that she was apparently interested in something down there, and he asked: "Mary, what's the matter with you? What makes you so quiet?" "John," she replied, "perhaps I shouldn't ask you such a question, but isn't there something wrong with your feet?" The young man looked down. He was still in his old carpet slippers, sockless.—Kansas City Times.

Settled the Dispute.

"James," cried Mrs. Timmid, "there are burglars down stairs."

"Oh, no, there ain't, my dear," replied Mr. Timmid.

"I'm sure there are."

"I'm sure there ain't."

"I tell you there are."

"I tell you there ain't."

"Your husband is right, mum," interposed a low-browed individual who thrust his head into the room at this juncture. "We're up stairs."

And as he started down he was heard to say to his pal: "I always believe in helping a husband out whenever I kin. I'm a married man myself."—Pittsburg Post.

SOLDIERS USE SKEES.

EFFICIENCY OF NORWEGIAN TROOPS INCREASED THEREBY.

Both Japanese and Russians Might Profit by This Experience and Introduce the "Foot Sled" in Their Armies During the Manchurian Campaign.

It would seem that both the Japanese and the Russians might profit by the experience of the Norwegians and introduce the skee into their Manchurian manoeuvres. By so doing they would enable their soldiers to move nearly three times as quickly over the snow; for the skee practically transforms the foot to which it is fastened into a sleigh with a narrow, lithe, nine-foot wooden runner, tipped with a sort of toboggan prow.

Norway is the home of the skee, and it is here that its practical use has been best recognized. Not only does the Scandinavian appreciate the "foot sled" in the way the Canadian does, for the sport it furnishes in the hunt or the coasting carnivals, but he has come to realize that it is a most important aid in winter time to the soldier. He will even tell you that if Napoleon's army had been equipped with skees in its invasion of Russia the French would have triumphed over the Slav and there would have been no such thing as the disastrous retreat from Moscow.

England has become deeply interested in the military value of the skee, and is considering its introduction into some of the Indian regiments. According to such British experts as Captain F. J. Jackson, of the Jackson-Harmsworth expedition, and Edgar Seyers, many of the difficulties experienced by Colonel Younghusband and his men in the recent expedition into Tibet would have been avoided had the troops been equipped with skees.

The Skandinavian infantryman is taught to manouevre on skees the same as he is instructed in the use of the rifle. As soon as winter has covered the earth with snow he is drilled in a regular series of exercises, and is expected to "march" and "countermarch," to "face about" and "mark time" on skees, just as he would without them. Such practices are continued until the soldier feels perfectly at home on his nine-foot soles.

To the beginner skees are not only cumbersome, but painful as well. Should he strap them on an ordinary pair of shoes his legs would feel weighted down like those of a diver, and the muscles of his ankles would soon begin to ache, as if they had gone through the "setting up stunt" of a military academy. But as soon as the amateur learns how the veteran keeman equips himself he sees his mistake. The veteran does not wear shoes, but goat hair socks, and he fastens his feet to the four-inch strips of wood by means of straps fastened into the top of the runner.

Members of the Norwegian skee regiments contrast strongly with Russian soldiers. They do not wear the high boots, long coats and heavy knapsacks of the Muscovites. No matter how far below zero may be the thermometer, they wear no overcoats. The Norwegian skeeman is dressed in a grayish green uniform, which fits him tightly and is only heavy enough to keep him warm. Because of the color of his clothes he may almost escape detection amid a clump of pines, such as are almost everywhere to be found on the Skandinavian peninsula. Besides his rifle, his sole burden is a 3-pound bag, loaded with provisions, a sleeping bag, an Iceland sweater, a change of underwear and a pair of boots.

When on the march skee infantry can travel eight miles an hour, going at a speed about equal to that of an average carriage horse on the trot. When necessary such a body of troops can cover 70 miles in a day, or nearly as great a distance as amateur bicyclists in the same length of time.

At the command to go into camp the soldier changes his goat hair socks and skees for a stout pair of boots wrapped about with pieces of old military capes to prevent them from getting wet and freezing. If the camping ground is near trees he builds a tent by cutting down fir saplings, trimming their trunks clean and stacking them up against each other so as to form a cone, their tops tied together with a wire. This skeleton he covers with canvas walls made of the triangular pieces which each soldier carries and which are quickly fastened together by means of hooks and eyes. When there are no trees near, the skees are used to support the tents.

If the soldiers are stationed in one place for any length of time they find skee coasting the best means of breaking the camp's monotony. They choose some smooth hillside, and near the bottom build a mound of pine boughs, upon which they pile a bank of snow. Then they round off this hummock until it looks like a natural knoll left from glacial times. Now all is ready for the fun.

Climbing to the top of the hill by crossing their skees at right angles, and bracing themselves against a disastrous descent by means of stout poles, they reach the top of the crest. When ready each skeeman gives himself a strong shove with the pole and starts down. His feet move faster and faster, until they strike the hummock, when he feels himself shoot up into the air and land with a sudden jolt on the snow beyond. He has travelled through the air perchance a hundred feet, and as lightly as a bird.

FRANCE FORCES RUSSIA

Rojestvensky's Fleet Ordered to Leave Kamranh Bay.

ADMIRAL TOGO IN READINESS

Japanese Commander Lies in Wait For the Czar's Armada—France Not Strong Enough to Force Her Neutrality, But Sends Urgent Message to St. Petersburg.

Tokio, Japan.—France has informed this Government that it has taken all necessary measures to prevent the Russian Baltic fleet from remaining any longer in French territorial waters. It has been assumed here that this effort by France is in the form of a message to St. Petersburg requesting the departure of the hostile squadron from Kamranh Bay immediately. The warships of France in the China Sea, it has been recognized here, are not powerful enough to enforce neutrality.

Two cruisers, a gunboat and five torpedo boats constitute the French navy on the coast of Annam, and Tokio understands that the French Ministry has not the physical power at this time to enforce its sovereignty. A formal request to Russia, however, if made, as is intimated by cable here, would bring the situation to a crisis. Should Rojestvensky decline to sail from Kamranh and Callao bays and thus defy the power of France, there would be no reason why Japan should not attack the Russian fleet in the harbors of French Indo-China.

The Tokio Government had directly requested that France observe neutrality, and was wholly satisfied with the intimation from M. Delcasse that Russia has been informed her hostile fleet has remained too long in the harbors of Annam. The Japanese Foreign Department sent to Paris direct proof that several battleships and cruisers had been for three days well within the three-mile limit. M. Delcasse was courteously told that the French officials in the Province of Annam could confirm this statement by cable.

This message to France was followed by one to London identical in character, but it was understood that Baron Hyashi requested the English Admiralty Department to send its British China squadron to the coast of Annam, so that plain observance might be had of the breach of neutrality should the Russian squadron continue to remain in French territorial waters. The insistence of Japan that the Russian squadron must depart has aroused great enthusiasm in Tokio, not because of the diplomatic phase of the subject, but because it made certain the belief that Admiral Togo was ready to strike, and simply wanted to force the Russian ships out into the China Sea.

Once Rojestvensky was forced to sail from Kamranh and Callao bays, the sea fight could not be long delayed. He could go southeast, of course, to one of the Philippine Island ports, where, however, he would be permitted to remain only a short time. He could go northeast to Hong Kong, a British port, where strict neutrality also would be observed. From either a Philippine or British port he would be at once reported to the Japanese navy, and on his departure would be subject at once to attack.

It was unofficially reported here that Rojestvensky has sailed with all his ships on a course southeast, which would bring him between the Paracels Islands and the Philippines. This rumor came from responsible officials in the Imperial Navy Department, but could not be confirmed.

Asked directly the question whether Rojestvensky's squadron had departed from Kamranh Bay, Baron Kosako answered by saying the ships were in the harbor at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Paris, France.—As a result of communications between the governments in Paris and St. Petersburg, the Russian Minister of Marine forwarded urgent orders to Admiral Rojestvensky to rigorously respect the neutrality of French waters. This was a precautionary measure. In addition special instructions have been sent to the Governor-General of Indo-China, M. Beau, and Foreign Minister Delcasse instructed the French Minister at Tokio to give the Japanese Minister for Foreign Affairs assurance that it was France's purpose to preserve strict neutrality, these being similar to the assurances given to Dr. Motono, the Japanese Minister in Paris.

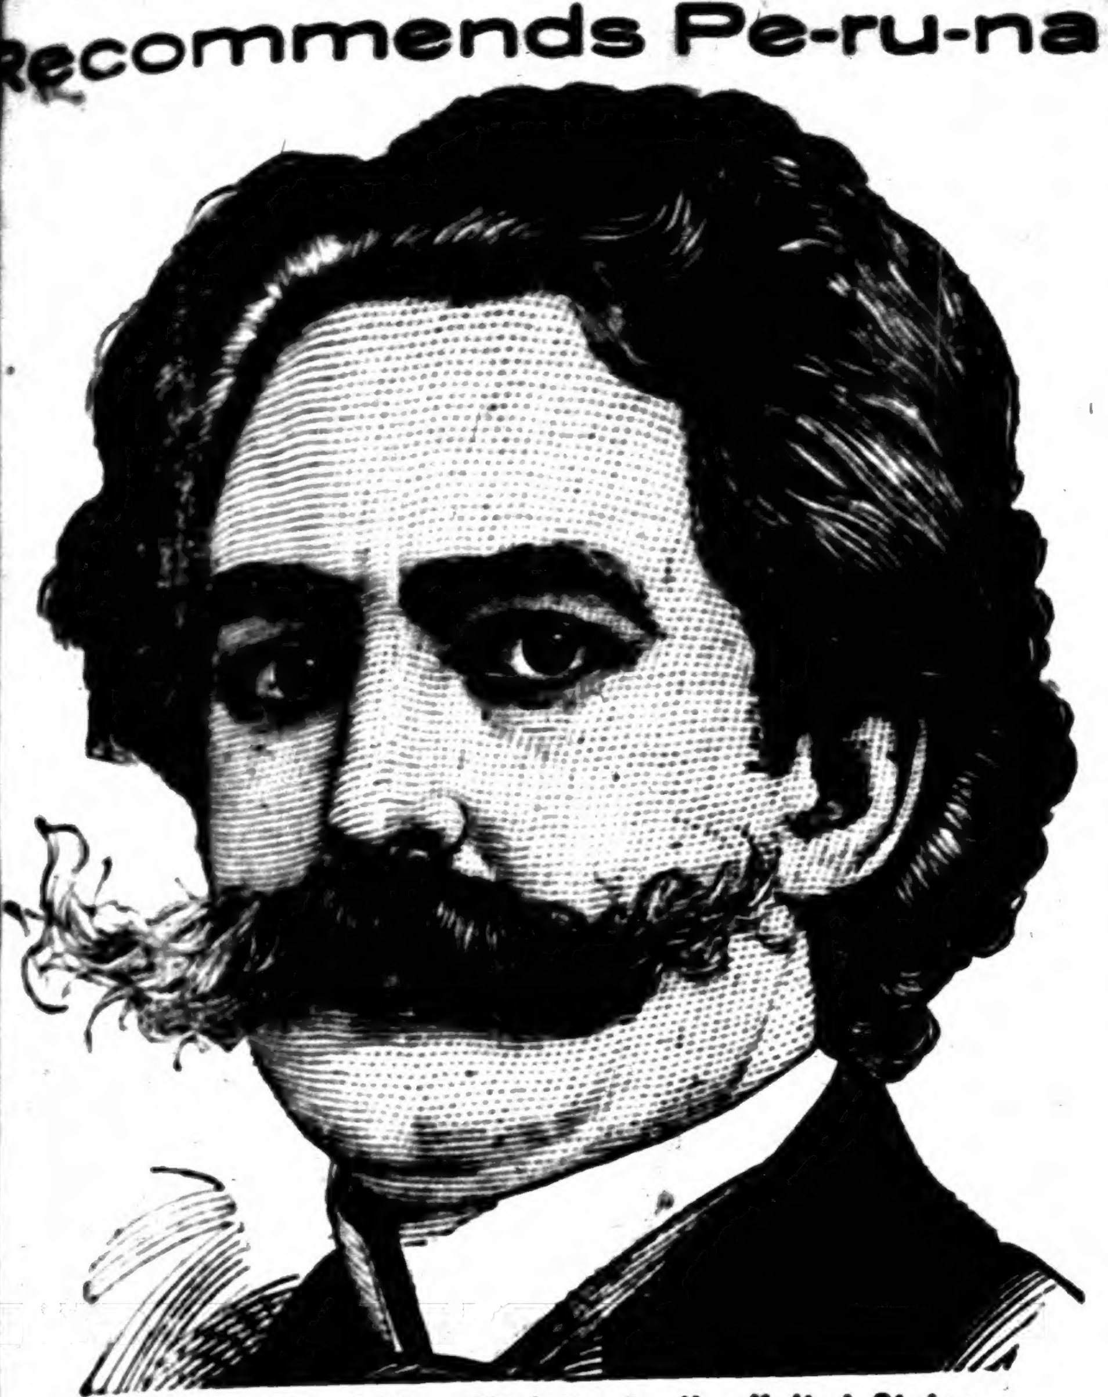
CUBAN MINISTER to the U. S.
Recommends Pe-ru-na



Senor Quesada, Cuban Minister to the United States.

Senor Quesada, Cuban Minister to the United States, is an orator born. In an article in The Outlook for July, 1899, by George Kennan, who heard Quesada speak at the Esteban Theatre, Matanzas, Cuba, he said: "I have seen many audiences under the spell of eloquent speech and in the grip of strong emotional excitement; but I have rarely witnessed such a scene as at the close of Quesada's eulogy upon the dead patriot, Marti." In a letter to The Peruna Medicine Company, written from Washington, D. C., Senor Quesada says:

"Peruna I can recommend as a very good medicine. It is an excellent strengthening tonic, and it is also an efficacious cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."—Gonzalo De Quesada.

Congressman J. H. Bankhead, of Alabama, one of the most influential members of the House of Representatives, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., gives his endorsement to the great catarrh remedy, Peruna, in the following words:

"Your Peruna is one of the best medicines I ever tried, and no family should be without your remarkable remedy. As a tonic and catarrh cure I know of nothing better."—J. H. Bankhead.

There is but a single medicine which is a radical specific for catarrh. It is Peruna, which has stood a half century test and cured thousands of cases.

GERMAN KALI WORKS, 93 Nassau St., N. Y., or Atlanta, Ga.—22½ South Broad St.

The Poet Herbert.

Herbert was a true child of an eager individualistic, realistic age. In its full tide he lived. An exceptionally wide acquaintance with its leaders of philosophy, poetry and the church brought his impressionable nature to accept the ideals as matters of course. He has not the hardy and spacious nature that asks fundamental questions. His mind is receptive, even if anticipatory. Too proud and independent for an imitator, and ever disposed to build his own pathway, he still employs in that building only the material he finds at hand. Rarely does he desire more. Small modifications, readjustments, the application of refinement and elevation where coarseness had been before—these rather than revolutionary measures are what he adds to the intellectual stock of his age. He is no Wordsworth, Keats or Browning; he is related to his time rather as an early Gray or Arnold, as one who voices with exquisite art what those around him already feel. But if the ideals of his time shaped him, he in turn shaped them. Through his responsive heart and dexterous fingers they attained a precision, beauty and compelling power which bore them far past the limits of that age.

How the Canal Will Be Dug.

Within limits, we now know just about what will be done. The bottom width of the cut will be 200 feet and the depth 40 feet. The Suez canal, averaging 115 feet wide at the bottom and permitting a draft of only 27 feet 10 inches, has proved too small. Several of the great new battleships of the British navy can now go through it only with hazard, and none of the larger freighters, fully loaded, such as have proved most economical for the trans-Atlantic trade, could go through. Even the larger German lines trading to the Orient often lose their steerageway and sheer against the sides. The Panama canal will be able to admit even larger vessels. There must be one lock—a tide lock—near Miraflores, and possibly one at Bohio, to reduce excavation.

Value of Farm Products.

Agriculture is still king in America. The value of the farm products of 1904 reaches the inconceivable sum of $4,900,000,000; exceeds by two-thirds the gross earnings of all the railroads; by three-fourths the market price of all the gold, silver, copper and other minerals; by five-sixths capital of all the national banks. Besides this, the American farmer owns $1,150,000,000 worth of horses and expends every year $100,000,000 for machinery. Here is food for thought for the statesman and the politician, the professional and the business man, the inventor and the publisher. Now, as in Colonial times, the embattled farmers are omnipotent.

The Japanese have just caused the Korean government to adopt the gold standard, and 10,000,000 yen will be borrowed from Japan with which to establish a currency in Korea.

Cannot Reduce a Rate.

It is stated in Washington that under the Townsend rate bill if a rate is fixed by the commission it cannot be lowered by a railroad. Should an emergency arise calling for a decreased rate the railroads or shippers would have to appeal again to the commission, there being no latitude allowed, whatever the circumstances. Hitherto a maximum rate has been the rule, but no such concession is made under the proposed legislation.

Remedy Against Old Age.

Curdled milk of a special kind, prepared only on a Bulgarian recipe, is now supposed to be a remedy against growing old. M. Xavier Dybovski has made a communication on the subject to the Academy of Medicine. The substance is called yaghurt, and can now be obtained in tins in Paris. It looks very like ordinary cream cheese gone bad, and tastes similarly. The solid portion is mixed with a white, thin liquid which is exceedingly sour. People who wish to live to a hundred, breakfast off yaghurt exclusively.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

PAINFUL PERIODS

Miss Nellie Holmes
Mrs Tillie Hart

While no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it does not seem to be the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely. Menstruation is a severe strain on a woman's vitality. If it is painful or irregular something is wrong which should be set right or it will lead to a serious derangement of the whole female organism.

More than fifty thousand women have testified in grateful letters to Mrs. Pinkham that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound overcomes painful and irregular menstruation.

It provides a safe and sure way of escape from distressing and dangerous weaknesses and diseases.

The two following letters tell so convincingly what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do for women, they cannot fail to bring hope to thousands of sufferers.

Miss Nellie Holmes of 540 N. Division Street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Your medicine is indeed an ideal medicine for women. I suffered misery for years with painful periods, headaches, and bearing-down pains. I consulted two different physicians but failed to get any relief. A friend from the East advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and no longer suffer as I did before. My periods are natural; every ache and pain is gone, and my general health is much improved. I advise all women who suffer to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. Tillie Hart, of Larimore, N. D., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I might have have been spared many months of suffering and pain had I only known of the efficacy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sooner; for I have tried so many remedies without help.

"I dreaded the approach of my menstrual period every month, as it meant so much pain and suffering for me, but after I had used the Compound two months I became regular and natural and am now perfectly well and free from pain at my monthly periods. I am very grateful for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for all the distressing ills of women.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound rests upon the well-earned gratitude of American women.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating, (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about your sickness you do not understand. She will treat you with kindness and her advice is free. No woman ever regretted writing her and she has helped thousands. Address Lynn, Mass.

FREE TO SUNDAY SCHOOLS

The late Rev A L Pattillo, of Verbena, was the author of several booklets on religious subjects, of which there are several hundreds of copies on hand. It has been suggested that they would be acceptable gifts to Sunday school scholars, and by kind permission of the family of the deceased gentleman, we are authorized to deliver free of charge, the booklets to Sunday school superintendents and teachers who apply for them so long as the supply lasts. There are no funds available by which we can send them by mail, so applicants from a distance who send a few stamps for postage will have the full amount mailed to them. Easter has come and gone, and it was indeed almost a perfect day, and was greatly enjoyed by us at this place. Our Sunday school was pretty well represented Sunday afternoon, also a number of visitors were present of which we were glad to have. After the recitation of the lesson we had a grand lecture by our beloved brother, Rev. W. J. Armstrong. He and his wife are always welcome visitors there.

Quite a number from this place attended the Easter service at Salem and reported having been well entertained.

About Rheumatism.

There are few diseases that inflict more torture than rheumatism and there is probably no disease for which such a varied and useless lot of remedies have been suggested. To say that it can be cured is, therefore, a bold statement to make, but Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which enjoys an extensive sale, has met with great success in the treatment of this disease. One application of Pain Balm will relieve the pain, and hundreds of sufferers have testified to permanent cures by its use. Why suffer when Pain Balm affords such quick relief and costs but a trifle? NEW PATENT BRIDGE APPROVED.

We, the undersigned Commissioners of Chilton County, having officially inspected the bridge built for the County of Chilton over Yellowleaf Creek, ten miles east of Clanton, and duly accepted the same on behalf of the County, beg to say to all parties interested that the bridge, in our opinion, is one of the very best in this County, and we heartily recommend Joseph W. Headley, the Contractor and Patentee, to all who desire to build a neat, strong and sound bridge, his patented idea insuring a safe and firm bridge at a very moderate cost.

This 4th day of April 1905.

County Commissioners—W. H. Conway, Alex Glasscock, Moses Robinson, R. P. Kendrick.

To all whom it may concern:

It affords me much pleasure to state that the bridge built over Yellowleaf Creek for the County Commissioners of Chilton County is very satisfactory in all particulars. It was built for the County by Mr. Joseph W. Headley, under letters patent held by him, the chief features of which comprise a bridge of timber, braced with iron rods, giving great strength and stability to the structure. I consider it an economical bridge from the fact that the iron rods are practically everlasting, and any portion of the timber work can be removed and reinstated at any time. I consider it to be the best bridge at the cost I have ever seen.

MINUTES S S. CONVENTION

of Beat 10, at Chestnut Creek, April 30.

The convention was opened at 9 o'clock by devotional exercises led J. M. Curlee and Dr. H. W. Caffey.

P. C. Dennis was elected as chairman and Judson Strock, secretary, for the meeting.

The first subject on the program, "What has the Sabbath school done for our country?" was ably discussed by Dr. Caffey.

N. J. Calloway introduced the next subject with a good talk—"How shall we enlist the people in the Sunday school work?" A discussion was made by Brethren Wm. Huckebee, Caffey, Henderson and I. M. Deason.

The afternoon session was called to order at 1:45 and after devotional exercises a splendid paper was rendered by Miss Melissa Howell. Messrs. Strock, Dennis, Dr. Caffey, N. J. Calloway and J. W. Jones made short talks.

The last talk was made by Pastor Deason on "The Sunday school as an educational force," in which he showed the Sunday school as the great institution by which the people would be educated morally and religiously. The Beat was permanently organized by electing N. J. Calloway as president and Wm. Wilson, secretary & treasurer.

There were present 36 delegates, representing Chestnut Creek, Cross Roads, Maple Springs, Verbena M. E., Verbena Baptist, Salem, Poplar Springs, Providence, Jemison M. E., Jemison Baptist, Marbury and Canaan.

Although the day was rainy the attendance was good. The people of the community entertained the delegates and all seemed to have enjoyed the occasion. The interest shown in the Sunday school work was encouraging.

Thorsby.

The recent closing of Prof. R. A. Rasco's school—Chapel Institute—in the Collins Chapel neighborhood near this place, was an epoch-marking event for this section of the country. The work and recitations by the school exhibited the result of splendid term training and showed plainly that the Principal requires from his pupils a practical application of what they learn from books. The aim of the Principal seems to be to teach his pupils how to do things in life and not to dream.

Six years ago Prof. Rasco came to this community to start his life work; he was without a school house. By his push and industry, and through the interest of his patrons, a most excellent school building has been constructed and is furnished with modern desks and blackboards and other necessary paraphernalia. As a result of this public spirit on the part of the citizens, lands in this community are at a premium.

Ringing addresses were delivered by the Principal, and by Prof. I. W. McAdory of Birmingham and by Wm. M. Adams of Clanton.

The concert at 7:30 p.m. was much appreciated and enjoyed by a large audience. This school is conducted as a non-sectarian and non-partisan institution and it deserves to succeed.

A Good Suggestion.

Mr. C. B. Wainright of Lemon City, Fla., has written the manufacturers that much better results are obtained from the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy in cases of pains in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus by taking it in water as hot as can be drank, That when taken in this way the effect is double in rapidity. "It seems to get at the right spot instantly," he says. For For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Shade's Mountain.

We had a hail, rain and windstorm here on the evening of April 17, the hail beat off the fruit and killed young chickens, also beat leaves off the young plants in the gardens, and broke window panes. The wind uprooted trees and blew out the window sash at Mrs. Patton's and Mr. Sellers, and did a great deal of damage to this section. One old gentleman was caught out in the storm with his horse. He had a gentle old horse but he got excited and tried to run away. The old gentleman in trying to hold his horse, was beat up considerably by the hail.

Miss Nera Tyler gave her young friends a most enjoyable entertainment at her brothers, Mr. Joe Tyler's recently.

Mrs. Harry Wheelock and Miss Gertrude Wheelock of Birmingham have been entertaining their young friends of the Magic City in a delightful house party at the lovely summer home of Mrs George Wheelock's.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shannon Birmingham will come out week to spend the heated term their nice summer home.

Mrs. J. A. Hester and her two sweet little daughters, Beverly and Margaret who have been the charming guests of Mrs. G. A. Northington's family, have returned to their home in Clanton.

Mr. Tom Dison of Jasper has been visiting relatives here.

Our people are enjoying English peas, Irish potatoes and straw berries from their gardens. It is reported that Mr. Towers got one half gallon of strawberries off of one bush, this year on the Mountain.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly

CLANTON, ALA.

Rt. Rev. M. J. Hoban, bishop of Scranton, in a sermon on child labor, at Scranton, Pa., declared himself unequivocally for permitting working boys to play athletic games on Sunday. He pictured the hardships that many boys undergo in the mines and mills six days of the week and criticised those that would prevent their indulging in recreation on Sunday. "I say, let them play baseball or football, or any other kind of ball, to their heart's content. The good Lord will be pleased to see them do it, I aver, providing they are good boys," said he.

Greenhouse gardening, as the most scientific and one of the more profitable and promising branches of farming, deserves the increasing attention it receives from the experimenting stations. New Hampshire station has a fine new greenhouse. Massachusetts and Rhode Island will try both to get one this session of the legislature, and the attempt should not fail of support from all who believe it a public advantage to encourage an industry which produces the greatest crop value from the least space of land.

On the whole, Spain is wonderfully peaceful and miraculously loyal, states the Bystander. Any native returning after 20 years' absence would scarcely know it. The antimonarchical forces are quiet; the Carlists are dormant—permanently, perhaps; the colonies are, most of them, gone, and the drain they made on the impoverished country is at an end. Thanks to the Regent Maria Christina, to the great Sagasta and to the unknown person or persons who blew up the Maine, Spain is now a country that has a chance.

According to Dr. Robert Ellis Thompson, a Philadelphia scientist, woman is unfitted for general housework, says the New York Householder. Nature is a branch of chemistry, or housecleaning, which requires expert mechanical knowledge. "Her natural function is that of a homebuilder," where she will elevate herself, solve all the vexing problems in our home life, save money for the men and prolong their lives. In the ideal home which the doctor constructs out of ink and paper there will be no kitchen. Meals will be served hot from a centralized cooking establishment. The family will have nothing to do but eat and digest, a labor which pure science shirks. Houses will be swept, mopped and scrubbed by the machinery of a domestic syndicate. Experts will do everything, even collect the bills automatically. There will be no Monday washdays and no Thursdays off for maids, for the domestic trust will look after all cooking and laundering. A dull, drudgery world may laugh at Dr. Thompson's idea. But by planning and by dreaming progress is made, even if not quite all the plans and dreams come true.

LABOR WORLD.

Boston garment workers are about to start an active campaign of label agitation.

The strike of teamsters against Montgomery, Ward & Co., of Chicago, Ill., has collapsed.

Plumbers have been on strike in Bayonne, N. J., for an increase of from $3.50 to $4 a day.

Brockton (Mass.) boot and shoe workers are starting an agitation for a labor temple in that city.

Another labor temple is to be erected. It will be built at Montreal by the Trades and Labor council of that city, it is said.

Minneapolis plumbers, who were on strike for a raise, have decided to "stand pat." A few firms have signed scale.

The next session of the grand division of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers will convene in biennial session in Buffalo May 8.

During the past year fifty-four unions were added to the Bricklayers' International Union, making 873 locals now allied with that body.

The twenty-third annual convention of the master plumbers of the United States will be held in Atlanta, Ga., June 6 to 8, of this year.

A general movement is on foot at New York to increase the wages of washer women to $1.50 a day and car fare. Now the women get $1.25 for a day's work away from home.

The Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen's Unions of the State of New York are making strenuous efforts to defeat the bill now before the Legislature, the object of which is to license meat markets.

The workmen's compensation act, recently passed by the British Parliament, has caused an appreciable increase in pauperism, as employers now refuse to retain old workmen who are slightly deaf or short-sighted.

STATE HAPPENINGS

Of General and Local Interest as They Occur.

A Shooting Affray.

Birmingham, Ala.—In a pistol duel at 9 o'clock Thursday morning on Twentieth street, near Railroad avenue, in which each participant emptied his revolver, W. A. Denson, an attorney-at-law, was twice wounded, once in the neck and once in the left leg, by R. L. Leatherwood, another attorney.

Mr. Denson, who is a son of Col. W. H. Denson, a noted lawyer, politician and soldier, was promptly taken to the Hillman hospital, where his wounds, which, though painful, are not necessarily fatal, were dressed.

Mr. Leatherwood was promptly arrested by Policeman Richardson and taken to the city prison. Later in the day W. F. Carter, a deputy constable, at the request of Mr. Denson's brother, swore out a warrant before Justice of the Peace R. L. Williams, charging Leatherwood with assault with intent to murder. Leatherwood was then transferred to the county jail, his bond being fixed at $2,500, which he made.

Raid on Lottery.

Mobile, Ala.—On information from federal authorities at San Francisco warrants were issued by the United States court for the seizure of a package of lottery tickets of the Mexican state lottery, shipped by Southern Express to L. Jackson, this city, and also for the seizure of lottery papers in the office of Jackson.

United States Marshal Deans secured the tickets on the warrant and raided Jackson's place, where lists of past drawings, blank applications for tickets and names of hundreds of patrons and other printed matter was secured and removed to the marshal's office.

New Plan Launched.

Gadsden, Ala.—A declaration of incorporation was filed in the probate office here for the Benevolent Order Sons of the South, which marks the birth of a most important institution. The incorporation is purely mutual and is in the nature of an endowment and sick and accident benefit association. The charter members are among the best people of the city and state.

The object of the association is to afford a safe and feasible method whereby young men and others may save small sums monthly and after a stated time withdraw the amount which they have saved with interest. A sick and accident benefit is also connected with the order. The social side provides for a secret order. The promoters expect to see it expand and grow rapidly.

Track Being Torn Up.

LaFayette, Ala.—The LaFayette railway is a thing of the past. Thursday night all the rolling stock except a few flat cars and a locomotive were spirited away to Opelika, to return no more. At an early hour Thursday morning the section gangs united at this place and began drawing spikes, taking up rails and crossties and loading some on flat cars, and this work has been pushed rapidly down the line Thursday.

It is generally understood here that a deal will be consummated as soon as the road is dismantled, but nothing official is given out concerning the matter. This line connecting LaFayette and Opelika was constructed and put into operation by LaFayette business men and LaFayette capital about ten years ago, and the enterprise has been a great favorite with the people of LaFayette and surrounding country, and deep regret is expressed on every side on account of the services on this line being discontinued.

District of Columbia Census.

Washington, D. C.—A police census of the District of Columbia just completed shows a population of 322,445, being an increase of 43,727 over the federal census of 1900. Of this population 227,607 is white.

Investigating Indian Mounds.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—The "Gopher," the private steamer of a party of scientists from the North, arrived here from Moundsville, where the party has been engaged in exploring the Indian mounds in that territory. The party consisted of Clarence H. Moore and Drs. Miller and McDonald, all from Philadelphia. They came up as far as Tuscaloosa to take the train here, having finished their explorations, and have left for their homes. The boat which they have been using will be sent back to Pensacola to await their further use next winter, when they will resume their relic searches.

Bank Increases Capital Stock.

Gadsden, Ala.—At a meeting of the stockholders of the First National Bank it was unanimously decided to increase the capital stock from $50,000 to $100,000. The increased stock was all subscribed at the meeting, the larger portion of the increase being taken by J. R. Palmer, of Georgetown, Ky., who was present at the meeting and who has moved to the city and will be identified with the bank and the city.

Soil Survey Completed.

Blount Springs, Ala.—W. G. Smith and Fred N. Mosher of the United States department of agriculture, who have been in Blount county the past ten months conducting a soil survey of that area, have concluded their work and forwarded same to the authorities at Washington.

The bulletin containing their work will be issued by the department in the near future.

Officials Are Reinstated.

Mobile, Ala.—F. E. Dewey and A. N. Bullitt, whose resignation as general manager and chief engineer of the Mobile, Jackson and Kansas City railroad were demanded on Monday, have been reinstated in their positions. Heads of departments who were released when Dewey and Bullitt went out were also taken back. President Bird M. Robinson has gone to New York, where, it is said, he will take the matter of the resignation of Dewey and Bullitt before the board of directors.

Purchase Coal Lands.

Jasper, Ala.—W. E. Leake and Peyton Norvell, known coal mine operators, have made a big purchase of valuable coal lands located on the Northern Alabama railway near Nauvoo. It is said that the purchase embraces about five thousand acres, and it is the purpose of the purchasers to develop their property at once. They will open mines on these lands, which contain one of the most valuable seams of coal in the entire district. There is much activity in mineral land trading in the section around Nauvoo, and it is destined to become one of the most prosperous sections of the country.

A Serious Cutting.

Gadsden, Ala.—There was a serious cutting affray in Gadsden Thursday night about 10 o'clock in which Charley Rakestraw, a hotel-keeper of Cedartown, Ga., was badly carved up by Luke Parks, a local bartender.

Mr. Parks is said to have been drinking heavily for the past week or two, and Wednesday night he went up to his room over Spoon Motlow's saloon, and found Rakestraw, who was also drinking, in his bed. Parks attempted to roust Rakestraw out of bed and in this manner, it is said, a fight was precipitated, in which Rakestraw's throat was cut and he was stabbed in the left side.

Policemen arrested Parks and physicians were called to sew up the cut on Rakestraw. While the wounds are dangerous it is not thought they will prove fatal.

Candy Concern Burns Out.

Selma, Ala.—The estimated losses of the fire at the American Candy Manufacturing Company foots up $21,500, with the insurance about $16,000, divided as follows: L. M. Hooper building, total loss $5,000, insurance $3,000; Mrs. J. A. McKinnon, adjoining building, $2,000, fully covered; Spencer building, $1,000, fully covered; E. B. Martin building, $500, fully covered; candy factory, machinery, and stock, $10,000, insurance $7,000; Atkins Grocery Company, water damage $3,000.

New Corporations Reported.

Montgomery, Ala.—The following new corporations have been reported to the secretary of state:

Sheffield Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry Company, Sheffield, capital $500,000. Incorporators: J. W. Worthington, S. B. McTyer and S. McGaughey.

Huntsville Bagging and Tie Company, Huntsville; capital $5,000. Incorporators: Isaac Shieffman and others.

New Market Banking Company, New Market, capital $10,000. Incorporators: H. L. Davis and associates.

Hainan Cable Cut.

London, Eng.—The correspondent at Hong Kong of the Daily Mail states that the cable to Hainan has been cut, presumably by the Russian squadron, to conceal the movements of the vessels there.

Engineers Go to Riverton, Ala.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—A party of United States engineers passed though this city en route for Riverton and Decatur, Ala. They came to this city by rail and left on the United States steamer Colbert for down river points. Riverton, Ala., will be the first stop.

Small Fire in the White House.

Washington, D. C.—One of the chimneys in the executive offices of the White House caught fire Saturday but practically no damage resulted. One engine responded, but the blaze was extinguished by a few buckets of water. A fire, started in all the open grates of the offices, caused the blaze in the chimney.

Cleveland, O.—Thomas Kavanaugh, arrested on the charge of violating the interstate commerce law by bringing lottery tickets from Mexico into this country and selling the same, was bound over to appear before the federal grand jury by United States Commissioner Starke. Bail was fixed at $1,000, which Kavanaugh furnished. Government officials say that a general movement to break up the selling of lottery tickets in this country has been inaugurated.

TWENTY-ONE KILLED

Texas Tornado Almost Razes Laredo—Call for Help for Homeless and Injured.

FINE SEMINARY BLOWN DOWN.

Damage Extends Over the Whole City and Telegraphic Communication Is Entirely Cut Off.

Laredo, Tex.—Later details from the tornado which struck this city Saturday evening indicate that first reports were by no means exaggerated, either as to the number of lives sacrificed or the financial damage resulting. Scores of people were injured and are being attended by the various physicians.

It will be impossible to state the number of the injured, but it is not believed that many deaths will result from injuries.

The number killed is sixteen in this city. Among the dead are:

The Dead.

Juan Guerrero, aged 46.

Julia Guerrero, aged 1.

Savania Guerrero, aged 22.

——— Guerrero, missing.

Unknown man, servant Laredo seminary.

Palitio Unicio, aged 56.

Juanita Jaramilla, aged 13.

Unknown man, employed in the Bruno hotel.

S. Munoz, aged 50.

Three members of a family named Trejo.

One woman and two boys, aged 8 and 9 years respectively, named Barrera.

Miss Gayetan, aged 17 years.

Four of the first mentioned were employed on the ranch of George Woodman. They were all crushed to death by the falling in of the heavy walls of the adobe house which they occupied. The others mentioned in the list met their fate in a like manner. The damage wrought at the Laredo seminary is severe. Not one of the group of magnificent buildings which go to make up that institution escaped damage. The barracks, the primary building, Emery hall and the chapel were damaged 50 to 75 per cent. The escape from death of the teachers at present quartered in the institution is considered miraculous, as the walls of some of the buildings which they occupied were completely demolished. Mrs. Easley, one of the teachers, was heroically rescued by several young cadets, students of the institution. They lowered her by a rope from a second story. She was badly bruised.

The Mexican National hospital building had the roof lifted from the edifice and it will require much time to replace the building for patients.

Whole Town Has Suffered.

A trip through the town fails to show a locality that has not suffered more or less from the storm. Trees, fences, telegraph and telephone poles, corrugated roofs, chimneys and walls and debris of all imaginable kinds strew the streets.

The city authorities have set diligently at work cleaning away the wreckage of the storm, and at a late hour the city is beginning to assume its customary tranquil appearance. Lineman are at work endeavoring to straighten out the tangle of wires, and it is believed that within two days the electric light service can be resumed. It is hoped to re-establish telegraphic communication, at least partially within two days.

Conditions in New Laredo, across the Rio Grande river, are similar to those existing on this side. It is not officially known how many dead or injured there are, but in an interview tonight, a city official of that place stated there were five dead that he knew of, although rumor has it that ten lives were lost. The five known dead added to the list of dead on this side of the river would bring the number of dead in both cities up to twenty-one persons.

The storm made its appearance from the southwest in the neighborhood of Lampasas, Mexico, 72 miles from this city, and it is reported that great havoc was wrought in that locality, although it is not thought that any loss of life resulted.

Dr. H. J. Hamilton, of the United States marine hospital service, has placed 150 tents with bedding, etc., at the disposal of the homeless.

Mayor Appeals for Aid.

Austin, Tex.—The following communication from Mayor Sanchez, of Laredo, addressed to Governor Lanham, was received:

"Laredo appeals to you and through you to the good people of Texas for immediate aid in our great misfortune of last evening. The cyclone wrought untold damage to this city. Several lives were lost, and distressing conditions prevail. It is impossible just now to state the extent of the loss of life and the damage to property, but we have seen enough to satisfy us that we need immediate assistance to relieve the suffering and the homeless."

In response to this request Governor Lanham issued a general appeal for help, expressing the wish that Texas in general would be liberal and prompt in their help.

Gen. Fitz Lee Dead.

Washington, D. C.—Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, United States army, retired, and one of Virginia's foremost sons, died at the Providence hospital here Friday night from an attack of appoplexy, which he suffered early Friday morning on a train while en route from Boston to Washington.

After General Lee had been removed to the hospital it was evident to the attending physicians that his case was a serious one, but they believed that his strong vitality and will power would assist materially in at least a partial recovery from the attack. His condition remained fair, considering the severity of the attack during the day, but shortly after 9 o'clock he began to grow weaker, his breathing became more rapid and his pulse lower, terminating in less than two hours in death.

The end was peaceful and without pain, the general remaining conscious until five minutes of the end. Half an hour before death General Lee recognized his brother, Daniel, who came into the room for a moment.

In the room where he died were Dr. Montgomery, one of the physicians at the hospital, Miss Dorsey, a relative and a nurse, two of the attending physicians, Drs. Edie and Kean, having retired temporarily. A pathetic feature of the case is that although General Lee was blessed with a family consisting of a wife and five children, not one of them was with him at the time of his death. The general was 68 years of age.

Postoffice Appointments.

Washington, D. C.—Postmasters appointed: Eliza, Jackson county, Sarah E. Smith; Pruitton, Lauderdale county, Albert S. Good; Durrow, Pickens county, James D. Duckworth. John M. Thompson, Mountainsboro, Etowah county, vice L. M. White, removed.

Bank Is Robbed.

Fort Worth, Tex.—A special from Shawnee, Okla., says that at Kendrick, thirty-five miles north of Shawnee, on the Santa Fe railroad, the Kendrick state bank was entered by robbers. Two men stood guard outside. The robbers were discovered at their work at the state bank, and a fight between the guards and citizens began. The noise of firing attracted other citizens. A lively fusilade occurred in which one citizen was hurt, but not fatally. The robbers escaped toward the south, carrying between $450 and $500 about $60 in nickels and the rest in silver.

They rode south and then returned into Indian Territory. Bloodhounds are to be brought to Kendrick from Wichita to be used in the chase.

New Field of Counterfeiting.

San Francisco, Cal.—John E. Wilkie, chief of the secret service, is here on his way to the Philippines to investigate the counterfeiting of American silver coins. The work is supposed to be done by Filipinos and Chinese. It has grown to such an extent that the business of the islands is being seriously menaced. Chief Wilkie will organize a large secret force to break up the gangs of counterfeiters and on his way to the Philippines will stop over in Honolulu where a branch of the secret service is about to be established.

Earth Shocks Felt in France.

Lyons, France.—Earth shocks were felt here and at Pontiarlier and Gex between 2 and 3 o'clock Saturday morning.

Senator Bacon Sails.

New York.—United States Senator Bacon, of Georgia, sailed for Europe Saturday on the steamer Princess Irene.

Policeman Shot.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—In a pistol duel on a crowded street here Saturday night, after ten shots were fired between Policemen James Harris and Nelson Brokton and Harry Tracy, a noted negro outlaw, all three were wounded, and it is feared that Harris' wounds may prove fatal.

Vessel Loaded With Phosphate.

Jacksonville, Fla.—Further news was received from the wrecked steamship Gaditano, which sung Thursday night at the entrance of Withlacoochee river. The cargo on board consisted of 3,000 tons of hard rock phosphate and was bound for Manchester, England. Mr. Sudlow, Lloyd's agent, will proceed to the wreck to see what the chances is for saving the cargo and raising the vessel, both being heavily insured through Lloyd's.

Time would Time did tell.

lly proved to be a stubborn h. However wise and noble my tion, Dolly thwarted it from the ning. She refused to glow, or she glowed tardily and purely for her own amusement. Dolly was capricious. Repeatedly she changed the dinner hour, and defeating me at every turn, appointed a dinner hour to suit herself. She despised me for my lack of experience. The more eager I became, the more stolidly indifferent she. Spitefully she burned my fingers. Dolly was never cozy. Her tea kettle never sang like Jewel's tea kettle. She objected to my dining functions. She had no sympathy whatever with the sentiment of birthdays and their attendant festivities. Whenever I snatched from her malicious embrace the charred remains of what promised so well until intrusted to her vindictive care, she gloated over my failure and consequent distress. Dolly and I invariably failed on our bread. If the bread was sour, then spitefully she baked it to perfection. At other times she incinerated it, or she floated it over the sides of the pan—anything to reflect upon my efficiency. Dolly and I fought bitterly for many months and I now and then victorious, but seldom.

Dolly was emphatically opposed to my literary pursuits. If, after giving her a task to perform, I took up my book for a few moments of mental refreshment, she blazed up in the liveliest manner. When she suspected I had my pen in hand, then she did her worst. I recall an experience with her when we cooked prunes. After placing the prunes over the fire in my bright new saucepan I invoked the muse in an adjoining room. Dolly had doubtless noted the room. Dolly had doubtless noted the preoccupied expression of my eyes as I consigned the new saucepan and its contents to her care. No sooner was my back turned than she and the clock and the prunes entered into a conspiracy, the details of which are too harrowing to relate. The prunes expanded, the clock hands raced around the dial, the fire fanned itself into a fury—and smoke, cinders and ruin were the combined result. Daring Dolly to foil me thus, I prepared the second instalment of fruit, and in my sole remaining stewpan placed the consignment to her care. Again, as soon as my back was turned, Dolly steamed up more fiercely than ever, and the fragrance of parched fruit called me from the land of dreams to the land of realities. Such insubordination was not to be tolerated, and the third invoice of prunes was placed in my preserving kettle, the one with the sacred porcelain lining. The details are not pleasant to remember, much less to relate, for again Dolly emphasized her disapproval of my literary proclivities. Dolly mutinied once too often. This was many years ago.

Since Dolly's day domestic science has invaded the culinary realm. The Fire King is a gas range, and he is a development from Dolly's failures. He represents progress, and he aims toward the solution of the servant problem. He challenges the intelligence of the expert. Brain has driven out brawn, and calmly superior to the perplexities of the past, he extends his hand to the domestic scientist with the silent assurance that he will make rough paths smooth. He is in sympathy with the technic of cookery. He understands high sounding and scientific terms. He knows about proteids and carbohydrates, and he knows bacteria and a thousand things unheard of in Jewel's time. He is a masculine invader in the realm of feminine inefficiency. How "ol' black mammy" would scoff!

The kitchen has changed, too. The domain of the Fire King is no thoroughfare. The children find no responsive smile on his face, no glow that reflects in their own faces. He is no inspiration to the story telling that was a feature of Jewel's reign in the evening when the work of the day was done. Even the bread and the pies and the cookies are no longer made as they were in Jewel's day. When did the Fire King ever achieve a gingerbread man? Whoever called him the altar of home? How "ol' black mammy" would scoff! What would she do without the home sentiment of which her kitchen stove was a regular inspirer! There is but little sentiment in science, and it is from the well of sentiment that the tax on civilization is drawn.—Haryot Holt Dey, in Woman's Home Companion.

THE LOON.

Some of the Peculiarities for Which This Bird Is Noted.

The loon differs from other birds in a number of ways. I have reason to think that many people are unaware of some, at least, of those peculiarities. The loon has a hide as tough as an ox, and its feathers can not be plucked without first scalding the bird as you would a hog. This incident will give some idea of the toughness of the hide. About thirty-five years ago, when I was living in Michigan, a loon was shot at with a shotgun industriously all summer, without apparently doing him any harm. In the fall I killed him with a rifle, just to convince the people that a loon could be shot and killed. He had many times been shot at with a rifle by the same people who had used a shotgun, and they had become convinced that he dove so quickly that he dodged the shot in that way. I had seen them shoot at him a number of times, and I could see the splash of bullet or shot in the water before the loon dove. I ridiculed the idea of the dodging, and that led to my shooting him to support my contention. When I skinned the bird I found and counted over a hundred No. 6 shot, all of them stuck to the inside of the hide, and so doing him no permanent harm. It is remarkable that he was never hit in the eye, nor sustained a broken wing.

Another thing peculiar to the loon is that after the chicks are hatched, if the mother wishes to move far she will make a shallow dive and come up under her babies and swim off with them on her back. The person that succeeds in photographing her under such conditions may well claim the pennant. Only once have I seen a loon shoulder her young, although for over twenty years I lived in the part of Michigan where then there was the best chance imaginable to watch loons. Now the timber has been cut off around most of the lakes and such favorable conditions for observation no longer exist.

Although I have only once seen a loon shoulder her babies, I have seen her swimming with them on her back many times. Once one swam within twenty feet of me and never suspected my presence.

One of their calls when sitting on the water, for volume beats that of any other bird or beast that I know of. I have heard them in the night when they were more than five miles distant, for they only make that kind of call from the water, and there was no lake in that direction short of that distance. To say that the loon is a very interesting bird is as mild as I can express it.—Correspondence in Forest and Stream.

A DEEP WATER MAN.

For This Reason He Didn't "Scare" When the Boat Hit a Sandbar.

Captain Coomers had sailed over all the seven seas and the mighty bay of Penobscot. Therefore he felt only contempt for the little bug-shaped steamer that carried passengers from the mainland to the island resorts, which at that time were just beginning to have a summer population. This was in the days when all good sailing men looked on steam craft as mere landsman's toys. Their contempt was warranted by the habits of the Belle of breaking down in midchannel, of steering off her course in a wind, and of staying at dock discreetly when there was any "considerable breeze of air."

In one passage across the bay she fell foul of a current that pushed her upon a sandbank. The passengers began to run for the boats and hunt in impossible places for life preservers. Capt. Coomers sat on deck, his big frame supported by a camp stool, and his "game leg" stretched on another camp stool. He sat still while the others, crew and passengers, were rushing about in futile activity. He looked at the strip of island, then out at the bay, then at the sky. Then he rested his chin on his chest and studied the deck planking.

A passenger ran up to him and cried: "Oh, captain, we are wrecked!"

"Hum?"

"We are wrecked."

"Be we?"

"Is there any danger?"

"Hum?"

"Are we going to sink?"

"Not fur in this water."

"Are you sure? I'm afraid we—we shall all be drowned!"

"Not if you're more'n four feet high."

The passenger seemed satisfied at last and went away. Capt. Coomers resumed his gaze at the deck. Presently another passenger saw him.

"Oh, captain, I'm so glad you're here!"

"So be I."

"Think there's any danger?"

"I ain't seen any."

"Of course we—we aren't far from shore?"

"No. We're as high as two lovers on a slopin' sofa."

"You take it coolly!"

"Well you see I've been wrecked off Cape Horn and I was in a boat that was chawed up by a whale. I don't puppus to get my boots wet out o' any sech land vehicle as this here."—Youth's Companion.

Might Have Been Suspected.

An elderly, well dressed citizen halted in front of a shop door in Market street Monday night and waited placidly for a car. A few feet above his head an iron framework creaked and from the framework fluttered a fringe of canvas which announced that magazines, periodicals, cigars and tobacco were sold within. It was an exposed spot. Other people, who were also waiting, were huddled around the corner of the building, but the subject of this sketch stood his ground, apparently contented with his surroundings, although the snow was sifting down on him at a furious rate and piling up on his hat and shoulders. "That's what comes of having a good name," said an amused observer, pointing at the solitary figure. "That man doesn't know they've taken in that awning for the winter. He sees that flapping border there and thinks he's protected. All last summer he stationed himself there and kept out of the wet, but he hasn't noticed that they've reefed the canopy and he'll never notice it unless he's told. He's near-sighted. But he has no bad habits and so he excites no suspicion. If I stood under that skeleton of an awning three minutes everybody would pity me and somebody would come up and offer to help me home."—Providence Journal.

Outcast from His Tribe

During the coldest night of the winter John Stink, a full-blooded Osage, was induced to sleep in the office of the Capital hotel. It is perhaps the first time he has spent a night under the roof of a hotel or dwelling house for many years. It is certain that it is the first this winter, despite the exceeding cold. This Indian is a peculiar character, and therefore the reason for his living out of doors. As an Osage, he is possessed of considerable wealth, and yet he is the poorest person in the world. He is nearly 50 years old, and has no relatives.

He is an outcast among his tribe. He is supposed by his tribesmen to be possessed of an evil spirit and for this every Indian shuns him as a viper. This antipathy has existed for years, and, as the story goes, has arisen from a burial of John for dead and his coming back to life again.

After an illness that lasted for a long time his tribesmen thought him dead and he was buried according to the primitive customs of the Osages. This was to cover the body with stones to sufficiently prevent the wolves from getting to it. He was placed on the hill used for the burying ground and the stones piled over him. But he was not dead. His strength returned and he was able to wiggle out from among the stones, and eventually recovered.

Since that time no Indian will have anything to do with him. He beats about the country surrounding Pawhuska, camping under nooks about town when he is here, but refusing always to sleep under a roof. The night when he was induced to sleep in the hotel office was bitter cold. The old Indian had wandered about until he was almost frozen, when some white men almost forced him to go into the hotel to stay.

The night before he had slept out of doors under a big tree. He had a big fire and only a little clothing. He seems able to endure a wonderful amount of exposure. The old Indian seems to have no aim in life, no hope, no pleasure. He is simply existing until the end with the stoicism of his race.—Arkansas City Traveler.

A Little About Interest

Insurance premiums, simple interest and compound interest have received unwonted attention since the spot light of public notice was focused on the possibilities of the vast capital held by a life insurance company controlled by one man. A mathematician has calculated that if one English penny, or two cents American, were put out at 5 per cent compound interest at the birth of Christ it would have amounted by the year 1810, to more money than could be expressed by 357,000,000 globes each equal to the earth in magnitude, all of solid gold of standard quality. But if the penny had been put out at simple interest the amount in the same time would have been only a little over $1.70. Carrying the compound interest figures on the same amount up to the year 1846 gives as a result 2,107,530,864 worlds of solid gold.

Some other compound interest figures are as follows: Every man at fifty years of age who has saved $1.25 a day since he was twenty-one years old and compounded it annually at 4 per cent is worth $25,000. Every man at the age of fifty-five who has saved $1.51 a day since he was twenty-one years old and compounded it annually at 4 per cent is worth $40,000. Every man at the age of sixty years who has saved $1.75 a day since he was twenty-one years old and compounded it annually at 4 per cent is worth $60,000.

In ancient Athens the lowest rate of interest was 10 per cent and the highest 36 per cent. In Rome similarly exorbitant rates were allowed. About the year 346 B. C., however, the rate in Rome was limited to 5 per cent later the practice of taking interest for money was forbidden. In England an act was put in force in 1197 forbidding Christians to take interest for money. During the reign of King Henry VIII. there was an enactment making 10 per cent the legal rate, but it was repealed. From 1552 to 1624 the rate was 10 per cent. In the latter year it was reduced to 8 per cent and the word interest was first used instead of usury.

America's Men of Letters

There is much of what Matthew Arnold styled "excessive Hebraizing" among the Americans; there is much of Phoenician money-making and Philistine materialism. But they have Hellenic affinities, too, in their love of freedom and novelty, in their openminded inventive resourcefulness, their boundless curiosity and their equally boundless good nature. America has hardly yet begun to produce great art or great literature of her own on her own soil. In literature she achieved more when her population was scant and sparse than she has done since she has attained her present vast dimensions. She has produced no later writers so good as Fenimore Cooper and Poe and the early Boston group, Emerson and Hawthorne, Longfellow and Holmes and Lowell. In them, as a subtle critic of her own, Dr. Van Dyke, says, "the small New England nation flowered." The great American nation has not yet reached, perhaps could hardly yet have reached, her flowering day. That she will do so ultimately there can be little doubt.

Meanwhile, let her bethink her of what her first, and still her most inspired, singer calls in his exquisite little poem, "The glory that was Greece." For that day she may well prepare herself by the aid of such teaching as Dr. Butcher conveys in his "Harvard Lectures on Greek Subjects." But, indeed, the eloquent words with which these lectures conclude have a lesson for our race on both sides of the Atlantic, a word at once of warning and of encouragement. "It is the glory of Greek literature that of all literatures it is at once the most artistic and the most popular. And our hope, our best hope for the literature of the future is, that as the democratic movement extends and calls forth enlarged intellectual sympathies, the old Hellenic harmony may be re-established between that eternal love of beauty on which all art and literature rest, and that love of scientific truth which is the dominant mark of our own age."—The Spectator.

Told of Yankee Skippers

A Machias brig once came on the Irish coast in thick weather, looking for Cape Clear. The captain kept along till noon, when he heard a bell ringing, which rather puzzled him, for it sounded very heavy for a ship's bell, and could hardly be a church bell on shore. Just then the cutter shot out of the fog and asked if he wanted a pilot.

"Pilot?" said the skipper. "What do I want a pilot for? I can find my way up St. George's channel without any pilot. What bell's that?"

"You'll want a pilot where you are, captain. That bell is on the floating light off Liverpool!"

"By ginger!" ejaculated the downeaster, "I've been looking for Cape Clear ever since daybreak and here I've overrun my reckoning 300 miles!"

Curious tales are told of the extent to which the Nantucket and New Bedford whaling skippers kept their minds on their business, regardless of distractions. One of these, who was caught in a whale's mouth and seriously injured, being asked what he thought when the whale seized him, said he "thought she'd turn out about forty barrels."

Another was rowing off from shore on the coast of South America in company with five other whale ship captains. Of course, the boat crews began racing and the captains, growing excited, cheered on their men, shouting bets and chaffing each other. Our skipper, however, kept mumbling to his crew to take it easy and let the others lead.

"It's the race who shall see Palmer's island first that I'm bound to win," said he, pointing to a little bight in the shore line. "Did you ever see that rock on the beach before? Guess not. That's a cow whale, up there, with her calf. It's her nursery."

He got the whale and got the calf. Little was said by the other ships about the race he didn't win, but he won the race to Palmer's island.

Along the Winding Trail

Banish care and follow after!
  Heed the voice of hill and vale!
Brooks shall lead us with their laughter
  All along the Winding Trail.

Leave the babel of the city,
  Of the teeming, scheming marts—
Mammon, deaf to prayers of Pity,
  Trafficking in human hearts!

Through the wood as we go wending
  What rare music shall be heard—
Lyrics in the sweet, unending
  Conference of bough and bird!

There the south wind softly blowing
  Fans the wild rose to a flame,
And the river seaward flowing,
  Signs in silver Beauty's name.

There, afar, from trade's loud clamor
  Gold shall starve the soul no more;
And the flicker's rhythmic hammer
  Fall upon the forest's door.

There, on branches drooping lowly,
  Where the rhyming waters run,
Wren and robin feel the holy,
  Warm baptism of the sun.

Let us hasten! We shall follow
  To the haunts of bloom and bee;
Down the trail that threads the hollow
  With no guide but Fantasy.

Do not linger! Follow faster!
  Flower and tree know naught of doubt!
Hear the harpists of the Master
  Shake the maple's music out!

What care we if ways be hilly,
  Joy shall wait where'er we turn,
Here an orchid, there a lily,
  In the shadow of a fern!

We shall pass these leafy portals,
  Though the Winding Trail be long,
To the realm of dreaming mortals
  Who would seek the shrine of Song!

Railroad Earnings in Alabama.

The table of statistics published below, which has been carefully compiled from the reports of the several railroads named to the railroad commission for the year 1903, shows that there are 23,531 employes in Alabama and that they receive an average daily compensation of $1.73. The railroads therefore pay out daily in Alabama to their employes $40,708.63; monthly, $1,221,258.90; annually, $14,655,106.80. This money of course remains in Alabama, and is expended by these employes in the different communities where they reside. It is estimated that the railroad received during that year approximately only $9,205,185.99 from their local traffic, and it will be seen therefore that the railroads paid out to their employes $5,449,920.81 more money than they received from their domestic business. This excess was, of course, paid out of the interstate earnings. It should not be forgotten, also that those railroads buy as fuel for their engines in the Birmingham district large quantities of coal, and also buy steel rails, iron and other equipments, which amounts to many hundreds of thousands of dollars, and to this should be added the cost of depots, etc. The railroads also pay about $600,000 annually for state and county taxes. About $160,000 of this goes direct to the school fund and about $54,000 to the soldier tax, and the remainder, $266,000, into the general fund. They also pay about $13,000 license tax, which is used to defray the salaries and expenses of the railroad commission of the state. It should be remembered that all of this money remains in Alabama, and will cover approximately all the earnings of the railroads in Alabama.

These figures and facts should be given careful consideration by all those who are now studying the transportation problem in this state. The table referred to is as follows:

Lumber Plant Destroyed.

Beaumont, Tex.—The plant of the Lemonville Lumber Company at Lemonville, Tex., Tex., fifteen miles northeast of this city, was struck by lightning, resulting in the total destruction of the plant by fire. Loss, $50,000, partially covered by insurance.

Quarter of a Million Lost.

White Springs, Fla.—The saw mill of R. J. and B. F. Camp, one of the largest concerns of the kind in Florida, was burned here with the dry kiln, veneering mill, commissary and 2,000,000 feet of lumber. The fire spread to neighboring houses and several of them were destroyed. The loss will reach at least $250,000.

Car Inspector Hurt.

Childersburg, Ala.—T. A. Prickett, car inspector for the Central of Georgia railway, suffered a very painful accident here. He fell under the wheels of a moving train, the rear wheels of the caboose passing over his foot and mashing it very badly. Mr. Prickett states that when he got off the train here his foot caught on a stick, causing him to fall under the car. The company's physician, Dr. W. H. Hutchinson, was sent for and dressed the foot. Mr. Prickett was sent to his home at Phoenix City.

Thirteen Indicted in Senatobia.

Senatobia, Miss.—Thirteen of the alleged slayers of Sheriff Pong, who was shot to death in the county jail here while defending a prisoner from a mob, have been indicted by the Tate county grand jury. Eleven of the men were brought into court and arraigned on the charge of murder. The other two men indicted, the Spencer brothers, have not been apprehended.

The Chilton County Farmers Alliance at its regularly quarterly meeting held last Friday at Collins Chapel was well attended and after considerable discussion the Alliance decided to build a warehouse of not less than 2000 bales capacity, a ginnery with a capacity of not less than 50 bales per day, a cotton seed crusher and oil mill, and fertilizer mixer. The paln proposed is to form a stock company with shares of a small amount so that everyone can take some part in the enterprise. The location of the plant was left for further consideration. Alex G. Dake, W. H. Conway and Moses Robinson were appointed a committee to attend to the organization, and the subscription books will be opened next Saturday, May 6, when it is expected that a considerable amount of stock will be subscribed at the meeting of the Cotton Association.

SEVERAL communications are unavoidably held over, owing to lack of time and space. We would be glad if correspondents would get their communications in not later than Tuesday morning.

DEATH OF Mrs. W. H. MARCUS.

When, last week, Mrs. W. H. Marcus left her home in Clanton to visit her son, T. C., at Lomax, she was apparently in her usual good health, but forty-eight hours after leaving home the good lady was no more. She left home on Wednesday morning, and on Thursday night was seized with a slight stroke of paralysis and hemorrhage of the brain and died shortly afterwards. The funeral took place Saturday morning at the Clanton cemetery, she having expressed the wish to be buried there, Rev. J. T. Eckford officiating.

Mrs. Marcus was 52 years of age, and had lived her entire life in this county. She was a member of the Baptist church, and leaves six children to mourn the loss of a good mother. Her husband died nearly eleven years ago. We deeply sympathize with the bereaved family.

Maplesville.

It is our painful duty to state the sudden death of our most estimable citizen, Dr. F. D. DuBose. He had been in poor health for many months, but his wonderful energy kept him up until about four o'clock Friday evening, April 28, he suddenly fell in the hall and died in a few minutes. His faithful wife was by his side in a moment, and Dr. Claughton was with him in ten minutes, but all too late. His health had been too poor for more than a year to engage in any active exercise, but he was ever ready to help the suffering when he could. His son, Dr. Goodwyn DuBose, and his mother in law, Mrs. N. C. Goodwyn, who were in Selma, were telegraphed for and they came that night. His brother, James DuBose, and cousin, Frank Kelly, came next day. Dr. Goodwyn DuBose and wife had his remains carried to Selma so they might care for his grave at their home. The shock of his death was sudden and terrible to his heart-broken wife. Deepest sympathy is offered the family. Dr. DuBose would have been 60 years old in September. He was a brave Confederate soldier.

UP AND DOWN.

Verbena, April 25, 1905

Editor Banner—The last few weeks has demonstrated beyond argument that it is impossible to organize those who till the soil sufficiently to make them all stick, and while the greatest array of backing ever exhibited in any cause has been offered the farmers in the last few months, yet they seem to be determined upon the old plan, i. e., Jones tricks Brown and Brown tries to trick Smith, one halloas out "Reduce acreage and fertilizer!" while he slips around and increases his own, and if the signs of the times stand for anything we are going to make another bumper crop of cotton this year, and if so I predict 4 to 5 cents the ruling price for 1905-6, and I shall not be sorry, for it reminds me of an old fellow who before the war was all sorts of a man. During the spring and summer he was awfully religious; then in the August election he took great part, was very political, making frequent stump speeches. Then when the cotton was ready for market he was a leader in getting up an old antebellum wagon train for Montgomery, and on one occasion while in Montgomery he got full. (He frequently got this way.) Took a goods box into the street, mounted it, called up the party of the wagon train, and raising his brown jug said, "Boys, in the spring and summer I preach to you and you won't do right, in the August election I speak to you and you won't do right, and now d— you, I am going to drink with you and see if you will do right." So it is with the Southern farmer. What could be done to unify their action? Cotton rolling in right along and selling too, and who could reasonably expect a rise under such an influence? "Let her go gallager," I shall not be hurt if it is only 2 ¢ in the fall, for my reduction has been from 85 to 4 acres and I am thinking about converting that into peas and sorghum and right here I want to urge our worthy president to correspond with and secure the attendance at our meeting on May 6 of a good speaker who understands and believes in diversified crops, and also in sympathy with our efforts to help the Southern farmer. Our worthy State President is sending out circulars all over the State urging all to be up and doing. Hon. John Sharp Williams of Mississippi is giving his valuable time and talent to the cause of the Southern farmer and diversification of crops. We should all lay aside our home affairs on May 6 and go to Clanton for the edification of each other. Leave politics at home, let us take a poll of the county, put each one who attends on record as to whether he did reduce or not. Then again there is a social influence about these meetings which should, and no doubt will, have a good effect. Let us discuss the barbecue on July 4, as advocated by Mr. J. N. Dennis; also have speeches as to how to cultivate the different crops, the best breed of hogs, etc., all of which is elevating as well as edifying. Let each farmer have his hair neatly trimmed. Let the old cat lick his face, (shave) put on his best clothes and a broad smile, so if we do have some good speaker he can go off and tell it that Chilton is "coming across."

In conclusion I want to urge that every man who has not done so, that for each two mule farm he plant in drills one-half acre of his very best land to amber sorghum, plant thick and cultivate with scrape only. Don't pull the fodder off your corn, as it injures both corn and land, and the one half acre in sorghum is sufficient for two horses and two cows for all the roughness they will need in a year. Don't forget to sow 1 to 1½ bushels peas to each acre of oat land as soon as oats are off, turn in deeply and closely and see if you don't get good returns besides greatly improving your lands. Let us all act as one man and make old Chilton the banner county of Alabama. Let all lay aside the little differences in the past and strike a higher plane. Let us be not ashamed but proud of our county. Let each man resolve to uphold the law and to see that those who are not disposed to do so shall obey it. With kindness toward all and with special regards for the Banner.

A Creeping Death.

Blood poison creeps up towards the heart, causing death. J. E. Stearns, Belle Plaine, Minn., writes that a friend dreadfully injured his hand, which swelled up like blood poisoning. Bucklen's Arnica Salve drew out the poison, healed the wound, and saved his life. Best in the world for burns and sores. 25c at Upchurch Drug co.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

Special correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, D. C., May 1, 1905

There seems to be a growing conviction here that this whole matter of railway rate legislation is a big bluff being played by the Republican members of Congress, who are wedded to the protective tariff. That the Esch-Townsend bill was passed by the Republican members of the Lower House as a means to ally agitation is well known. They knew the Senators would hold it up and strangle it, for the time being, at least. The Senate did as was expected. That gave all of them a chance to sound public opinion and find the best strategic ground for the future. It was all a comfort for the "stand pat" tariff men. It diverted attention from the tariff revision that the Republicans had promised, that Roosevelt demanded, and on which a score or more members were elected to Congress last Fall. The protected industries saw their opportunity. They joined in an hysterical and hypocritical howl for railroad regulation, although most of them were beneficiaries of whatever railroad rebate system was in existence. They are clamorous still. "The railroads can take care of themselves," said one of their spokesman, "and we can throw this rate regulation sand in the eyes of tariff-reforming Congessman until they can't see anything else."

The people are like sheep. They follow any bell-wether with a loud bell on its neck. They have joined inthe rate regulation hue and cry and are yelling themselves hoarse over it, particularly in the west. It is all very much of a humbug from a Republican standpoint, it strikes me. What has become of the Iowa Idea? Have the promises of tariff reform been forgotten in the noise surrounding this new bogey? Are Democrats being diverted from the crying need of tariff reform and unwittingly being made tools of by the gormandizing tariff protected trusts and robbers? Have these great robbers been forgotten in the race after the petty larceny railroad men?

Meantime the tariff-protected trust magnates are standing by, laughing at the plight of the railroad men and shouting "Sic 'em Tige!" to the public, which seems to have forgotten that tariff robbery of the public is greater now than it ever has been, and that it is that tariff robberry that costs the people many times as much as anything they ever lost through the misdeeds of railroad managers.

Let's stop and think a minute. Is railway agitation being used to pull tariff chestnutts out of the fire?

Get SCOTT'S Emulsion

When you go to a drug store and ask for Scott's Emulsion you know what you want; the man knows you ought to have it. Don't be surprised, though, if you are offered something else. Wines, cordials, extracts, etc., of cod liver oil are plentiful but don't imagine you are getting cod liver oil when you take them. Every year for thirty years we've been increasing the sales of Scott's Emulsion. Why? Because it has always been better than any substitute for it.

Terrific Race With Death.

"Death was fast approaching," writes Ralph F. Fernandez, of Tampa, Fla., describing his fearful race with death, "as a result of liver trouble and heart disease, which had robbed me of sleep and of all interest in life. I had tried many different doctors and several medicines, but got no benefit, until I began to use Electric Bitters. So wonderful was their effect, that in three days I felt like a new man, and today I am cured of all my troubles." Guaranteed, Upchurch Drug co; price 50c.

Why Suffer From Rheumatism?

Why suffer from rheumatism when one application of Chamberlain's Pain Balm will relieve the pain? The quick relief which this liniment affords makes rest and sleep possible, and that alone is worth many times its cost. Many who have used it hoping only for a short relief from suffering have been happily surprised to find that after awhile the relief became permanent. Mrs. V. H. Leggett, of Yum Yum, Tennessee, U. S. Remarkable Feats of Mathematical Geniuses.

INDIANAPOLIS has a mathematical genius in the person of George Hunter, a boy only eight years old, and who accomplishes the most astonishing feats with figures. He calculates instantly, without the aid of paper and pencil, the answers to problems which would puzzle even a professor of mathematics using the ordinary methods.

Young Hunter's parents are well to do, and his remarkable faculty will be developed if possible. It may be that when he reaches manhood's estate he will lose this gift, as has been the case with so many cases on records. On the other hand, he may enjoy a successful career, as has been the case with a few of such prodigies. A writer recalls the career of George Parker Bidder, who was one of the most remarkable mathematical geniuses, and who followed up his precocious youth with a successful manhood.

Bidder was born in 1806 at Morton Hampstead, in Devonshire, England, where his father carried on a small business as a stonemason. When only four years old Bidder showed a most extraordinary ability for calculation. His peculiar talents soon attracted general attention, and his father found it more profitable to travel about the country and exhibit his son as the "calculating phenomenon" than by following his humble trade. The boy was taken to London and his peculiar talents were investigated by the most learned men of his time, whom he astonished by the rapidity with which he answered the most difficult questions.

The following question was solved by him in forty seconds: "Suppose the ball at the top of St. Paul's Cathedral to be six feet in diameter, what did the gilding cost at 3½d per square inch?" The answer, £237 10s 1d, was given before the examiner had time to put the figures of the example on paper. The following question was answered in sixty seconds: Suppose a city to be illuminated with 9999 lamps, each lamp to consume one pint of oil every four hours in succession, how many gallons would they consume in forty years?" The answer contains nine figures—169,489,050 gallons. Another curious question was: "Suppose the earth to consist of 971,000,000 inhabitants, and suppose they die in thirty years four months, how many have returned to dust since the time of Adam, computing it to be 2850 years?" This problem offered no difficulties to the lad, who nonchalantly rattled off the answer in less than thirty seconds. Fortunately for the boy, he attracted the attention of some eminent scholars, who had him educated at Camberwell, and afterward at Edinburgh, where he carried off all the prizes for the study of higher mathematics. After his graduation from college he pursued the profession of engineer and became associated with Robert Stephenson, and assisted in constructing the Birmingham Railway. Later in life he entered Parliament, and many stories are told of Bidder's wonderful skill in detecting a flaw in some set of elaborate calculations. He died at Dartmouth in 1878.

Another extraordinary child was Zerah Colburn, who was born at Cabot, Vt., in 1804. His remarkable genius for abstruse mathematical problems was displayed at an early age, and when he was eight years old he solved the most difficult problems by the mere operation of his mind. Asked by an eminent mathematician to give the square of 999,999, he replied almost instantly, giving the figures, 999,998,000,001, without any hesitation. He observed that he produced the result by multiplying the square of 37,037 by the square of 27. He was then asked to multiply answer twice by 49, and once by 25, a task which he accomplished in less than two minutes, although the answer consisted of seventeen figures. In five seconds he gave the cube root of 413,933,348,677, and to all questions of similar nature he succeeded in giving the correct answers. Professors and scientific men endeavored to obtain a knowledge of Colburn's methods, but the boy declared he was unable to explain how the answers came into his mind. He was ignorant of the commonest rules of arithmetic, and could not even solve a problem on paper, not even a simple feat in multiplication or division. Colburn's faculty of computation left him when he reached manhood, and he died at the early age of thirty-six.

A singular instance of this curious development of the calculating faculty and differing in several respects from Bidder and Colburn, is the case of Jebediah Buxton, who, though he cannot be called an infant prodigy, is one of the most remarkable of the mental calculators when names are a part of the history of the curious. Buxton was born in 1707 in Elmerton, in Derbyshire, where his father was schoolmaster. Notwithstanding his father's profession, Jebediah's education was neglected. He was not even taught to write. It was not until he had arrived at manhood's estate that he showed any aptitude for mental arithmetic. Once interested in the subject, however, his mind developed with amazing rapidity. He had a remarkable memory, and while in the midst of a problem he could desist and resume the operation again where he had left off, even if it were a year after. A remarkable thing about the man was that he would allow two persons to propose different problems at the same time, and he would answer each without the least confusion. He could also talk freely while working out his problems. Buxton died in 1772.

Many other examples of these "freaks of nature" are known, and among them may be mentioned a negro of Maryland, who, with no education whatever, possessed a wonderful gift for solving difficult mathematical problems. With the exception of Bidder, few of these geniuses have amounted to anything, and as time went on they either lost their marvelous power or died before they could make it serve some useful purpose. Young Hunter, of Indianapolis, may be an exception, but the chances are that in ten or fifteen years his mysterious gift will leave him.—World's Events.

Ireland's Great Orator.

To read Mr. Healy's speech of the same day is to get but the ghost of a notion of Mr. Healy's really wonderful gifts of oratory. He is to-day the most brilliant speaker in the House of Commons. He has not Mr. Redmond's grace and polish; he has nothing, indeed, in the nature of either. But his attack is cruelly effective; he never spares either his nominal opponents opposite or his real ones sitting around him. He is the only sardonic speaker in the House. There is a grimness, a constant ring of challenge that is repellent or attractive as you are the object of his uncharitable attention or merely the delighted detached observer. —London Saturday Review.

A Teacher For Fifty Years.

John M. Roys, of Clayton, bears the proud distinction of being the oldest teacher both in point of years and service of any man in Western Massachusetts or Connecticut. Mr. Roys is now acting as tutor in the family of Mr. and Mrs. William Canfield, just over the line in Canaan Valley, Conn.

Mr. Roys was born March 4, 1834, and began teaching at the age of twenty-two, and with the exception of two years it has been his life's work. He has tutored in many of the prominent families in the vicinity of his home and two generations of the Canfield family owe their education to him.—Great Barrington Correspondence, Springfield Union.

Hotels For Children.

Paris has its infants' club, where the babe about town may spend an idle afternoon; but London comes a good second with a hotel for children. This hotel is known as the Norland Nurseries. Here, in suites of two rooms, the children of the well-to-do may find a town address while parents are traveling or enduring unamiable climates. The guests range from atoms of a month or so to veterans of eight or nine, and each three have a day and night nursery to themselves. There are six of these suites, providing accommodations for some eighteen children, and the cost varies according to the age of the children.—Chicago News.

Women Suffragists of South Africa.

Natal women who are members of the local branch of the Women's Suffrage League have circulated a petition which they propose to present to the Natal Parliament. The fair petitioners claim that on the grounds of justice, equity and expediency the parliamentary franchise should be extended to them, and they contend that as women own property, pay taxes, directly and indirectly, and are subject to all the laws, it is unjust that they should have no voice in the making of the laws.—South Africa.

GOOD ◆ ◆ ROADS.

New Good Roads Pay.

IN an article in the Bulletin of the American Geographical Society there is a discussion by A. P. Brigham of "Good Roads in the United States," in which the estimated handicap of the people of Maryland due to bad roads is $3,000,000 a year. On dirt roads the cost of transporting a ton a mile is twenty-five cents, while on railways it is three-fourths of a cent or less. By water the rate varies from one-fourth to one-twelfth of a cent. The ocean rate is one-fifth of the canal route, one-fifteenth of the railway rate and one-five-hundredth of the country road rate.

Railway rates improve, but dirt road rates never do, says the Baltimore Sun. In 1869, for example, the cost per ton mile on the New York Central Railway was 2.4 cents, while in 1893 the cost was only seven-tenths of a cent, showing a large deduction; but the preliminary haul to the railway station over a dirt road costs as much as ever. By making a good road for the farmer the State may reduce the cost per ton mile of hauling freight from twenty-five cents to eight cents, thus saving the farmer seventeen cents per mile.

In New Jersey it is found that on improved roads a team hauls four or five tons, against one ton on an unimproved road. At $3 a day for man and team this means a saving of from $9 to $12 for a ten-mile haul. Good roads justify long distance hauling by team, which is worth while in the case of perishable produce and furniture likely to be injured by the delays and rough handling of the railways.

In Belgium wagons carry freight sixty to seventy miles. In this country the roads are generally such as to restrict the market for many articles. It is said to be as cheap to take freight by rail from California to the Atlantic as to convey farm produce over dirt roads to Raleigh, N. C., from farms only fifteen miles away. Naturally, farms made inaccessible by bad roads are worth less than those which enjoy good transportation facilities. Or, to put it differently, good roads enhance the value of farms, adding materially to the price for which they will sell.

Good roads, in effect, put money into the farmer's pocket, whether he retains his farm or sells it. What he pays in a road tax—if the road is improved by a trained engineer—is returned to him a dozen times over in the increased selling value of his property, to say nothing of the decreased cost of getting the hauling done. The road tax lifts other taxes.

Various gains accrue. The isolation of farm life and its dreariness vanish when communication is easy. If the farmer, his wife, sons and daughters can finish their day's work betimes and visit neighbors three miles away in the evening, or flit easily to town, they think better of rural life and are more disposed to hold on to "the old place." Schools, mails, shopping, social enjoyment—all are brought within easier reach by the improved road. But by "improved road" is meant a road made under the supervision or an engineer, not the product of undeveloped ideas.

Working for Wide Tires.

The Bureau of Road Inquiry of the United States Government has been making a study of the width of tires prescribed by local and national authorities in various parts of the world. In France every freighting and market cart, instead of injuring the highway, improves it. Many of the tires are ten inches wide. In the four-wheeled vehicles in that country the rear axle is fourteen inches longer than the fore, and as a result the rear wheels run in a line about an inch outside the level rolled by the front wheel. After a few loaded wagons have passed over a road the highway looks as if a steam roller had been at work. A national law in Germany prescribes that wagons heavily loaded must have tires not less than four inches wide. In Austria the minimum for similar vehicles is six and one-half inches; in Switzerland, six inches.

In a number of States in this country laws have been passed granting rebate of highway taxes to citizens who use on lumber wagons tires not less than three inches wide. On toll roads in Kentucky and several other States farmers hauling loads in wide-tired wagons are entitled to lower rates than those paid by the owners of narrow-tired vehicles.

At an experiment station it was demonstrated that it requires forty per cent. more power to draw a load on a wagon drawn with one-and-one-half-inch tires than on one with a three-inch tire. With a Baldwin dynamometer careful tests were made with loaded wagons drawn over blue grass sward. In a wagon weighing 1000 pounds it was found that a load of 3428 pounds could be drawn on wide tires with the same force required to move 2000 pounds on narrow tires. Moreover, the wide tires did not injure the turf, while the narrow ones cut through it. In some parts of the country pioneers in the use of wide tires have had to stand a good deal of ridicule. The manifest benefit to roads, however, soon changes public sentiment. The president of a leading wagon manufacturing company states that the demand for wide tires is increasing every year. Another company in the same line of business conducted a series of tests, using a Fairbanks dynamometer carefully calibrated, and was convinced that on very hard roads the preference, so far as draft is concerned, is for narrow tires. In the effect upon the roads, however, wide tires have the advantage.

THE PULPIT.

A BRILLIANT SUNDAY SERMON BY THE REV. ALFRED H. A. MORSE.

Subject: Secret of Happiness.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—In the Strong Place Baptist Church the pastor, the Rev. Alfred H. A. Morse, spoke Sunday on "The Secret of Happiness." He said:

There are two hidden hands, controlled by the same intelligence, which are constantly working upon the human heart. And these are pain and pleasure. Man was made to be happy. If sometimes he must eat the bread of sorrow it is because, as Mr. Beecher said, "Sorrow is medicine." Joy is more divine than sorrow, and does not belong only to these passing days, but shall remain with us when all tears are dried and sorrow is swept forever from the universe.

Now, joy may be divided into three classes. There is the joy of appetite, a merely animal condition. It comes from the fitting of a goodly organism into circumstances which are suited to supply its need. This is the joy that makes the child skip and play and fill the home with laughter. It is the joy of the singing bird. It is simply pleasure.

But we are not always children. We grow and come into the place of work and responsibility. And here also is joy, and this we may call happiness. An earnest man finds joy in his employment. The lawyer and doctor and teacher enjoy their professions. The minister enjoys to preach. The merchant enjoys his business, and the mechanic his shop in spite of all its toil. This is joy, but it is the joy of the bee that gathers the honey and stores it away against the needs of a hungry winter.

There is the joy of living, and there is the joy of working. These are all that many a man attains. But it takes a higher joy than these to fill the soul of man, as the sunlight fills the sky, or the ocean fills the deep. There is a joy that is known as "blessedness," which arches these as the heavens span the sea. It is the joy of love, the joy of faith, the joy of a good conscience, the joy of doing right for the sake of right, the joy of sacrifice and of service. These are so far above the others that they belong to another kingdom whose law is obedience, whose joy is righteousness, whose fellowship is with God, and whose entrance is by means of a birth from above. And into this kingdom there are certain well defined steps.

"Happy," said Jesus, "are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." And poverty of spirit is nakedness of soul before God. He is happy who throws aside his own rags of righteousness and going to God says, "Clothe me, for I am naked; feed me, for I am hungry; guide me, for I am ignorant; put Thine arms under me, for I am weak." As in the mountain passes of the West the traveler holds up his hands before the bandit, so in the presence of God's righteousness the soul must throw up its hands and surrender to God. Blessed are the poor in spirit, the consciously bankrupt in the presence of God. So long as the younger son remained in the far off land, so long as he was satisfied with the husks from the troughs of the swine, so long as he wanted nothing, the father might mourn, but there was nothing for him to do. But when that son threw himself upon his father's love and said, "I have sinned, and you see my want," then the father could clothe and feed and kiss; place sandals upon his feet and give him the place of the son. Does a prodigal soul wish for happiness? I know of no chance for him till he fling away his sin and standing in his naked need acknowledges his poverty of soul. The happiest moment in the prodigal's experience was when he buried his face in his father's shoulder and said, "I have sinned." The happiest man at the temple gate was he who smote his breast and without so much as lifting his eyes, said, "God be merciful to me the sinner."

Happy are they who mourn for sin. It is not enough to be ashamed of it, but there must be an actual sorrow therefor. This does not mean to mourn for its consequences, nor for its publicity, nor for the misery it entails. Sin is more than a blunder which one may regret. It is more than a mistake which one would try to repair. It is open and flagrant and defiant rebellion. When a man mourns this, then God flings above him His smile as the rainbow spanned the flood, and he "shall be comforted."

Happy are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth. But who are the meek? They who obey the law. Moses has passed into history as the meekest of men. But Moses bent the neck of his manhood to law, and maybe that is the reason that to this day our best institutions are all to be traced to the legislation in the wilderness. Only once did Moses lose his meekness, when with an angry frown he smote the rock. That shattered his meekness into a thousand pieces, and he lost the promised land. He did not inherit the earth. Jesus was the meekest man, and He has flung out His challenge for the world to come to Him. He was meek, for He was obedient, even to the place of death.

Happy are the hungry. Hunger and thirst are spurs which are driven into men to drive ahead. When men are hungry they struggle, and there is hope for a nation when times are hard. But when men and nations are filled, they lie down to sleep and rise up to play. When a man is idle his arm grows weak with disuse. Hunger and thirst are spurs to activity. But the noblest hunger is the hunger for rightness, for that is the meaning of "righteousness." To seek God and His righteousness is to seek for God and His rightness. A man whose soul is famished with this consuming desire may well be happy, "for he shall be filled."

Happy are the merciful. But mercy does not always mean leniency. When a man is convicted of some gross crime it is no mercy to let him go to do the same crime again. Mercy sometimes exacts an awful penalty, for mercy is a prerogative of righteousness, and mercy belongs to God. The man standing beside God, poor in spirit, mourning his sin, hungry for righteousness, is merciful, and mercy comes also to him. "He shall receive mercy."

Happy are the pure in heart. But what does this mean? Who of us is pure? It means to be single in purpose. The diamond must be of "the first water" if it is to flash the light. The man must be single in purpose if he is to see God. The double-minded man can never see the vision of Him whose countenance is as the sun shining in his strength; for his vision is broken and disturbed, like the waves of the sea driven by the wind and tossed. Ah! I love the sea. I've watched it on a windy day, and heard it weep and moan and sob, and breathe out its anger in an awful curse. I've seen the waves rise buffeted and beaten, now backward, now forward, till its face was white with rage, but its heart was black as death. I've seen it reel and toss, till at last sobbing as though its heart would break, it would burst into a myriad briny tears upon the shore and pour from its wretched bosom the seaweed and driftwood and filth it has gathered in the journey. That wave never saw the sun. But I've looked again. The sea was like a mirror, as clear as crystal. I could see the pearly pebbles, and there in its heart I could see the sun. The pure-hearted waters lay all day long and looked into the face of the sun. Happy, blessed are the pure, the single in heart, "for they shall see God."

The man who has a supreme desire to please God, he is pure. He may have temptation, he may stumble, he may fall, but he rises again, and he is farther ahead. I shame to confess it, but I once played football, the barbarism of college. I've seen a man fall and slide four times as far as he could go without falling. He's a pure man, though his clothes are covered with grime. The man who is pure in heart shall see Him that is invisible. The man who serves God shall see Him.

Happy are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God. God is a peacemaker, and hath reconciled all things unto Himself. And now the man who makes peace shall be called His son. He has passed through the school, and has learned poverty and mourning and mercy and singleness of heart, and now he is taken into the family of God as Moses was taken into the family of Pharaoh's daughter.

There is one other "blessed" spoken by Jesus. It is found in the comparative form. "It is more blessed to give than to receive." It makes more for happiness to give than to get. When self is the centre there is no happiness. But when self is forgotten there is happiness at its height. When a man knows he has nerves he cannot be happy. Mr. Rockefeller thinks that happiness can be ruined by a sensitive stomach. The happy man is he who not knowing that he has nerves or stomach cares for the other man.

This is the call to self-sacrifice. How utterly intolerable this world would be if every one lived for himself. Happily this cannot be, and the altruism lies at the bottom of family and social life, But there are different kinds of sacrifice. There is the sacrifice of self to self, of the lower to the higher, of the passion to principle. There is the sacrifice of self for others, and there is the highest sacrifice, that is, of self to God. Do we talk of joy in these things? Most people think of them as a disagreeable sort of necessity. Maybe we see that this necessity serves a useful end. But to rejoice in them! To take up our sacrifice with a song, that seems out of the question. That is the dream of the poet.

Giving is blessed, because it is most like God. He has need of nothing but just to give. The glory of the gospel is a happy God, but He gave His Son. He might have stripped heaven of its angels and it would not have impoverished Him. The only gift that He could feel was the gift of His Son. And that was what made Him happy. God Himself could not be happy if He had withholden this greatest gift. That was the law which Jesus declared. It makes more for happiness to give than to get. The whole life of Jesus was giving, but the happiest moment was that last, when He said: "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit," and He had given His life for a ransom.

In these simple words, then, I find the whole philosophy of salvation, of happiness and of heaven. If a man mourn for his sin, he shall be comforted and an infinite peace shall dry his tears. If a man hunger for rightness, he shall be filled. If he strive to serve God with a single heart, he shall see Him. If He do the work of God and live at peace, he shall be called the child of God, and if he seek for chances to pour out his life in service, he shall find heaven about him on every side. And this is the secret of happiness.

A Life of Self-Abnegation.

The Rev. Dr. Josiah Strong draws this picture of the blessedness of self-sacrifice. He says: "The life of self-abnegation does not attract you. A cathedral window seen from without is dull and meaningless. But enter, and the light of Heaven, streaming through it, glorifies it with every beauty of form and color. Consecration to God for service may seem dull enough when seen from without; but enter into that experience, and the light of the divine love, streaming through it, shall glorify your life with beauty and blessedness which are Heaven's own."

The Way We Do Things.

Rev. F. B. Meyer says: "Knitting needles are cheap and common enough, but on them may be wrought the fairest designs in the richest wools. So the incidents of daily life may be commonplace in the extreme, but on them as the material foundation we may build the unseen but everlasting fabric of a noble and beautiful character. It does not so much matter what we do, but the way in which we do it matters greatly."

Four Good Rules.

General Gordon, the hero of China and likewise of Khartum, based his life upon four rules: Forgetfulness of self, absolute sincerity, indifference to the world's judgments, absorption in the will of God. These four rules abide as guide-posts on the path to greatness, but the greatest of these is surrender to the will of God.—Pacific Baptist.

Not the Attitude.

Reverent attitudes are necessary in worship, but it is the reverence and not the attitude in which the virtue resides. Our hearts must be right.—Sunday-School Times.

John W. Glenister, of Providence, R. I., champion long distance swimmer of America, has performed notable feats in this country and England. He has used Peruna as a tonic and gives his opinion of it in the following letter:

"I advise all athletes who are about to go in training to try a bottle, for it certainly gets the system in good shape."

Yours truly,
JOHN W. GLENISTER.

ATHLETES realize the importance of keeping in good bodily trim. The digestion must be good, the circulation perfect, sleep regular and enough of it.

If the slightest catarrhal condition of lungs or stomach is allowed to remain, neither digestion nor sleep will be strength-sustaining.

Those who lead very active lives, like athletes, with good muscular development, find the spring months especially trying.

Athletes everywhere praise Peruna because they, of all men, appreciate the value of a tonic that dispels physical depression.

The vocation of some men may allow them to endure the depressing feelings incident to spring weather, but the athlete must never allow himself to get "under the weather."

He must keep in the "pink of condition" all the time.

In order to do this he must avail himself of a spring tonic upon which he can rely.

Therefore athletes are especially friendly toward Peruna.

Peruna never fails them.

That a piece of charcoal thrown into the pot in which onions, cabbage, etc., are boiled will absorb the unpleasant odor.

That salt is not to be added to oatmeal until it has boiled about fifteen minutes.

That a lump of butter dropped into boiling molasses or maple candy will prevent it from running over.

That a piece of lace or thin muslin, starched and put over the holes or worn places in lace curtains will show very little and improve the looks of the curtains.

That a handful of salt, thrown into the tepid water with which straw matting is wiped up, will make it look extra fresh and clean.

First Aids to Housecleaning.

To know how to clean wood work without scrubbing, how to freshen carpets without taking up, how to do over blankets without ruining them, how to render a house hygienically clean without terrible smelling antiseptics is to approach housecleaning season without fear and without reproach.

First take down all the curtains and portieres and take up all the floor coverings that are to be put away. Have them thoroughly cleaned, done up, marked and stored away on shelf or in a chest for the summer. The more things you can pack away early in the season the less work you will have in warm weather. Your home will look cooler and will be healthier.

Do up your curtains as soon as you decide to houseclean. Have them well shaken, and then if very dusty rinsed before regularly washing. Put them into lukewarm water and let them soak for twenty minutes or half an hour. During this time have heated a boilerful of water, to each gallon of which a tablespoonful of borax and half a bar of white soap, shaved fine. Squeeze the curtains out of the cold water. Lay them in a tub and pour on the boiling suds. Within another half hour they will be white and lovely. Rinse in two waters, and then add a little bluing to the third. If the curtains are cream colored, a little coffee in the last water will keep the creamy tint. When borax is used there is absolutely no need of rubbing. To rub curtains on a board is to destroy them utterly. To attach them to frames is ofttimes equally disastrous. The best way is to squeeze them gently and pin on a sheet laid on a large rug. If you starch your curtains, make the starch thin.

Have your portieres and rugs also well shaken, then beaten and fold away in borax powder to save them from the moths.—Mary Annable Fanton.

Curried Fowl—Cut a fowl in pieces; shred an onion small and fry it brown in butter. Dredge thickly with curry powder and fine salt and put all into a stewpan with one pint of good stock. Stew slowly till all is cooked and serve with a dish of well boiled rice.

Mock Crab—Half a pound of mellow cheese, salad oil, vinegar, made mustard, pepper and salt, quarter pound of canned shrimps. Take the cheese and pound it well in a mortar with made mustard, salad oil, vinegar, cayenne pepper and salt to taste. This should be mixed to the consistency of thick cream. Add to this the shrimps. Serve in crab shell or any ornamental fancy dish and garnish with sliced lemon.

Baked Marmalade Pudding—Three ounces of flour, three ounces of butter, two ounces of sugar, two eggs, two teaspoonfuls of marmalade and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Beat well together the eggs and the sugar, add the flour, melt the butter and pour it in; then add the marmalade and the baking powder. Pour into a pie dish and bake for twenty minutes in a brisk oven. Warm two tablespoonfuls of marmalade and pour over the pudding on removing it from the oven.

Apricot Dumplings—Make a good rich baking powder dough; roll out, cut into rounds with a large cookie cutter; have ready some stewed apricots; drain juice from same; place two halves within each round of dough; fold, press edges together and bake in moderately quick oven. For sauce, add water to juice to make required quantity of sauce; add generous lump of butter; take flour in proportion to amount of sauce, with sufficient sugar to make flour mix smoothly; boil and add a half cup of chopped apricots.

Pocotaligo Fish—First take all skin and bones from some boiled fish, dredge thickly with flour and over all put sufficient milk to cover. Season with cayenne and salt and a little chopped parsley. Let this heat gently while some eggs are being poached. Turn the fish on a dish and arrange the poached eggs on it. Dissolve two ounces of butter in a small saucepan, add a heaped teaspoonful of chopped parsley, a little cayenne and salt. Pour this sauce slowly over the eggs and serve hot. A garnish of crescents of fine bread is an addition to this dish.

Against Rate Reduction.

Atlanta, Ga.—The recent proposition of J. Pope Brown, Chairman of the Georgia Railroad Commission, to reduce the passenger rate in Georgia from three to two cents per mile was protested against by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Order of Railway Conductors, and unions of the blacksmiths, machinists and telegraphers, boilermakers, railway train men, carpenters and joiners, clerks and car men. These organizations employed an attorney especially to represent them, who urged that such a reduction would work against the prosperity of the State and lead to a reduction in the number of railroad employes as well as of their wages. The Travelers' Protective Association also protested that a reduction as proposed would result in fewer trains and poorer service.

TORTURING HUMOR

Body a Mass of Sores—Called in Three Doctors But Grew Worse—Cured by Cuticura For 75c.

"My little daughter was a mass of sores all over her body. Her face was being eaten away, and her ears looked as if they would drop off. I had three doctors, but she grew worse. Neighbors advised Cuticura, and before I had used half of the cake of soap and box of ointment, the sores had all healed, and my little one's skin was as clear as a new-born babe's. I would not be without Cuticura if it cost five dollars, instead of 75 cents, which is all it cost us to cure our baby. Mrs. G. J. Steese, 701 Coburn St., Akron, Ohio."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. A TRAINED NURSE

After Years of Experience, Advises Women in Regard to Their Health.

Mrs Martha Pohlman

Mrs. Martha Pohlman of 55 Chester Avenue, Newark, N. J., who is a graduate Nurse from the Blockley Training School, at Philadelphia, and for six years Chief Clinic Nurse at the Philadelphia Hospital, writes the letter printed below. She has the advantage of personal experience, besides her professional education, and what she has to say may be absolutely relied upon.

Many other women are afflicted as she was. They can regain health in the same way. It is prudent to heed such advice from such a source.

Mrs. Pohlman writes:

"I am firmly persuaded, after eight years of experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that it is the safest and best medicine for any suffering woman to use.

"Immediately after my marriage I found that my health began to fail me. I became weak and pale, with severe bearing-down pains, fearful backaches and frequent dizzy spells. The doctors prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I would bloat after eating and frequently become nauseated. I had an acrid discharge and pains down through my limbs so I could hardly walk. It was as bad a case of female trouble as I have ever known. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, however, cured me within four months. Since that time I have had occasion to recommend it to a number of patients suffering from all forms of female difficulties, and I find that while it is considered unprofessional to recommend a patent medicine, I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I have found that it cures female ills, where all other medicine fails. It is a grand medicine for sick women."

Money cannot buy such testimony as this—merit alone can produce such results, and the ablest specialists now agree that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most universally successful remedy for all female diseases known to medicine.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles.

The needless suffering of women from diseases peculiar to their sex is terrible to see. The money which they pay to doctors who do not help them is an enormous waste. The pain is cured and the money is saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Experience has proved this.

It is well for women who are ill to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. In her great experience, which covers many years, she has probably had to deal with dozens of cases just like yours. Her advice is free and confidential.

"Being fully convinced of the merits of Paracamph, all you have to do, says Mr. Horn, is to deposit the price of a bottle at our drug store, or at Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, take home a bottle of Paracamph, give it an honest trial, and if not satisfied, tell us and we will return your money."

No remedy on earth compares with Paracamph for the cure of Rheumatism, Swelling and Neuralgia, Sore Throat; Croup, Catarrh, Sore Muscles, Eczema, Sprains, Bruises, Sore Feet, Cuts, Burns and Hurts of every description. Paracamph absolutely prevents blood poison. Paracamph soothes and heals like magic. No household should be without a bottle always on hand.

The Fairview ball team crossed bats with the Mulberry boys last Saturday evening, and had a fine game. We were cheered by yells from the boys and by the clapping of hands from the girls. This is the second game we have played with Mulberry and have won both. We now say to the Mulberry boys, get you a rule book, learn the rules then practice and give us another call.

Please give me space in the dear Banner to say a few words in regard to a Sunday school at this place. We need one, it makes me feel sad to think we are bringing our dear children up in this life without the good of a Sunday school. We older ones need to go and do something for our Savior. We should commence in time, it will be too late some day. If some one will start to work we can have a Sunday school here. I was brought up to go to Sunday school at dear old Macedonia church, there is where I have spent many happy hours with the many dear ones. Some are gone to their home above.

Indigestion Causes Catarrh of the Stomach.

For many years it has been supposed that Catarrh of the Stomach caused indigestion and dyspepsia, but the truth is exactly the opposite. Indigestion causes catarrh. Repeated attacks of Indigestion inflames the mucous membranes lining the stomach and exposes the nerves of the stomach, thus causing the glands to secrete mucin instead of the juices of natural digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

relieves all inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the stomach, protects the nerves, and cures bad breath, sour risings, a sense of fullness after eating, indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles.

Ashby.

Dear Editor: Will you allow me a small space in your paper.

Dear, good people, watch the Editor smile, as if he had found a million, and found seventy-five cents to pay for a year's subscription for his paper. Though I am no Chiltonian, I do love to read the good news of Chilton, which once was my home county, but now for several years I have been deprived of being with or seeing any of Chilton's bright and handsome faces. But Blob, or Ashby rather, has bright and cheerful, also a few handsome faces. And I guess you would like to know what causes the beauty--it is by living in a beautiful little town.

Ashby is situated on the Southern railway, just a few miles north of the beautiful red hills of Randolph, just south of Brierfield; once we would have accepted Brierfield and Randolph as our suburbs, but we have declined that idea, Brierfield being all decayed, Randolph all hills and mud, which is so sticky we could not get our cars to run smoothly there, and now we will remain in the same old way.

And now I am going to tell you what happened after you left. Well, soon after you left, the Southern Express Co. established an express and money order office here with with V. L. Hubbard as agent; you can now have your express sent to Ashby. Just a few days before Miss Lyda Oakley left for Talladega, joined by Miss Lillie Sunday.

Mr. J. G. Oakley spent Friday and Saturday in Centreville, also attended the old soldier's reunion at Scottville.

Mrs. V. L. Hubbard spent Sunday with her parents at Oakleys, also made a flying trip to Talladega Tuesday and to Jemison Wednesday, returning home Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Splawn were in town Sunday.

Mrs. D. C. Hubbard of Jemison, on her return from Chattanooga, Tenn., spent Thursday night with loved ones at this place.

Well, goodness knows, there ain't much after all, what I have told I must seal up, wishing you all God's favors all through life.

FROM AN UNKNOWN FRIEND.

Strictly Genuine.

Most of the patent medicine testimonials are probably genuine. The following notice recently appeared in the Atchison (Kan.) Globe: "Joe Tack, a well known engineer, running on the Missouri Pacific between Wichita and Kiowa, lately appeared in a big one, with a picture, and when he was in this office to-day, we asked him about it. He says he had terific pains in his stomach, and thought he had cancer. His druggist recommended Kodol and he says it cured him. He recommended it to others, who were also cured." Kodol Dyspepsia cure digests what you eat and cures all stomach troubles. Just as surely as the sun shines your stomach can be brought back to its originally pure condition and life sweetened by this lasting and truly the greatest digestant known. Thank You, Clanton Ladies.

Mountain Creek, May 3, 1905

Editor Banner—I desire through your paper to thank the ladies of your city for the beautiful flowers sent us for Memorial day. We should have been delighted if your people could have been with us at our services on that day, it brought vividly to our minds the fact that the old fellows who wore the grey are fast paying the last debt, and it is lovely of our noble women to remember the dead ones on Memorial day with their presence and flowers.

Clanton, May 6, 1905

For the past few weeks we have had T. E Pinegar of Sterling, Ala, in the county speaking to the people in the interest of the Farmers' Educational and Co Operative Union, and such convincing argument we never heard before, showing plainly that farmers could and should organize for protection. Among the principles for which the organization stands is to discourage (through organized effort) the present mortgage system, and others equally as good, which if only put into practice would undoubtedly relieve us farmers. Mr. Pinegar has succeeded in attracting great interest and has organized local unions, and on the 3d of this month, under a call from Highland Union, organized a county union. He is in this county hard at work, and expects to, after he visits his family in Tuscaloosa county, to again take up the work in other portions of the county. I hope the farmers will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing him discuss in a business manner this organization of farmers, which will certainly bring relief, for it is an admitted fact that since the days of the Farmer's Alliance the necessity of organization has increased many fold, and unless there is something done it is only a matter of a very short while until we will be helpless and beyond relief.

But we are told that we can't successfully organize, and if we did organize so as to be able to price our products that it would be a trust. Is it a fact that when wagon makers build a wagon and price it, is that a trust? They do it. If a man makes rat traps or plows and prices them, is that a trust? They do it and nobody thinks strange of it, either. Then if farmers price their products, even if it is a trust, we should have that right and let us demand it.

Yours truly,
J. C. GRIMES.

Deyon, Texas, May 1, 1905

Editor Banner—As it has been some time since this place has been represented, I will try again to represent it in your paper if you will please allow me space. I am glad to hear from old Mulberry and rejoiced to read the Lily letter in the valuable Banner. I will tell a little about this part of Texas. The most of the people are plowing their corn the second time, I am about half over mine the second time. Cotton is pretty, but not much chopped yet. We have had no frost in some time. Oats are sure fine here. We are having a whole lot of rain, they say more than usual, but of course it don't rain here like it does there, if it did there would not be much made. It has not rained enough to hurt. Corn is knee high and farmers are going right ahead; crops are as large here now as they were there the first of June last year. Our people don't work in such a rush as they do there, and people are just as friendly as home folks, rich as well as poor, and boys, we have had one sand storm this spring, but it did not blow anyone away, neither covered anyone up, so they are not so terrible bad after all.

Well, home folks, I am not running down the old State, but I wanted to tell you how much better this is, so you could better yourselves if you wanted to, for I never got into a good thing but what I wanted my home folks to share with me in it. So come, boys, and do better for yourselves. No one take no exception, for it matters not where I roam I still think of happy home in those Alabama hills.

New Prospect.

Farmers are moving along very nicely with their work, and it seems like by the appearance of their crops at the present, that they are going to make an abundance of produce; although we cannot predict for the future by the present, but can only look to God for His providential blessings in making these things.

The Sunday school at New Prospect is very dull, but we hope it will be better in the near future, for that is one great privilege that God has given us for studying His Word, and we should appreciate it and should grasp every opportunity we have in meeting at His house to worship Him and praise His holy name.

It is now said by some of those people who devote their spare time to finding mitigating circumstances for all sorts and conditions of criminals that Mrs. Chadwick is "not quite normal mentally." If this is true of Mrs. Chadwick what shall be said of the mental state of her victims?

The pure food and pure drug agitation has brought up the question what is a drug? The Government chemists propose to define it as "any substance used internally or externally as a remedy and which is neither a food nor a condiment." This definition is broader than the accepted medical definition, the Pathfinder comments.

Farmers are conceded to be the greatest class, the most honorable class, the most useful class, declares Up-to-Date Farming, the country's dependence in all emergencies, either of peace or war, and the greatest of wealth producers, but when it comes to disposing of their products they play a smaller game than the manufacturer of the smallest article of commerce.

St. Petersburg, like other capitals, publishes economic journals, and one of them of leading authority says that in many Russian provinces notwithstanding the calamities from which the country in general is suffering, there is an unusual degree of prosperity, states the New York Tribune. It declares that the financial outlook for the year is good and that the revenues will be easily collected—a note of encouragement sure of home welcome, whether it turns out to represent the fact or not.

The popularity of hunting in England has resisted all attacks from the days of Dr. Johnson, who scornfully remarked that it was the labor of savages, but the amusement of English gentlemen. It seems, however, that it is now threatened by the automobile. A special dispatch from London in the New York Herald notes the remarkable frequency of accidents in the hunting field this season, and suggests that the men are not in such good riding form as they used to be. Why? Because much of the time formerly spent in the saddle is now devoted to auto-cars. Score another for the automobile!

When railroads were first agitating the country there were gloomy predictions that the steam locomotive would seal the fate of the horse, says Victor Smith, in the New York Press. It did just the reverse of laying him on the shelf. The same prognostication was made about the automobile a few years ago; it would retire the horse permanently. In England horses are dearer than before the coming of the motor car. The only sufferers in that country are the railways. People can get about the tight little island in automobiles much better than by train, therefore a new school of travel has been created. In America, of course, our magnificent distances preclude the possibility of automobiles successfully competing with the railroads, except in suburban travel.

Sales in 1904 of all kinds of goods, $1,463,000,000; purchases, $2,683,203,673. The difference alone is over a billion dollars; this represents the interest on British investments abroad and the profits of the carrying trade, states the New York World. Great Britain builds more ocean going ships (1,405,000 tons in 1904) than all the rest of the world (1,075,000 tons). Great Britain's output of ships declined only two per cent. last year, that of the rest of the world fifteen per cent. The iron and steel product amounts annually to $800,000,000 a year. Britain's 1904 sources of wheat showed a great shifting from 1903. From the United States imports fell in one year from 45,000,030 bushels to 13,000,000. Argentina, Russia and British India gained about what we lost.

THE OLD WAY.

By Mathew White, Jr.

London, June 22.—The brig Clio, from Zanzibar, brings intelligence which, if true, will be of deep import to the members of the Geographical society. The news concerns Arthur Marquand, who went out to Africa with the Jarvis Hook expedition ten years ago, was lost in the jungle and has never been heard from since. The Clio's captain declares that Marquand has been held in captivity by a tribe of Somalis and succeeded not long since in escaping. Capt. Davidson's information comes through several hands, but as near as can be made out Marquand, if it was he, made his way to the coast and constructed a rude craft, on which he fearlessly embarked amid the breakers and was picked up by some vessel, name and destination unknown. Of course a report of this sort is very vague, and the only reason for supposing the man to be Marquand is that this person was a white man and came from a point somewhere near the scene of Marquand's disappearance. The arrival of ships from Southeast Africa at both English and American ports will be attended with unusual interest during the next few weeks.

Arthur Marquand was a native of Massachusetts and was the youngest member of the Jarvis Hook expedition, being only twenty-three when he sailed with it. It will be remembered that the expedition returned four years later with some important data for the Geographical society and with the loss of five men out of the original sixteen, four of them by fever and one—this Marquand—by disappearance.

The foregoing item, printed among the foreign dispatches in a Boston paper, was read with varying degrees of interest by those under whose notice it came. But as it was not tucked away at the bottom of the column, seemingly in the capacity of a "filler," it did not make a very deep impression on the general public.

But there was one home where it was read with eyes that seemed to devour the words as a famished man devours bread. This home was a stately mansion in a Massachusetts town; the reader was a woman past her youth, but still beautiful. Around her were all the accessories of comfort and luxury that wealth could supply; but her gown was somber and on her face, faintly perceptible even through its lines of beauty, were traces of suffering.

She was sitting at a dainty breakfast table. She had picked up the paper languidly as if impelled to glance over it by custom rather than desire. It was by the purest chance that she had happened to notice the item already quoted.

When she had read it through with bosom heaving and fingers that had suddenly become so nervous that the sheet slipped from them and fell with a rattling of paper to the floor, her lips parted and she gave one cry:

"Arthur!"

Her companion at the table was a woman several years younger than herself. While waiting for the hostess to give the signal to rise she had been idly toying with her coffee spoon and watching two coquetting robins through the window. Now she rose hastily and ran around to kneel beside her friend and peer with terror-stricken eyes into the face that had grown suddenly pale.

"Rose! Rose!" she called. "What is it? What has happened?"

The other opened her eyes, stretched out her arms, and as the younger woman allowed herself to be folded into their embrace for an instant, the first exclaimed:

"Oh, Arthur is alive. I know it is he. I always knew that he was not dead, that he would come back!"

Rose Marquand leaned over and picked up the newspaper. Her hands were trembling. She could not find the place. Then she gave it up and folding Gwendolin in her arms once more proceeded to laugh and cry in the fashion most women have when their emotions are deeply roused.

For Rose was Arthur Marquand's wife, true to him during all these years of separation and silence, a silence that perchance some women would have construed as synonymous with death.

But Gwendolin's eyes were not blinded by lovelight. Rose was her oldest friend; they had been schoolgirls together, and she had recently come to make a long visit to the lonely woman who had refused to be wholly comforted for her loss. Now, when Gwendolin had read the item and knew the very slender basis on which the hope of Arthur's return rested, she felt that in some way she must contrive to prevent the wife from building too lofty a superstructure on this frail foundation.

But she might as well have attempted to extinguish the source of the sunshine that was pouring in at the window. Rose was already excitedly turning the paper this way and that in search of the marine news.

"Look, look here, Gwen!" she cried after a moment, pointing triumphantly to a single line in diminutive type.

It was under the heading "Port of New York" and read simply:

"Bark Juno (Ba.), Stevens, Zanzibar, April 11, with ivory to C. F. Grote; vessel to master."

"Don't you see, Gwen!" cried the happy woman. "He may have come on the Juno. I may get a telegram any minute. He may be here this very day. Quick, Gwen, find a time table; in the library or up in my room, anywhere, somewhere. I must see what is the first train he could take to bring him here."

By this time Gwendolin herself began to be infected with hope. Oh, if it could only be true, she thought! Rose's life had seemed so incomplete; and her womanhood had budded with promise of such perfect happiness and joy. For if ever a love match was made it was that between Rose Grayson and Arthur Marquand. Rose lived with her parents in this very home, the most imposing in the town, where Arthur had come as a college boy and whence he had gone away, at the end of four years, on his wedding journey.

Gwen recalled now as she hurried from room to room in search of that time table, how stern his father had been with him for his haste, a sternness that, more than anything else, had fired Arthur with the determination and show the world that it was not all of life to do simply the bidding of the woman he loved. For Rose had bitterly opposed his going. And this fact had added poignancy to her grief—the memory that she may have parted with him without giving him a heartfelt "Godspeed" for his journey. His disappearance she had come to look upon as her punishment.

At last the time table was found, and the afternoon was spent by the two in poring over it and driving back and forth to the station to see if any telegram had come. But even the absence of messages inspired Rose with renewed hope. She was possessed with a strange, unaccountable premonition that she would see her husband that day.

"He wants to surprise me," she told Gwen. "He will be here on that last train tonight. The ship may have been detained at Quarantine, you know. Oh, my dear, my dear, I am so happy!"

Gwendolin trembled for her. What consequences might not disappointment bring? They had already sent dispatches to "Captain Stevens" and "C. F. Grote," asking if Arthur Marquand had come on the Juno. But there was still no reply to either. And yet this diminished not one whit Rose's confidence.

"There is no answer," she said, "because we had nothing but the names to which to send messages. Arthur will come on the nine-twenty tonight."

Gwendolin went with her to the station in the carriage to meet the train. they waited for fifteen minutes beyond the time, then the the station agent came out and told them a freight wreck on the road would delay the express probably till past midnight.

"I shall sit up till he comes," Rose announced, when they had reached home again.

"Then let me stay with you," pleaded Gwendolin—"at least till you hear him coming."

"Well, you may stay a little while, Gwen. Then I shall send you to bed, and let the servants go, too. It—it will be like the old days to meet him here in this room where we used to sit and talk before we knew it was love that drew us to each other. I suppose, though, he will be greatly changed—outwardly. Think of that captivity among savages! Oh, Arthur, my husband, what you must have suffered! But it will all be made up to you now. Hark, what is that, Gwen?"

"Nothing, Rose, but rain. Didn't you notice the clouds as we drove home?"

"Then I must have John go back with the carriage, and I can go with him."

"No, no, dear," entreated Gwendolin. "It's only a shower. See, the moon is out again;" and she went to the window and flung open the shutters.

"Beautiful!" murmured Rose, as she came over to stand beside her. "Go to bed now, Gwen. This is just the sort of night it was when Arthur told me he loved me. There, I will turn out the lamp and have the moonlight for company. Let them all go to bed. I will wait for Arthur here."

With many misgivings Gwendolin obeyed. Rose had reached a state where she dared not cross her. But what would the morning see?

"If Arthur had come on that ship Rose would surely have heard of it by this time," Gwendolin told herself; and when she reached her room she did not prepare for bed, but took up a book, which she did not open, and sat down to think and listen and plan.

When Gwendolin had gone Rose walked back to the window, and leaning her head against one of the heavy curtains, looked out over the smooth lawn towards the gateway. All was still, save for a faint drip of water from the piazza roof. The odor of roses was borne in from the bush just outside; the moonlight, stealing in with it, seemed to revel in the luxuriousness of the apartment it had found. Ten strokes from the tall clock in the corner caused the figure in the window to start suddenly and then to give a little sigh, as another searching glance over lawn and graveled driveway failed to reveal the longed for apparition.

She left the window and walked slowly back to a large easy chair near the center table. She sank into this, and with her eyes on the clock listened and waited.

The big clock ticked the minutes away, otherwise there is naught to disturb the brooding quiet of the night.

Suddenly the stillness is shattered by the whistle of a locomotive. The woman who has so patiently waited starts up with a tremor running through her nerves.

"He will be here in a few minutes now," she tells herself, and wonders that she has the calmness to frame a connected thought.

She forces herself to sit still for five minutes longer, then rises and hurries out into the hall to open the front door. But just as she reaches it she hears a sound in the room she has left.

Turning quickly she sees a figure framed by the library window. The shutters are still standing open to let the moonlight in.

"It is Arthur," is her instant thought. "He has come in the old way to surprise me."

A few quick steps take her back into the library. A low, glad cry of "Arthur!" escapes her lips. She is about to fling herself into his arms, when he makes a dash forward and seizes her wrist in a grip of iron.

"One whimper and——" The cold barrel of a revolver against her forehead finishes the sentence.

The voice falls on the woman's heart like the knell of doom—not for the threat which the words convey, but for the hopes deceived which it emphasizes. It is not Arthur! In an instant the whole fabric of her fond imagining falls in ruins at her feet. Her husband is not coming back to her; he does not live; it is all a delusion for which this rude awakening is but a fitting climax!

She opens her lips to cry out, not for aid, but in very agony of disappointment. But before a sound can come forth a hand is placed over her mouth, the grasp in which is held tightens and the same brutal voice bids her be silent or die.

But Rose is not afraid of death. Indeed, what has she to live for now? How can she steel herself once more to endure existence without him who was its end and aim to her? If this hateful hand were only once removed she would scream out in very defiance of its owner. Then he would kill her, and—then there would be no more disappointment for her.

All these thoughts flashed through Rose Marquand's brain in a second of time. Then she began to struggle with all the strength of one made desperate. One hand was necessary to keep her mute, the man was hampered in his ability to hold her, and in an instant later she writhed away from the palm across her lips. One piercing shout she sent up, but the robber's other was still about her, the arm that held the pistol.

She saw this presented now at her forehead, as she fell crouching on the floor; saw in the moonlight the look of demoniacal determination with which the man placed his finger on the trigger. But she thought of Arthur and felt no fear.

Then there was a report, a flashing of something that was not smoke nor fire, before her eyes, a rush of people into the room, lights, and—Arthur bending over her, really Arthur this time, look not so very unlike his old self.

"And is this heaven, dear?" she whispered, from the shelter of his arms.

"No, Rose, not with such as that so near at hand," he replied, with a glance at the form of the burglar lying on the floor, with the coachman and gardener binding him to helplessness.

"Then you did come on the Juno," Rose went on. "You wanted to surprise me, and if——"

She shuddered and would have buried her face in her hands, but Arthur took it tenderly between both of his, and a sweeter happiness than ever thrilled her as she realized that it was her husband who had come in "the old way," after all, just in time to knock the villain's pistol up and save her life, thus making it his more unreservedly even than of yore.

Tyranny Comes High.

All told, Russia has 65 grand dukes, counting the members of the imperial family; the czar's uncles and brothers receive an annual pension of 4,000,000 rubles each.

From the day of his birth a grand duke's child becomes entitled to an annual pension—1,000,000 rubles if a boy, 500,000 rubles if a girl. The revenue of the existing grand dukes exempt from all taxation amounts to a grand total of fourteen millions.

To nationalize the country would mean the wiping out of the entire debt of Russia and relieve the country of all taxation for a year, without diminishing the normal expenditures.

When the Czar Nicholas married, the danseuse Kezcesinskaia, who was charged with amusing his leisure moments, received as a present 4,000,000 rubles and a palace.—Le Crie de Paris.

A Poet's Declining Years.

Swinburne, the poet, spends his declining years in tranquil pursuit of the simple life, although it is doubtful whether the book or the fad has ever disturbed his peaceful retreat. A friend says of him that he lives in possession of his needs. "Bounded on all sides by the best books, enjoying the close companionship of the truest friend ever given to a man of genius, and finding in a long walk at postman's pace a full satisfaction for the body's craving after exercise, he lives through the twilight of his days in a greater security and under the spell of a deeper peace than he knew in the boisterous dawn of his life."—Chicago Journal.

A SCHOLARLY SUNDAY SERMON BY THE REV. DR. JOHN LOVE, JR.

Subject: The Mystic Stone.

Asbury Park, N. J.—The Rev. Dr. John Love, Jr., preached on "The Mystic Stone and the Broken Image" in the First Baptist Church here. He took as his text David ii:34: "A stone cut out without hands which smote the image." Dr Love said:

In the poem called "Giles Corey" the great author has said: "Do you believe in dreams? Why, yes and no. When they come true, then I believe in them, when they come false I don't believe in them." This is doubtless a fair expression of our own feelings concerning these mysterious visitors in our unconscious hours. Whatever harmony there may be between them and events which thereafter transpire we can never be sure at the time that they are prophetic.

In the Old Testament economy, however, dreams were a recognized method of divine communication with mankind. Not only were Abimeloch and Jacob, Joseph and Solomon thus addressed from heaven, but the prophets received revelations in and through them, designed for the warning, the comfort and the instruction of the race. Few dreams narrated in sacred writ are of such profound interest as the one of which our text makes mention. In the second year of his reign "Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, dreamed dreams wherewith his spirit was troubled and his sleep brake from him." So profound was the impression made upon him, so agitated his mind on awakening, that he commanded the presence of magicians, astrologers and sorcerers, who were supposed to possess the powers of interpretation. The dream of the king had, however, so far gone from him when the wise men entered into his presence that he could give them no hint of its nature. Not even the bare outline remained, only the sense of terror and the fear of impending ill. With the cruelty peculiar to himself he demanded that they should at once reproduce the dream by their mystic arts and give the correct interpretation. Protest was in vain, and in the heat of his passion he voiced the decree of death on all the wise men of the kingdom.

Daniel, the prophet, captive at the time in Babylon, learning of the manifesto of the king, petitioned for an extension of time and promised the sought for interpretation. It was an awful crisis, but from the quartet of Daniel and his three companions went up a cry that reached the very heart of God and won the secret that nullified an infamous decree. Within the appointed time the prophet is ready for the presence chamber of the king. An ambassador from heaven, he brings in clear outline, by his vivid description, the mystical image which had disturbed the slumbers of Nebuchadnezzar, and then interprets its significance as may be traced in the second chapter of the book of Daniel, verses 31 to 36. By the "head of gold" was represented the kingdom of Babylon, the domain of Nebuchadnezzar for forty-five years. The "breast and arms of silver" signified the kingdom in which the Medes and Persians held sway, and was known as the Medo-Persian reign, inaugurated by Darius, the Mede, and Cyrus, the Persian, between whom an alliance had been formed. The third kingdom represented by the "belly and thighs of brass" was the Grecian, founded by Alexander the Great on his victory over the last of the Persian emperors. The joy of his conquest, however, was mingled with sadness, for, boasting that he had conquered the world, he sat down and wept because "there was not another world to conquer."

The fourth kingdom symbolized, in the image, by "the legs and feet of iron," is commonly believed to be the Roman kingdom. Toward its close it became weak and disintegrated, branching out into ten kingdoms, represented by the ten toes of the image. It could hardly be shown by an appeal to history how exactly all the events and the succession of events symbolized in the spectral image came to pass, but we concentrate our attention on the significance of the "mystic stone," which by some unseen agency and in some unaccountable manner was seen to be detached from the mountain near by and to smite the image upon the feet, breaking into pieces the iron and the clay of which they were composed. Nor was this all, for the stone which had smitten the image seemed to become a vast mountain which filled the whole earth. That the reference is to the kingdom of the Messiah and a vivid prophecy of its power and growth there can be no doubt, and yet the vision and its interpretation date back to 606 B. C. There is to be noticed, first, the assurance of the establishment of a divine kingdom in the world. Not only have we the symbolism of the mystic stone, but the definite language of prophecy, for in his memorable interview with the king, Daniel declared "In the days of these kings shall the God of Heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed." Similar and confirmative prophecies might easily be culled from the sacred record. Many empires in the world have owed their origin, or at least their eminence, to successes in war. Britain owes its prestige to Waterloo, Germany to Sedan, the United States to Gettysburg, Japan to Mukden. Power has been purchased at the point of the sword and sustained often through tyranny and cruelty. The strength of the powers of nations has been guaged by the roster of their armies and navies. Arsenals, fleets and military stores have been their pride and boast. Not so with the kingdom whose design, code and symbols date from all eternity. It is spiritual and not martial. It hath weapons before which strongholds crumble, but they are not carnal. It wins triumphs, but on silent, bloodless battle fields. Not in the catalogue of nations does this kingdom claim a place. Alone it stands, without peer or counterpart. It bears the name and owns the sway of the Omnipotent. It was not to enter into conflict with existing government. It was to be devotional, not political. The cross was to be its sacred symbol, not a crown. Its laws were to be transcribed not in ponderous statute books, not in legislative enactments, but in that precious book whose very name even has be-

Fainted in Court.

Washington, D. C.—Arraigned as Alice Neisen, the woman claimed to be the Baroness de Vorts Salame of Austria, fainted in the police court after pleading not guilty to the charge of grand larceny and waiving examination.

The woman entered the court room leaning on the arm of the matron of the house of detention. She sat pallid and trembling as the information was read, charging her with taking about $500 worth of clothing from Mrs. William Slater, of this city. After the proceedings had been closed, the prisoner collapsed completely. Upon being revived, she was taken back to the house of detention.

Later the woman was held to await the action of the grand jury and bond was fixed at $1,000, in default of which she was committed to jail.

L. & L. Wreck.

Louisville, Ky.—Passenger train No. 7, on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, which left Cincinnati at 11:20 a. m., for New Orleans, was derailed on a sharp curve near Sulphur Kentucky, Saturday. The engineer was killed and one passenger, Miss Mabel Clark, and four postal clerks injured, but not seriously.

Engineer Buxe jumped and his engine fell on him. The fireman remained on the engine and was not injured. Miss Clark was on her way to Bardstown, Ky., where she was to have been married Saturday night. The mail, baggage and express cars and two day coaches left the track, but the sleepers remained on the track. The traffic was delayed several hours. One of the sleepers was the New York-Nashville car and the other a through sleeper from Cincinnati for the south. Beyond a slight shaking up the other passengers were unhurt.

Preacher Charged With Uroxcide.

Louisville, Ky.—Rev. U. G. Sutherlin, formerly pastor of the Park Christian church at New Albany, Ind., was arrested at Silver Grove, Ind., on a warrant charging him with the murder of his wife. Last October the body of Mrs. Sutherlin was found hanging from a transom in her home, and it was supposed to be a case of suicide. Mrs. Sutherlin's father, however, made information before a grand jury recently charging Rev. Mr. Sutherlin with her murder and the arrest followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Sutherlin had not lived together for some time prior to the time her body was found.

Work to Begin on Lookout Tunnel.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—After a postponement of three days, owing to a failure in securing the right of way for the property on which the approaches to the entrance of the Lookout mountain tunnel will be constructed, the first work toward boring the hole through the big mountain will commence at the east side of the mountain with a large crew of workmen. All the deeds for the property over which the right of way will cross have been signed and now all that remains is to arrange a few preliminaries. These details will not interefere with the work.

The Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad attempted to block the work by purchasing the land through which the new line of the Southern will run. The Nashville road controlled a number of options on most of the property near the mountain, and when it became known that the Southern intended to build the extension, an attempt was made to close the options. This move was blocked by Southern officials, however, who instituted condemnation proceedings against the property owners, and it is thought there will be no further delay in the work.

Flees from Mob.

Montgomery, Ala.—A special from Selma says that Brice Linch, a prominent farmer of Dallas county, came to Selma Monday morning and reported that he was compelled to leave his home during the night to escape from a mob which had surrounded his house.

According to the story said to have been related by Linch he had a dispute the day previous with one Haynes, but it was passed in the first instance, but bullets came in the second by Haynes' son. After these he proceeded home, where the house was afterwards surrounded, he alleges. He stepped from the house under cover of darkness, came to Selma and reported the matter.

NAN PATTERSON MISTRIAL

After Thirteen Hours of Deliberation Jury is Discharged.

THIRD TRIAL OF ACCUSED ACTRESS

End of a Long and Expensive Legal Battle—"Nan" Faints Upon Hearing the News and is Carried Back to the Tombs—Review of the Case—Recorder Goff Presided at Last Hearing.

New York City.—The jury which has been trying Nan Patterson, the "Florodora" girl accused of the murder of Caesar Young, a bookmaker, on June 4 last, reported a final disagreement at 2.30 o'clock in the morning. The jury was then discharged.

Nan Patterson was brought into court at 1.40 o'clock.

The jury then reported that they were unable to agree, but after a long talk between the Recorder and the foreman, in which the Recorder laid stress upon the great expense to which the county had been in the three trials, the jury was sent back again, and Nan Patterson, who had been hastily summoned and was now almost in a fainting condition, was led back to her cell.

When the jury came in at 1.30 after deliberating thirteen hours the court officers called, "Hats off!"

Everybody was on tiptoe. Assistant District Attorney Rand came in with his associate, Mr. Garvan, and Attorney O'Reilly took his seat beside the vacant chair which was awaiting Nan Patterson.

The Recorder asked the foreman if the jury had been able to agree.

"We have not," he replied. "I am convinced that there is no hope of an agreement."

When the Recorder ascended the bench the defendant had not yet arrived and he called upon the court officer to explain her absence.

"She is ill," the man said.

"Is the Sheriff in court?" asked the Recorder.

"He is not. I went myself for Nan Patterson and was then informed that she was ill," spoke up another court officer.

The Recorder then ordered a court officer to go to the Tombs and bring the defendant into court if she was able to come. In a little while the Deputy Warden returned and said that the Tombs matron was dressing the prisoner.

At last Nan Patterson came in, after fully ten minutes. She was on the verge of collapse, and could hardly drag one foot after the other. An attendant on each side fairly lifted her into her place.

Recorder Goff then whispered something in the ear of Clerk Brophy, who then announced that if there was any demonstration at any announcement that might be made the disturber would be immediately arraigned on a charge of contempt of court.

Recorder Goff then read a communication from the jury. The missive said:

"After careful consideration of all the evidence in the case we have reached the point where we believe there is no likelihood that we shall agree."

The Recorder then asked the foreman if he thought there was any possibility that they could be able to reach a verdict after further deliberation.

"I hardly think so," answered the foreman.

The jury retired, and in about fifteen minutes sent word to Recorder Goff that it desired to report again. Again Nan Patterson was sent for and brought into the courtroom. She was still in a weakened condition and had to be supported to a chair.

The Recorder seemed displeased at the result and asked that the question be put to each juror separately. Each juror gave the same reply, "There is no hope of an agreement."

"Have you anything to say?" the Recorder asked Mr. Rand.

"Nothing."

The same question was put to counsel for the defendant, and then the jury was discharged.

As the jury started out Nan Patterson fell from her chair in a faint. Her counsel and the guards picked her up and bore her back to the Tombs, to which the Recorder had remanded her.

Review of the Case.

"Nan" Randolph Patterson was accused of shooting her lover, "Caesar" Young a race track bookmaker, while riding in a cab in New York City on the way to an ocean steamer on which Young was to sail for Europe with his wife on the morning of June 4, 1904.

No actual witnesses of the shooting appeared and the indictment and prosecution was based upon purely circumstantial evidence.

After indictment by the Grand Jury the defendant was brought to trial before Justice Vernon M. Davis, Assistant District Attorney Rand prosecuting, and the law firm of Levy & Unger defending her.

A mistrial resulted, one of the jurors falling ill. After a second trial before Justice Davis a disagreement resulted.

The entire prosecution is said to have cost the county and State over $100,000.

Negro Prisoner Found Dead in Jail.

Decatur, Ala.—A negro who gave his name as Dan Beard was found dead in the city jail Monday. He was arrested Sunday night by Police Officer Thomas Pearson on the charge of drunk and disorderly.

When the officer arrived at the jail with Beard the prisoner put up a fight and Officer Pearson struck him over the head with a club. Dr. E. J. Conyngton, one of the best physicians in the city, after an examination, said the negro died from the excessive use of whisky. Later some of the negro physicians examined the negro and said the lick over his head caused death. The case is in the hands of the coroner's jury. There is considerable excitement in the city over the affair on account of the recent negro trouble here in which three negroes were sentenced to hang. The best people of the Decaturs do not blame Officer Pearson in the least for his actions, as they believe the officer justifiable. It is rumored on the streets late tonight that several prominent negroes will try to get an indictment against Officer Pearson.

Student Drowned.

Marion, Ala.—M. L. Harris, of Russellville, a student of Marion Military institute, was drowned in Cahaba river Monday while attempting to swim the stream, which was swollen by recent rains. A party of about fifty citizens are dredging the river Monday night for the remains.

Harris attempted to swim the river, as did several other students. Harris' strength failed and his cries for help were responded to by Professor Kellogg and Cadet Shivers, but he rose only once and went down to death.

ROBBERS BLOW OUT SAFE

STEAL HORSES AND WAGONS

Between Five and Ten Thousand Dollars Said to Have Been Taken—Thieves Believed to Have Left Main Road and Escaped Through Woods—Other Recent Burglaries.

Oneonta, N. Y.—A band of masked robbers drove into the village of Gilbertsville, about eighteen miles from here, at 3 o'clock in the morning, blew open with dynamite a safe in the private bank of E. C. Brewer, and made good their escape with booty estimated at between $5000 and $10,000.

When the startled villagers were awakened by the muffled roar of the explosion and had been halted by the pistol fire of the retreating bandits, they found that the robbers had completely isolated Gilbertsville from the outside world by cutting all the telegraph and telephone wires. Efforts to communicate with neighboring towns were futile, and when the village folk finally started in pursuit, the robbers had gained a lead which could not be made up.

Teams which had been stolen from barns and used by the robbers in their approach to the village and their subsequent flight were found abandoned by the roadside. Daylight found the bandits not far from Gilbertsville, and it is believed they then left the highway and went into the woods afoot.

It was believed there were five men in the band. That all were heavily armed was shown by the frequency of their fire when the first of the villagers arrived in the vicinity of the bank. The men first pried open the front door of the bank. Two holes were then drilled into the heavy steel doors of the newly installed "burglar-proof" safe, and into these the explosive was inserted. The explosion wrecked the safe and shattered every window in the building. Portions of the safe were found many yards from the building.

The robbers gathered up all the money they could find and started on a run just as the first of the awakened villagers reached the scene. Plans for pursuit were quickly made. Postmaster W. S. Root and C. P. Root, his brother, started for Mt. Upton, the nearest railroad station, six miles away. They had gone but half a mile when they came upon a team hitched to a telegraph pole. One of the horses had become entangled in the harness and thrown himself. The robbers apparently had made an attempt to right the harness in the darkness, but finally abandoned the effort and made off. The team proved to have been stolen from a neighboring barn.

Continuing on their way Postmaster Root and his brother came upon a one-horse surrey near Mount Upton. An axle of the vehicle was broken, and a short distance away was the horse, belonging to a farmer in the vicinity, and taken from his barn during the night.

It was believed that after this vehicle failed them the robbers made their way into the woods, as no further trace of them could be found.

Binghamton, N. Y.—It is certain that three of the men who committed the Gilbertsville robbery are the professional postoffice and bank burglars who blew open the safe of the postoffice at Port Dickinson, adjoining this city, some days ago. The three men were seen at Mount Upton in the morning, where a description of them was obtained. The men have committed many daring burglaries in this vicinity during the past few weeks.

CHILTON COTTON ASSOCIATION.

Clanton, May 6, 1905

The Southern Cotton Association of Chilton county was called to order by county President W. H. Conway, at 11 a.m., who made some statements and suggestions. After which the roll of districts was called and delegates from fifteen districts responded.

Motion prevailed that the report of warehouse committee of Chilton county Farmers' Alliance be read by the secretary of said committee. The report was read by Alex G. Dake, and after much discussion and after being amended, was approved by the Association. The report proposes for the people of Chilton county to erect a first-class ginnery, oil mill, fertilizer mixer and cotton warehouse, same to be erected by a stock company composed of farmers and business men, the capital stock to be 1000 shares at $25 each. Vice-President F. A. Gulledge acted as President and appointed a committee of four, composed of Tipton Mullins, J. W. Sorrell, S. S. Scott and J. D. Sims, to act with the warehouse committee of Farmers' Alliance. The following resolution offered by J. W. Sorrell was adopted:

Whereas, we believe supply and demand should govern the price of cotton, and whereas, we believe by using more cotton in the South it will increase the demand. Therefore, be it resolved, that it is the sense of this body that we use ducking or cotton bagging to put up our cotton this fall. Also that we use no fertilizer except it be put up in cotton sacks.

Resolved further, that the S. C. A. of Chilton county pass resolutions asking the proper authorities in the State to look after the matter at once.

All parties having claims against the Association are requested to present the same to the president, and after they have been approved by the Association, they will be paid by the treasurer.

The next county meeting will be on June 3, 905. Let everybody come.

Roman Gormands.

The wealthy gormands of Rome cherished a strong partiality for song birds. Both Horace and Martial refer with approval to roast thrush, and Ovid recommends "a crown of thrushes" as a lover's present to his mistress. Thrushes' breasts were one of the ingredients of the celebrated Apician dish, "Patina apiciana," which also included beccaficos, mushrooms, sow's udder, fish and chickens, rivaling the heterogeneous contents of a gypsy's "pot au feu."

Horace relates that the sons of Actius, to stimulate their appetite for dinner, lunched on "nightingales of monstrous price," and Varro tells us of the aviary of Lucullus, which was also a "salle a manger," so that the epicure gratified his ears and his palate simultaneously, feasting upon the delicate warblers whose congeners, unconscious of their coming doom, were discoursing meanwhile the most exquisite music.

CHILTON COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

President—[illegible], Clanton. Secretary-Treasurer—[illegible], Verbena. Executive Committee—[illegible], Clanton; Dr. A. Horn, Thorsby; T. U. Crumpton, Maplesville; Dr. H. W. Caffey, Verbena; W. A. Reynolds, Jemison.

Through the courtesy of the Editor of the Banner, this space will belong to the Chilton County Sunday School Association until the county convention at Maplesville, in July Herein will be published each week, articles relative to the interdenominational work of the district, the county, the State and the International Association of Sunday schools. The articles will concern especially the Chilton county Association, the history of its organization, its present condition and its plans for the future; and it is hoped that the "Sunday school column" may bear the impress of the earnest desire to help which is the strength and force of this world-wide movement for denominational co-operation in Sunday school work.

An approximate estimate places the white population of Chilton county at 17,000. There are not more than 50 Sunday schools with an average enrollment of 60 members, revealing the fact that 14,000 people in our county are not identified with any Sunday school. This number includes those who are too old or too young to attend the schools, those in ill health and those whose order of faith precludes belief in Sunday schools, but the most conservative estimate shows that at least there are 10,000 people in our county who, from carelessness, indifference or ignorance of the benefit to be derived, are not members of our Sunday schools. This condition exists in other counties in Alabama, in other States of the Union, in Provinces of Canada and in the divisions of the foreign countries, and to remedy this evil is part of the work of the Interdenominational Sunday school Association.

FURTHER ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN.

Verbena, April 29, 1905

Editor Banner—A short while since one of your correspondents addressed a letter of advice to the young men of Chilton county. The writer is a man of wide business experience, close powers of observation, and noted for practical, common sense methods, and as a result of his energy and good management has achieved large success in his calling, and the suggestions he offered were wise and to the point for secular purposes. But my object in this communication is to present the subject from a different direction, and some words from Longfellow's "Psalm of Life" will afford a text for my observations.

> "Life is real, life is earnest,
> And the grave is not its goal;
> Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
> Was not written of the soul."

1. Before leaving home and entering upon the battle of life, settle the question of your relations to God.

2. The great primal purpose of this life is the glory of God, and in recognition of this truth Jesus uttered the admonition, "Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness."

3. This is pre-eminently wise because God commands it.

4. It is due Him as a matter of gratitude on your part, because He is your Creator, Preserver and daily Benefactor.

5. Self interest prompts such a course for the reason that the spiritual transcends in importance the natural; and eternal interests overwhelmingly exceed those of time and sense.

6. Obedience to this injunction secures contentment and peace of mind, and can be obtained in no other way. The patriarch Job gives this advice: "Aquaint now thyself with Him, and be at peace; thereby good shall come unto thee."

And the greatest of all the prophets—Isaiah, declared, "Thou will keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee; because he trusteth in thee."

Pursuing this wise course, when "Life's fitful fever is over," and you stand on the confines of the eternal world, and your feet are entering the cold waters of Jordan, you can say with the great Apostle to the Gentiles "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand, I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day."

Looking back through the vista of three score years and ten; and looking forward to the setting sun of life as it nears the western horizon, I would commend to your adoption as your chart and compass the unalterable resolve, "My Father thou art the guide of my youth."
H. W. Caffey.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

Special correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, D. C., May 8, 1905

I spent the greater part of last week in the city of New York—that maelstrom of money—and if a man wants to get a real taste of the strenuous life let him go there and spend a week after living in the quiet country village of Washington. He can get all the exercise he wants dodging all sorts and kinds of vehicles and being scare to death the most of the time, fearing he will be run over and killed. The greatest institution of that great city, however, is the new subway or underground railway. It certainly has pointed the way to solve the transportation problem of that city. You enter one of those express trains at the Brooklyn Bridge, down town, and before you realize it you are at One Hundreth street, about ten miles from the starting point. You go in and take a seat, and "phitt," you are at your destination. The dadgum things run so fast that the white iron pillars about ten feet apart look like a box of matches. If a man wants to learn how to take one good breath and swallow about ten miles of longitude, let him take a ride on the New York subway.

There has been sorrow and genuine grief here in the National capital this last week on account of the untimely death of General Fitzhugh Lee, who was a general favorite with everybody. Although nearly seventy years old, he was one of those sunshiny natures that refuse to grow old, and you did not realize his age. He was a life of activity, many parts, courage and manliness all the way through. Many honors had come to him, yet he was always the same cheery, companionable and kindly gentlemen. He never acquired the swell head, and if anything was calculated to give it to a man it was his reception here in 1898, after he left Cuba and just before the breaking out of the war with Spain. There never was greater honor paid to a man in this country, and it took a big man intellectually to withstand that kind of applause from the people. One of the most conspicuous figures in two wars, Governor of his State, and the best Consul-General ever sent to Cuba, he has left a heritage for his children in his good name that any man may envy. Whatever he did he with all his might, and he died working too hard for the success of the Jamestown Exposition, of which he was the directing head. I have often heard the dear General tell good stories, but the best one was on himself, He said that shortly after he was made a major-general in the Spanish-American war he met an old trooper who rode with him around Richmond in the wild days of '61 to '65, and after looking at his brilliant new uniform of blue, the old trooper said to him: "General, I hope I will die before you do." "Why, my dear fellow?" said the General. "Because," answered he, "I want to be over there when you come in with that blue uniform on and hear what old Jubal Early will say." He was loved here and I know he will be loved over there. Requiescat in pace.

One point that has been persistently made uring the hearings before the Senate committee on Inter-State Commerce is that the present Inter-State Commerce Commission has not attempted to enforce the laws now on the statute books to prevent railroads from allowing discriminations to favored shippers. Had this been done, admit the railroad presidents who had been heard, there would be no public clamor about rebates and discriminations.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

is the easiest and most effective form of cod liver oil. Here's a natural order of things that shows why Scott's Emulsion is of so much value in all cases of scrofula and consumption. More fat, more weight, more nourishment, that's why.

Does Your Heart Beat

Yes. 100,000 times each day. Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

One frequent cause of bad blood is a sluggish liver. This produces constipation. Poisonous substances are then absorbed into the blood, instead of being removed from the body daily as nature intended. Keep the bowels open with Ayer's Pills, liver pills. All vegetable.

Terrific Race With Death.

"Death was fast approaching," writes Ralph F. Fernandez, of Tampa, Fla., describing his fearful race with death, "as a result of liver trouble and heart disease, which had robbed me of sleep and of all interest in life. I had tried many different doctors and several medicines, but got no benefit, until I began to use Electric Bitters. So wonderful was their effect, that in three days I felt like a new man, and today I am cured of all my troubles." Guaranteed, Upchurch Drug co; price 50c.

Why Suffer From Rheumatism?

Why suffer from rheumatism when one application of Chamberlain's Pain Balm will relieve the pain? The quick relief which this liniment affords makes rest and sleep possible, and that alone is worth many times its cost. Many who have used it hoping only for a short relief from suffering have been happily surprised to find that after awhile the relief became permanent. Mrs. V. H. Leggett, of Yum Yum, Tennessee, U. S. A., writes: "I am a great sufferer from rheumatism, all over from head to foot, and Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that will relieve the pain." For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

When you are in the court house next week and hear a "Chuff, chuff" noise, it is only the new gasoline engine at the Banner office.

A Positive Necessity.

Having to lay upon my bed for 14 days from a severely bruised leg, I only found relief when I used a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment. I can cheerfully recommended it as the best medicine for bruises ever sent to the afflicted. It has now become a positive necessity upon myself.

Advice to Boys.

Wadsworth, May 3, 1905

Boys, never bet or gamble, for honesty is the best policy, always has been and always will be. It is so wrong for a nice young man of talent, education and wealth. Boys in high life, boys in public stations and responsible offices has a powerful and corrupting influence on society. The gambling hells in our cities, tolerated and patronized, are a disgrace to a nation bearing a Christian name. If he does not become a bankrupt in property he becomes one in character and in moral principles; he becomes a debauched, debarred, friendless vagabond. Now, boys, you are not only ruining yourselves, but you are grieving your poor parents to death. Those who follow gambling will live to seriously regret their folly. Gambling often blots out the nobler powers of the heart, it transforms men to brutes and desperadoes and strips human nature of all its native dignity, forfeits the happiness of this life, and endures the penalties of sin in both worlds. F. A. TEMPLE.

A Creeping Death.

Blood poison creeps up towards the heart, causing death. J. E. Stearns, Belle Plaine, Minn., writes that a friend dreadfully injured his hand, which swelled up like blood poisoning. Bucklen's Arnica Salve drew out the poison, healed the wound, and saved his life. Best in the world for burns and sores. 25c at Upchurch Drug co.

Cocoanut Butter.

A new butter is now being made from the milk of the cocoanut. This milk when subjected to a temperature of over 28 C. runs into a yellow oil which is imported in great quantities from India and Africa. The better qualities of it are obtained from Ceylon, Cochin China and Australia. The nut produces 60 per cent of oil, and one acre of land planted with cocoanut trees would produce over 400 pounds of oil. This has hitherto been used for fats for soap or for machinery oil and the better qualities employed in the manufacture of textile goods. In France this oil is now subjected to a special treatment and converted into butter.

COFFEE HEART.
Very Plain in Some People.

A great many people go on suffering from annoying ailments for a long time before they can get their own consent to give up the indulgence from which their trouble arises.

"I became satisfied some months ago that I owed the palpitation of the heart, from which I suffered almost daily, to the use of coffee (I had been a coffee drinker for 30 years), but I found it very hard to give up the beverage.

"I realized that I must give up the harmful indulgence in coffee, but I felt the necessity for a hot table drink, and as tea is not to my liking, I was at a loss for awhile, what to do.

"One day I ran across a very sensible and straightforward presentation of the claims of Postum Food Coffee, and was so impressed thereby that I concluded to give it a trial. My experience with it was unsatisfactory till I learned how it ought to be prepared—by thorough boiling for not less than 15 or 20 minutes. After I learned that lesson there was no trouble. Postum Food Coffee proved to be a most palatable and satisfactory hot beverage, and I have used it ever since.

"The effect on my health has been most salutary. It has completely cured the heart palpitation from which I used to suffer so much, particularly after breakfast, and I never have a return of it except when I dine or lunch away from home and am compelled to drink the old kind of coffee because Postum is not served. I find that Postum Food Coffee cheers and invigorates while it produces no harmful stimulation." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Killed by Judge Prowell.

Selma, Ala.—The particulars of a deplorable tragedy at Linden reached Selma Friday morning. Before the arrival of the train from that city rumors were rife upon the streets that Judge S. M. Prowell, ex-probate judge of the county, had killed a man. All sorts of reports were current as to the killing, but from the lips of an eye-witness it is learned that the affair was entirely accidental. J. S. Trigg, one of the prominent citizens of Marengo county, and a life-long friend of Judge Prowell, being the victim.

Assistant Examiner of Accounts Sedberry found Judge Prowell, along with other officers of Marengo county, due the state and county considerable sums of money. Judge Prowell, who has since been succeeded by ex-Sheriff Hasty, paid the state $3,000 a few days ago.

The grand jury which assembled last Monday was instructed to make an investigation into the shortage due the county and State Examiner Sedberry was summoned before that body. He passed through Selma Thursday en route to Linden. Hearing that Mr. Sedberry was in the city, Judge Prowell put his big 44-caliber Colt's pistol in his pocket and went up town.

While talking, Judge Prowell gave his trousers a hitch, a habit that will be recalled by his friends, and the big pistol fell out and was discharged, the ball passing through Mr. Trigg's body.

Mr. Trigg lived about twenty-five minutes.

Judge Prowell was nearly frantic with grief over the sad occurrence.

Besides the benefits reaped by fa ers on account of the enterprise energy exercised by the packers in taining commercial results by for trade, the great development in manufacture of packing house by-p ucts has added enormously to value of all live stock raised in United States. The waste materia twenty years ago, then an expense the packer, is now converted into ticles of great value and, as an e nomic fact, this must correspondin increase the value to the farmer every head of cattle marketed at numerous stock yards of the coun Let these facts be remembered w now it is so popular to regard great packing industry as deserving condemnation. At least it must be mitted that, so far, there is no a quate reason for the almost un mous howl that may be heard ev where in the face of the Garfield port above alluded to which practi ly exonerates the packers from the scure and indefinite charges that h been for some time past made the s ject of popular comment.

A JUDGE'S WIFE

PAIN IN THE BACK AND SIDE

MRS MINNIE McALLISTER.

Quickly Cured by a Short Course of Pe-ru-na.

MRS. MINNIE E. McALLISTER, from 1217 West 33d street, Minneapolis, Minn., wife of Judge McAllister, writes as follows:

"I suffered for years with a pain in the small of my back and right side. It interfered often with my domestic and social duties and I never supposed that I would be cured, as the doctor's medicine did not seem to help me any.

"Fortunately a member of our Order advised me to try Peruna and gave it such high praise that I decided to try it. Although I started in with little faith, I felt so much better in a week that I felt encouraged.

"I took it faithfully for seven weeks and am happy indeed to be able to say that I am entirely cured.

"Words fail to express my gratitude. Perfect health once more is the best thing I could wish for, and thanks to Peruna, I enjoy that now."

Pain in the back, or on the right side.

How often a physician hears this complaint!

Over and over we hear women say: "I have a pain in the small of my back. I have a pain in my right side, just below the ribs."

These symptoms indicate pelvic or abdominal catarrh.

They indicate that the bowels are not acting properly—that the liver is out of order—that the pelvic organs are congested.

Pelvic catarrh—that is the name for it.

Peruna cures pelvic catarrh, when all of these symptoms disappear.

The catarrh may be all in the abdominal organs, when it would be properly called abdominal catarrh.

At any rate, it is one of those cases of internal catarrh which can be reached only by a course of treatment with Peruna.

We have on file thousands of testimonials similar to the above. It is impossible here to give our readers more than one or two specimens of the number of grateful and commendatory letters Dr. Hartman is constantly receiving in behalf of his famous catarrh remedy, Peruna.

Mrs. [illegible] King, Darlington, Mo., writes:

"I have suffered for years with biliousness, [illegible] and liver trouble. If I caught a little cold, the pains were increased and backache and headache were of frequent occurrence.

"However, Peruna cured me. Twelve bottles made me a healthy woman."

The Secret of Good Coffee

Even the best housekeepers cannot make a good cup of coffee without good material. Dirty, adulterated and queerly blended coffee such as unscrupulous dealers shovel over their counters won't do. But take the pure, clean, natural flavored

LION COFFEE, the leader of all package coffees—the coffee that for over a quarter of a century has been daily welcomed in millions of homes—and you will make a drink fit for a king in this way:

HOW TO MAKE GOOD COFFEE.

Use LION COFFEE, because to get best results you must use the best coffee.

Grind your LION COFFEE rather fine. Use "a tablespoonful to each cup, and one extra for the pot." First mix it with a little cold water, enough to make a thick paste, and add white of an egg (if egg is to be used as a settler), then follow one of the following rules:

1st. WITH BOILING WATER. Add boiling water, and let it boil THREE MINUTES ONLY. Add a little cold water and set aside five minutes to settle. Serve promptly.

2d. WITH COLD WATER. Add your cold water to the paste and bring it to a boil. Then set aside, add a little cold water, and in five minutes it's ready to serve.

3 DONT'S
- Don't boil it too long.
- Don't let it stand more than ten minutes before serving.
- Don't use water that has been boiled before.

TWO WAYS TO SETTLE COFFEE.

1st. With Eggs. Use part of the white of an egg, mixing it with the ground LION COFFEE before boiling.

2d. With Cold Water instead of eggs. After boiling add a dash of cold water, and set aside for eight or ten minutes, then serve through a strainer.

Insist on getting a package of genuine LION COFFEE, prepare it according to this recipe and you will only use LION COFFEE in future. (Sold only in 1 lb. sealed packages.)

Cancer Statistics.

Recent cancer investigation has shown that young persons are less free from malignant disease than has been supposed. Of 322 cancer patients recently entered at a German clinic ten were from 19 to 30 years old; 121 were between 30 and 50; 156 from 50 to 70, and 35 from 70 to 90.

The color was high, and passages were accompanied with a scalding sensation. Doan's Kidney Pills soon regulated the kidney secretions, making their color normal and banished the inflammation which caused the scalding sensation. I can rest well, my back is strong and sound and I feel much better in every way."

MONEY FOR FIRST TELEGRAPH LINE.

General Lew Wallace's Father Broke Tie and S. F. B. Morse Got His Appropriation.

"After Morse had invented the telegraph," said General Lew Wallace, according to the literary gossip of the Harper's, "he wanted Congress to appropriate $30,000 to build an experimental line from Washington to Baltimore. The matter created a great deal of discussion. Morse was sneered at and jeered at, and many thought him insane. My father was a member of Congress at that time, and he was one of the committee to which the question of the appropriation was referred.

"When the committee met, my father was watching the experiment of telegraphing from the House to the Senate. Wires had been stretched and the inventors were operating the instruments. My father saw them work; he sent messages and received replies. Then he went to the committee room and found the committee in session. They had just voted on the appropriation, and their vote was a tie. He cast his vote in its favor, and this caused the appropriation to go through. The result was the first telegraph line in the world.

"Strange to say, that vote lost my father his seat in Congress," continued General Wallace. "Thirty thousand dollars was then a big sum, and this vote became one of the issues of the next Congressional campaign. Father was charged with wasting the people's money, and his opponent ridiculed him on the stump by referring to his 'magnetico, electrico, telegraphic appropriation which no one could explain.' He even asked father to explain it, but at that time he could not do so, although he said it would be of great benefit to the country. The people thought differently, and the result was his defeat."

Care of the Eyes.

People who recognize the importance of taking care of their health often quite forget that if we want to preserve them it is just as necessary to take care of our eyes.

First of all take care of your general health. Poor health often leads indirectly to various eye troubles.

Then, remember that straining of the eyes is caused by a dazzling glare, or a bad light.

Glare and gloom are equally bad to work in. You need not ask which is the worse for the eyes—one is as bad as the other.

The light should fall on book or work from behind us. The attitude while at work is of great importance. The head should, as far as possible, be kept erect. Stooping causes an increased flow of blood to the head and eyes—this is injurious to them.

Don't read when traveling. Deny yourself this pleasure for sake of your eyes.—Chicago Journal.

The First Astor and the Poet.

John Jacob Astor and his son rigidly attended to business in the same office—a little one-story building in Prince street, just east of Broadway. Their constant companion there was Fitz-Grene Halleck—Marco Bozzaris Halleck. Halleck became a clerk for Astor in 1832 and worked seventeen years. The employment, he himself said, was not "profitable but permanent." Astor warned him when he began not to talk to anyone of his wealth. The two men became great friends. Halleck spent months with his patron at his country seat and became one of the trustees of the Astor Library. The poet frequently rallied the old man on his wealth. "Why, Mr. Astor," he would say, "if I had $200 a year and was sure of it I would be content." The great landowner took him at his word, and in his will, much to the amusement of bohemian New York, left Halleck an annuity of $200.—Burton J. Hendrick in McClure's.

Byron and Napoleon.

The more I think of Byron the more clear it becomes to me that he is, first, second and third, a tragic figure. He was the child of a loveless marriage, that constant source of huge armies of discordant natures. His upbringing was tragic; his marriage was tragic; his loves were tragic; his death, which I thought at first only tragic-farce, is actual tragedy. Byron and Napoleon, contemporaries, were the analogues and complements of each other. Byron is the passive tragedy of the imaginative temperament as poet, using expression; Napoleon is the active tragedy of the imaginative temperament as warrior and world compeller, employing deeds. Byron inevitably ends in an abortive attempt at action in Greece; Napoleon, as inevitably, in an abortive attempt at expression (the dictated memoirs) in St. Helena.—John Davidson, in London Outlook.

A County of Cancer.

It is estimated that before long, if the present rate of increase continues, there will be one case of cancer in every third Somerset household. The last available returns show that among the half million inhabitants of Somerset there were 458 cancer deaths in one year, being about seven per cent. of the deaths from all causes.

In twenty years the rate has risen from twenty to thirty-four deaths in the Taunton Union, from nine to seventeen in the Langport Union, fourteen to eighteen at Chard, fourteen to twenty-nine at Yeovil, six to ten at Wincanton, and eight to twenty-one at Frome. Dr. H. Page, medical officer of health for the borough of Yeovil, interviewed, said that he believed that the increase was real, and not due merely to more accurate diagnosis. No special reason could be assigned for the remarkable increase.—London Mail.

"IT SAVED MY LIFE"

PRAISE FOR A FAMOUS MEDICINE

Mrs. Willadsen Tells How She Tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Just in Time.

Mrs. T. C. Willadsen, of Manning, Iowa, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I can truly say that you have saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words.

Mrs T. C. Willadsen

"Before I wrote to you, telling you how I felt, I had doctored for over two years steady and spent lots of money on medicines besides, but it all failed to help me. My monthly periods had ceased and I suffered much pain, with fainting spells, headache, backache and bearing-down pains, and I was so weak I could hardly keep around. As a last resort I decided to write you and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so thankful that I did, for after following your instructions, which you sent me free of all charge, my monthly periods started; I am regular and in perfect health. Had it not been for you I would be in my grave to-day.

"I sincerely trust that this letter may lead every suffering woman in the country to write you for help as I did."

When women are troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. Refuse all substitutes.

Private Car Lines.

The railroads seem very willing to have the private car lines brought under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission. A railroad President is authority for the statement that lines are paid mileage, without discrimination, and the question of excessive charges is a matter for the shipper to settle with the car lines, so long as there is no law to govern their rates. Car mileage paying has been decided to be as legal as the payment of rental for property.

REVIEW OF REVIEWS

The more Magazines there are, the more Indispensable is The Review of Reviews

"Indispensable." "The one magazine I feel I must take." "The world under a field-glass." "An education in public affairs and current literature."—these are some of the phrases one hears from noted people who read the Review of Reviews. The more magazines there are, the more necessary is the Review of Reviews, because it brings together the best that is in all the most important monthlies of the world. Such is the flood of periodical literature that nowadays people say that the only way to keep up with it is to read the Review of Reviews. Entirely over and above this reviewing section, it has more original matter and illustrations than most magazines, and the most timely and important articles printed in any monthly.

Probably the most useful section of all is Dr. Albert Shaw's illustrated "Progress of the World," where public events and issues are authoritatively and lucidly explained in every issue. Many a subscriber writes, "This department alone is worth more than the price of the magazine." The unique cartoon department, depicting current history in caricature, is another favorite. The Review of Reviews covers five continents, and yet is American, first and foremost.

Men in public life, the members of Congress, professional men, and the great captains of industry who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided that it is "indispensable."

How Brahmans Measure Time.

The Brahmans' clocks divide the day into sixty hours of twenty-four minutes each, called ghurees. Occasionally a twenty-four minute sand glass is used, but more commonly a copper bowl with a very small hole in the bottom of it, this bowl being placed on the surface of the water and gradually filled. If the hole in the bottom is correctly sized the bowl sinks in twenty-four minutes. This registers the duration of the ghuree. An attendant thereupon empties the basin and strikes the hour of the day or night on the gong.

Strictly Genuine

Most of the patent medicine testimonials are probably genuine. The following notice recently appeared in the Atchison (Kan.) Globe: "Joe Tack, a well known engineer, running on the Missouri Pacific between Wichita and Kiowa, lately appeared in a big one, with a picture, and when he was in this office to-day, we asked him about it. He says he had terific pains in his stomach, and thought he had cancer. His druggist recommended Kodol and he says it cured him. He recommended it to others, who were also cured." Kodol Dyspepsia cure digests what you eat and cures all stomach troubles. Just as surely as the sun shines your stomach can be brought back to its originally pure condition and life sweetened by this lasting and truly the greatest digestant known. FROM THE LAND OF FLOWERS

Dear old Banner: It has been a long time since I have written anything for your columns but I have been a constant reader of you for many years; in all my moving I have you always visit me, and I and family have always hailed you with true delight. I have been much interested in the many letters from different ones in regard to the betterment of the farmers, and especially in Mr Gulledge's letters. They are practical and full of strong, healthy advice and should be heeded by many. I am sure people do not practice economy as they should and especially economy of time. I remember once when practicing in Alabama to have had two cases at same time, and when I would call to see one of them, who was the child of a poor needy man, I would find six to eight ladies in the house and six to a dozen men out laying around fires about the gate and each wanting to chat with me, and some asked me how was politics, and I said sir, I am practicing medicine, when I get ready to run for an office then will be time for me to talk politics, and now says I to him, Mr. H has a very sick child and I am going there every day and have been for three weeks, and I haven't seen him but twice and no crowd to disturb his child. His good sensible wife attends the child and he is running the farm, and by such management he is fast accumulating world's goods

Mrs. Disraeli's Economy.

Of the rigid economy practiced by Mrs. Disraeli there is one very good story told: Mrs. Disraeli and her husband had come down from London to spend the Easter vacation at Hughenden and had called on the various tradesmen at Wycombe to order the groceries and other requirements for their ten days' or fortnight's stay. It so happened that their sojourn was rather abruptly shortened, and Mrs. Disraeli was seen calling at the grocers and other purveyors, taking out of the carriage the nonconsumed wares and asking the shopkeepers to receive them back and have them reweighed and so to make a reduction in their accounts.

The great statesman, with folded arms, was leaning back in the carriage perfectly nonchalant, but evidently desirous to have no share in the frugal transaction. Such rigid economy was no longer required after the old lady who so admired his books died and left him her entire fortune, amounting to over £40,000.—London Tit-Bits.

Library Book Thieves.

"No public library is safe from book thieves. In the big libraries they have spotters to watch men who ask for rare editions, but in the small libraries we must depend on the girls employed who happen to detect a thief by chance. If possible we catch the book thief before he reaches the door and ask him if he has not forgotten to have the volume checked off at the registry desk. If he is an old hand he says:

"'I have forgotten my card, but I will bring it around tomorrow.'

"He hands back the book and disappears to reappear in that particular library no more for many months. The majority of book thieves do not steal

The Sarcastic Cabman.

The whip flicking hero of this story had driven an irascible old fellow a good three mile journey. When the fare climbed stiffly out and slowly produced a big pocketbook cabby drew a deep breath and prepared to be sarcastic. A watchful constable standing near prevented all thought of his relieving his feelings by the use of picturesque terms.

Cabby watched his fare make a lengthy mental calculation of the distance he had been driven, select the exact legal fare, count it twice over and then proffer it to him, with an expression on his face plainly indicative of "Now, then, you dare dispute it, and I'll take your number."

But cabby didn't dispute it. Instead he promptly accepted it; but, slipping his hand into another pocket, he produced a farthing, which he handed to the fare.

"What's this for?" demanded the old fellow.

"One farden, currint coin of the relum, sir," said cabby, gathering up his reins. "I druv yer just the exact distance represented by arf of that there shekel under the three mile you reckoned. I ain't got no arf farden about me, but it don't matter. You can keep the change. I ain't mean. Goodby, sir, and God bless you. Geeup, 'orse!"—London Standard.

How He Proposed.

"How did he do it? What did he say?" inquired a girl impudently. Then, seeing her friend turn away with a smile upon her face, she went on: "I knew you wouldn't tell. Nobody ever will. You will never get a girl to tell just how her sweetheart proposed to her. She'll tell you anything else you like to ask her. If they've had a quarrel she may often in her indignation

Saved by Dynamite

Sometimes, a flaming city is saved by dynamiting a space that the fire can't cross. Sometimes, a cough hangs on so long, you feel like nothing but dynamite would cure it. Z. T. Gray, of Calhoun, Ga. writes: "My wife had a very aggrivated cough, which kept her awake nights. Two physicians could not help her; so she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which eased her cough, gave her sleep, and finally cured her." Strictly scientific cure for bronchitis and La Grippe. At Upchurch Drug Co., price 50c and $1.00, guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

Cooper, May, 15, 1905

Editor Banner—Seeing so many diversified opinions regarding the stock law, cotton growing, county fair, fertilizer mill, telephone, school tax, Fourth of July picnic, etc., I would ask permission to touch upon a few of these points.

All right, the stock law first. Since I have no stock, don't believe it would injure me much or help me any and therefore I don't claim either side, but I am in favor of all jumping on "Observer" because he claims the stock law side. I am sure he knows the law allows him a right to express his views or opinions. Now, I would suggest that if he violates the law in the abuse of this right, why then let the higher authorities take him in charge. The situation, occupation and surroundings in general modify one's welfare. Therefore what would be to one's interest would possibly be against another. Then why not let everyone say what would be best for them? I am certain as long as "Observer" or anyone else is sane they are not going to cut their own throats just to please someone else, because it may be that he has a wife and some babies to feed and he knows if they are left to the charitable mercy, a coffin might be better.

Will now pass to the cotton growing. I have about decided that the best lesson for the farmer is practical experience, such as we had during Cleveland's administration. The title of that lesson was "Low price cotton." Seems as if some have forgotten the lesson. My ideas are if no disaster befalls the cotton which is now planted that this lesson will be refreshed in their minds this fall.

Now the school tax. We hear but little concerning the special ax, therefore we hold to the old adage, "Silence gives consent," and that means we are going to have longer and better schools and also means more progress and intelligence in our county.

As to county fair and telephone, etc., I don't think people are ready to consider these grand subjects at present, because that would be too much progress at once. They seem to want to take it slow and easy, like the cat eat the grindstone, but they should remember that life is short, only a few days and full of sin, and the time to work is while it is day, for the night cometh when no man can work.

In conclusion, wish to thank Mr. Gulledge and Dr. Caffey. Their epistles headed "Advice to young men" were so rich and wholesome. Come again, brothers, you will always be appreciated. Will close with best wishes to the Banner and its many readers. POSTER.

Please allow me space in your paper to let the people know we are still living and receiving more blessings than we justly deserve. Well, it is raining now and we can't save much hay. Our crops are looking very well, farmers are doing their best. I think the cotton acreage is reduced about 20 per cent in our district and guano the same. Bro. farmer, there is a good deal said about fine stock, but let us not become discouraged because we are not able to own a fine cow or hog, for a half loaf is better than no loaf, a little hog is better than no hog. Let us diversify our crops, raise more food stuff and make better ones out of the ones we have. My old friend says a piney woods cow worth $15 and $35 worth of good feed is worth more than a $35 cow and $ 5 worth of feed.

Mr. C. B. That when taken in this way the effect is double in rapidity. "It seems to get at the right spot instantly," he says. For For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

CLANTON, ALA.

It is a regular army officer, in speaking of the heavy percentage of desertions from the army and navy of the United States, who attributes such desertions to "an abnormal claim, view and development of personal independence" on the part of the American enlisted men afloat and ashore, states the Daily True American. In other words, the American youth is too free and independent an individual to make a good soldier or sailor in the regular establishment when no war is in progress. As a volunteer, as instanced by the Civil and Spanish-American wars, enlisting for a fight and retiring to peaceful pursuits when the fighting is over, he is unequaled. It is probably true that as a mere cog in a military machine he never will compare with the military units of the compulsory service system of Europe.

The indifference with which the world received the news of the completion of the Simplon tunnel, as compared with the excitement over the finishing of the Hoosac tunnel and the piercing of the St. Gotthard, is an excellent proof of the vast progress made by engineering science, observes the New York Evening Post. The Simplon tunnel is by nearly three miles the longest tunnel in the world, and its construction, even in the face of extraordinary difficulties, took but six and one-half years. Yet it is accepted in Europe much as was in this city the opening of the second bridge to Brooklyn. The first was something to marvel at and boast of; the second, merely an incident in the growth of the metropolis. So to the general public, the Simplon tunnel is scarce a nine-day's wonder. But to the engineer it is an important milestone on the road of his profession.

"I believe if the hawks and crows were killed we would have plenty of birds," says a reader in the Indiana Farmer. "Hawks and crows kill more birds than do the hunters in Indiana. If the Legislature wants to protect the quail they could not do a better thing to my notion, than to have the hawks and crows killed. They kill hundreds of little quails that don't live to be old enough to whistle 'Bob White.' Chickens in large numbers are also killed annually by the hawks and crows. If a bounty of say 50c. each for the heads of hawks were offered, it would result in the extermination of them and the quails would multiply tenfold in a year or two. Let us hear from some one else on the bird question." Our friend is greatly mistaken if he thinks that hawks and crows kill more birds than the hunters would if there were no law protecting them; but let us hear from others on the subject, replies that journal.

The culture of mushrooms in cellars has become quite a fad in Chicago, according to a newspaper of that city. The mushrooms are raised on shelves or bunks arranged in tiers one above the other like the berths in sleeping-cars, thus producing a large area in a single cellar. The beds are planted in succession, giving a product throughout the season. The fad appears more sensible than its predecessors, the mulberry, the Belgian hare and the ginseng crazes. But special crops, however profitable in a small way, are easily overdone, comments the American Cultivator. When the public shows signs of becoming more interested in raising a product than in consuming it, the cautious grower will begin to go slow.

A brisk daily walk, or a ride on horseback, beats any more elaborate forms of physical exercise for simplicity combined with efficiency. In walking, especially if the ground is somewhat undulating, a very large number of muscles are brought into natural and easy play, sufficient, at any rate, to stimulate the circulation, which in its turn compels full expansion of the lungs and due aeration of the blood. The professional or business man requires no more than this to keep him fit for his duties, provided he follows the ordinary rules of health in respect of bathing, eating, drinking and clothing. If he is afflicted with a sluggish liver, indigestion or inactivity of the alimentary canal as a whole, a man may derive more benefit to health on horseback; but that is really a curative form of exercise, concludes the London Chronicle.

The protest against the Rockefeller gift not only signifies the decline of dollar worship among us, but it means that the public conscience has become so aroused as to prevent the accumulation of other fortunes by such means as John D. Rockefeller has used, declares the Progressive Farmer.

O BEAUTIFUL, MY COUNTRY.

Oh, beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountain majesties
Above the fruited plain!
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood,
From sea to shining sea!

Oh, beautiful for pilgrim feet,
Whose stern, impassioned stress
A thoroughfare for freedom beat
Across the wilderness!
America! America!
God mend thine every flaw,
Confirm thy soul in self control,
Thy liberty in law!

Oh, beautiful for glory tale
Of liberating strife,
When valiantly, for man's avail,
Men lavished precious life!
America! America!
May God thy gold refine
Till all success be nobleness,
And every gain divine!

Oh, beautiful for patriot dream
That sees beyond the years
Thine alabaster cities gleam
Undimmed by human tears!
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood,
From sea to shining sea!

A BRIARLEY HOLIDAY.

BY WINIFRED KIRKLAND.

IN Shackleford Hannah Overton at forty was considered a fortunate woman. She had her health, the Briarley farm and the secret of the Briarley preserves. Despite Hannah's genuine grief, it could not but be a relief to her that her aunt, old Eunice Briarley, was dead, and her bitter heart at rest. She had brought up Hannah from a child, and it had been no light-hearted girlhood.

Hannah Overton had done her duty, but Shackleford had watched the youth fade out of her face, and it was glad that at last she was to have a chance, a chance of what, perhaps Shackleford hardly knew. To be sure, Briarley farm was mortgaged, but there was a sale at a good profit in Boston for the Briarley jams and jellies. Shackleford had refused to be anxious over the mortgage. It was more apprehensive that the coming of the stranger, Lena Pierce, might in some way bring trouble to Hannah.

But Lena Pierce brought no trouble. She was the orphan child of Eunice Briarley's favorite nephew, and joint heir with Hannah Overton to the Briarley farm. Lena was a brisk, rosy, capable little person of twenty. For three years she had supported herself as a stenographer. Once, when a little girl, she had visited Briarley farm, and ever afterward the visit had remained a sunny memory, as she walked the city streets where her lot was cast.

A course of varied fortunes had taught Lena adaptability. With an ease that was amazing she took to her new inheritance and her new cousin, to the cultivation of small fruits and the manufacture of preserves.

From the first Hannah and Lena were companionable. For Hannah it was a story that never grew stale to hear Lena tell of the experiences of her checkered childhood, a story that Lena told with a quaint, detached amusement, as if it had not been herself at all, and always with a protecting tenderness for the pair of unpractical parents who had been so helpless and so loving. Hannah's life seemed strangely meager beside that of the girl of twenty.

"I'm afraid you'll be lonely here," Hannah said, as they sat together on the front porch in the summer twilight.

"No," answered Lena, with decision. "Ever since I can remember I've always been moving, but this is home."

As the weeks went on they grew more than companionable. It seemed to each that she had wanted the other for a long time.

Then came on the part of each an effort to live up to the other's opinion of her. Hannah had seen how Lena's keen young eyes looked through people; she had heard her forming judgments that showed a relentless common sense. Would those keen eyes see through Hannah herself one day?

"She thinks I'm a Briarley!" groaned Hannah. "She's all Briarley herself. I did think this summer I might get some rest, but I shouldn't dare, with her in the house. That's the Briarley of it!"

Sadly enough Hannah remembered how often her old Aunt Eunice had said that if Hannah's hands had been more capable and her feet swifter, there need never have been a mortgage on Briarley farm. O that mortgage! How Hannah hated it!

Yet that summer she toiled as she had never toiled before; and all because there had come into her life a young person, energetic, fiercely hating sloth, a young person merry and full of good cheer and good to have about, who looked at Hannah with eyes full of admiration and of love.

On her first arrival Lena had given the accounts of the farm a sharp inspection. She had found out the assets of the Briarley preserves, and the amount of the mortgage. The idea of the mortgage was hideous to her. She and her cousin would work until they got rid of it and the Briarley farm was theirs.

Therefore Lena learned the secrets of strawberry runners, and of the thinning of blackberry bushes, and clad in a blue pinafore, toiled over the steaming sirups until, in one short summer, her currant jelly equaled Hannah's, and her black raspberry jam was just a shade better.

But it was really all very new to her, and her efficiency was at the cost of a strict self-discipline. She was here at last on the Briarley farm, that fairyland of her childhood, and, since Lena was but twenty, and had never had time to be young, the farm itself appealed to her with an intoxicating delight.

What a place the apple orchard was for dreaming! But apples, Lena had to remember, meant beautiful amber jelly, and jelly meant dollars, and dollars meant mortgage payments.

Lena admonished herself to take pattern by her cousin Hannah, for whom this toilsome summer was no first experience, and who stepped so unwearledly about the old kitchen. To Lena all the farm—the clean, shadowy barn, the orchard in which the indolent locusts droned, the nestling cornfields—called, "Come out of that kitchen and enjoy me!"

"I wonder," Lena asked herself, "if Cousin Hannah ever wanted to play. I suppose not. That's the Briarley of it! Well, I'm glad I've got Cousin Hannah, if I do have to be a Briarley now."

It seemed to Hannah that the farm drove them like a taskmaster with a lash. In June, close together, came the strawberries and the cherries; before they are past the red raspberries and the currants; then black raspberries and blackberries; and while your hands are still stained from these, apples and apples and apples! Right in the midst of these, come the cucumber pickles, and these you must keep close picked for your life, or else the proper finger length will be grown a hand's span in a night!

The pile of dollars in the savings bank grew larger and larger. A few more busy summers and there would be no mortgage, and Briarley farm would would be theirs indeed. But, O dear, to stand in mid-August and look back over a summer, and see no vacant spot into which you could possibly have packed a holiday! To look ahead and see nothing but pickles—green tomatoes, red tomatoes, cauliflower, cabbage—pickles lasting on and on into October!

Hannah Overton loooked at her summer and made a resolution. To herself she said:

"She's young, and she'll still have time."

To Lena she said, as they sat at the tea table:

"I'm going to borrow Hiram Hand's team, and drive over to Caleb Miller's to see about those quinces. You can manage the apples without me, can't you? I'll weigh the sugar to-night. After I've seen Caleb, I'll maybe go on to Davidstown. I can't tell. I'll be gone all day, perhaps. I'll take a lunch with me in case I don't get home for dinner. You won't mind being left alone, since you'll be busy?"

"Oh, no! I'll have a chance to show you how much I can do in a day all by myself."

"I know that well enough already," answered Hannah, with forced animation. She always did feel like a sneak in the presence of the fierce Briarley energy.

The next morning early Hannah drove away. She was composed enough until she was out of sight of the house, then the gipsy lights woke in her eyes.

For a short distance the road skirted her property. Hannah looked at her tidy fields with some resentment.

"It's a pity a woman can't have time to enjoy her own farm!" she muttered. "I declare I'm going to have some time off, if I do have to steal it from her!" with a glance back in the direction of the house.

At that little word came a sudden revulsion of feeling, for Hannah knew that at that moment her one wish was to have that same person sitting beside her in the buggy, jogging along behind the old ambling, amiable horse, with a holiday before them.

Hannah did go to Caleb Miller's, but no farther. She was honest in telling Lena that she did not know what she should do afterward. What she did do was to turn round.

Left alone, Lena washed the breakfast things with hands that trembled. She swept the speckless kitchen floor in nervous haste. For just a moment she stood surveying the shining plates of sugar on the table, the empty jelly tumblers gleaming in the sun, the bushel basket heaped with apples under the table. Then she turned to the range, where burned a clear, steady fire, an excellent fire for jelly; and after a moment's hesitation she turned off the drafts.

She ran into the pantry and quickly put up a lunch for herself. She drew the shades of the kitchen windows, took down her sunbonnet from its peg and closed the door behind her. Outside, she turned and addressed it:

"Kitchen, I'm not coming back all day. I'm going to play with my farm!"

It was a lovely, lazy August morning; baby clouds were floating in the blue overhead, there was a droning of bees in the air, and warm summer odors were breathing from the mignonette bed and the orchard.

If you had been a well-behaved and prosaic hen on that farm, you would have thought that Lena had gone mad, but she was only playing. When she was a little girl she had climbed the orchard trees, and swung on the forked branches; she had jumped from the barn rafters down into the fragrant hay; she had wandered, singing, up and down the avenues of cornstalks.

She did all of these things again. She lay on her back under the orchard trees, and again listened to find how noisy the grass can be with all the busy life that goes on down there.

So the morning went on, and presently, incredibly soon it seemed to Lena, a distant whistle in the village of Shackleford boomed out the noon hour.

"Time for me to have my picnic!" cried Lena, jumping up. She would have it—just where she used sometimes to carry her suppers on that visit long ago. She had quite forgotten that on the first occasion it had been her cousin Hannah who had showed her the spot.

You follow the stone wall, overgrown with wild rose vines. You dip down the hill out of sight of the house, of the barn, and on you go until you reach the clearest of little brooks running through the greenest of meadows.

The stream turns and twists in tortuous fashion, and all its turns are outlined through the meadow by the low willows that skirt the banks. In one spot an old willow, half-uprooted, has fallen across the brook, forming a live and growing bridge. Blackbirds, black-winged and red-winged, are noisy in the willows all day long, and little minnows flash through the brown, pebbly depths of the stream. You may hang over the willow bridge and watch them.

Lena climbed out on the old tree trunk, and sat there, swinging her feet over the water while she ate. She had lost her sunbonnet somewhere on the way, and her hair was loose. She knocked her heels against the tree trunk in time with a little song she hummed.

Her luncheon over, she rested her chin on her hands, her hair tumbling about her rosy face, and she became gradually pensive.

"It's a perfect holiday," she said, "except for one thing, and that is—I wish I had some one to play with."

She started suddenly. Who could possibly come visiting this far corner of the farm at this hour of the day? Yet some one was surely moving along on the other side of the brook.

Lena did not stir. She peered vainly through the screening willow branches. Some one was coming across by the willow bridge. The branches parted—a face appeared!

The old-maidenly bonnet was hanging by the strings, the neat-brushed hair had come loose into naughty little girlish curls, the eyes were shining, the cheeks were as red as Lena's; at that instant, framed in the green willows, she looked almost as young.

"Cousin Hannah!" cried Lena.

"Lena!" gasped Hannah.

Then they broke into a laughter so merry, so prolonged, that the blackbirds flew off in a protesting flock. The girls had not known that they could laugh like that. They laughed until it seemed that they could never speak again; but laughing did more than words could have done, and explained much they had never understood before. At last Lena spoke:

"Cousin Hannah, the next time we take a holiday, let's take it together, and—and—let's not be Briarley's any more."—Youth's Companion.

Wanted, a Married Machinist.

A badly disappointed tenderfoot found his way to a ranch in the Sulphur Springs Valley, Arizona, last August. He had gone to El Paso from Pennsylvania a few months before, and after spending a few weeks vainly searching for employment, he placed an advertisement in one of the local dailies. Among the replies received was one from the proprietor of a ranch. The offer appealed to him because it semeed to offer more fresh air than any of the others, and his Eastern doctor had advised him to take all the fresh air he could, and that a little "roughing it" would do him no harm. So he reported at Jim Musgrove's ranch, stating that he was the machinist who had advertised for a position.

"Well, stranger," said Jim, "we need a machinist here most as bad as we need water, and I reckoned you was the man we're wanting."

The machinist was all smiles. He picked up his kit of tools and followed as the ranchman led the way back of the four-room adobe house and pointed out what looked like a covered washtub with a few gears attached and a side handle.

"There you are," said Jim, pointing to the tub. "There's your machine. Git to work. Twenty-five a month and your board if you can make that thing wash the clothes of this yere ranch. If you're any kind of a machinist here's a chance to make good."

"A machinist," said the disappointed and crestfallen applicant, "repairs machines. It isn't his business to furnish the power and keep them running. You ought to hire a washerwoman to run the machine and hire me for the repairs."

"Say, son," burst in Jim. "Twenty-nine men your size couldn't make the repairs to fences and stock with one single woman flirting round this 'dobe. A machinist who can't run a machine is the same as a horse I once saw to the circus. He had six legs, but he couldn't even trot, 'cause he had to carry two of 'em in a sling when he walked. As near as I can see from your tell, what I want is a machinist whose wife takes in washing."—Youth's Companion.

The following telephone conversation is reported to have been heard between a certain well-known young financier and a society woman whose functions are considered somewhat boring:

"Is this Mr. ——?"

"Yes."

"This is Mrs. ——. Won't you give us the pleasure of your company at dinner on Monday?"

"I'm so sorry, Mrs. ——, but I have an engagement for Monday."

"Can you come Tuesday, then?"

"Why, it is most unfortunate, but I have a partial engagement for Tuesday, also."

"Well, how about Wednesday?"

"Oh, hang it! I'll come Monday!"—Harper's Weekly.

The Heroism of Common L

By the Rev. A. P. Fitch.

HEROISM is determined by motive. Not what you do, but w do it, makes your life petty or sublime. The thing is but the spirit giveth life or bringeth death. The conte has nothing to do with the value of life—the intentions are all.

The popular conception of heroism is well enough up in calling it the martial attitude of souls. It is the thing that makes the Kaiser a hero in the eyes of the German army makes the newsboy revere the pugilist. But we all feel instinctively is not real heroism. Its most splendid exponent is the bulldog.

Delight in the difficult, indifference to pain and death, while they were elements of heroism, are not its salient or distinctive qualit they are to be found in many unheroic deeds.

There is physical bravery, a cool mind and a determined will in who robs my house at dead of night. There is acceptance of pain and lenge to death in the man who engages his hotel room, stuffs the key lies down to sleep with the gas turned full on. But he is not a hero an arrant coward.

It is not the fact of valor, but the reason of valor, which determin heroic deed.

When the seamstress of Hester street, in dark, obscure and pois erty, works like a dog and lives like a slave, in dull and wearing toil, refusing the wages of sin that she may still keep her woman isn't the courage, the patience, the steadfastness, the industry which a heroine; it is the reason for these things that makes her divine.

I heard a story the other day of as fine a heroine as an early Ch martyr. She was a fragile girl in a New York tenement, left alone w two younger brothers to care for and support them. She lay in mute helplessness upon her bed, and stretched upon the let were her twisted, broken, old woman's hands. He found her in tress of mind.

"Teacher," she said, "I am afraid to die. I have not been to church, couldn't go to Sunday school. I just was too tired to pray, and I'm God won't know me when I come to heaven."

Causes Accounting For Steel Displacing Iro

A few years later, the second Lucy fu was built. Both have been constantly improved up to the present time, the result of greatly reducing labor and increasing the output by me mechanical and metallurgical devices.

The puddler himself has been able change his former laborious task for the less strenuous steel processes.

Another important reason for the change to steel was the compa excellence of the product and its adaptability to railway and engineering struction. In fact, our modern railway development and fire-proof bu construction would be impossible without Bessemer and open-hearth stee

A HUNDRED KILLED

And Much Damage Done by an Awful Tornado at Snyder, Oklahoma.

A LARGE NUMBER INJURED.

Communication Established With Snyder Relief and Provisions Sent to the Town.

Snyder, Okla.—At midnight Thursday night all estimates of the number of persons killed by last night's tornado exceed 100, and 150 persons were injured. Ninety-five persons are known to be dead, several are missing, and a number of the injured are in a critical condition. The wounded found shelter in an improvised hospital until tonight, when they were taken to hospitals in Guthrie and Oklahoma City. The financial loss is estimated at $350,000.

Vernon, Tex.—The first train from Snyder since the tornado struck that town Wednesday night arrived here at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Passengers of this train gave a story of fearful loss of life and property destruction.

Snyder is about a mile square. The tornado struck the town just a little west of the southwest corner of the township. Its pathway was about a half mile wide, and in this trip there is not a vestige of anything left, and in places the ground is literally ploughed up. To the west of the pathway everything is devastated with the exception of one or two stone stores. The course of the tornado was due northeast.

Snyder is crossed by two tracks of the Frisco system, one traverses the town just a little north of its center, and runs east and west. The other runs north and south, about half way between the center of the town and the eastern edge. Not a thing remains north and west of the junction of these tracks, except the depot building and a water tank, both twisted.

The tornado struck the town at 7:40 p. m. Just preceding it there was a heavy rainstorm, accompanied by vivid flashes of lightning and deafening thunder. Nearly all of the homes in Snyder had storm cellars, and during this heavy downpour many sought shelter in these cellars.

Then there was a let-up of perhaps ten minutes, during which time many thinking that the storm had broken, left their places of refuge and returned to their houses. Then, with a deafening rumbling noise, the funnel-shaped cloud dipped to the earth, apparently two miles from the town, and with appalling velocity crashed through the town. Many were caught between their houses and the storm cellars and killed outright. Others remained in their houses and perished when the houses were demolished.

The first intimation the outside world had of the cyclone was at 7:40 o'clock when the long distance operator at Hobart heard the long distance operator in the Snyder exchange scream. The cause of this scream was the destruction of the Snyder telephone building, which was a long narrow wood building, and which was split half in two by the wind, the break occurring where the switchboard was fastened to the wall. As the wind whipped off the front end of this building, a heavy piece of wood was driven into the side of the head of the manager, who was sitting at his desk. The operator taking in the situation, gave a scream which was heard over the telephone at Hobart. A young man who was in the exchange at the time grabbed the operator and fairly slung her in a glass booth near by and slammed the door. The glass in this booth was not even cracked.

Round House Demolished.

The immense solid stone Frisco round house here was completely demolished, and not a stone that was in the structure has yet been located. Not an engine was in the round house at the time. A box car loaded with sacks of cement was scattered over two miles. Another box car loaded with broom straw, that was standing by the car of cement, was overturned, but the broom straw was not disturbed by the wind.

The two cotton gins of the town were completely demolished. One of the boilers standing had all the steam-fittings blown off and the iron door to this boiler was found two miles to the northeast. As an instance of the suction force of the wind, a substantial stone building in the southwest portion of the place, just east of where the cyclone first struck the town, had its entire front literally pulled out. This building is fully twenty yards from the path of the tornado. It was a gambling hall and all the paraphernalia is in plain view.

Guthrie, Okla.—The latest official reports from the tornado-stricken town of Snyder, Okla., place the list of dead at ninety-five. Other rumors advance this figure to one hundred. It is highly probable that the death list when accurately tabulated will reach 130.

Of those injured, there are various reports, reaching from 100 to 150.

Fire Broke Out.

To add to the general confusion and distress after the tornado had passed, fire broke out and burned up all that remained of the buildings in the business blocks. So far it has not been possible to find out whether or not any bodies were cremated, but it is highly probable that such was the case.

Horses Killed.

About seventy-five head of horses and cattle were killed on the town site. A committee was set to work to remove carcasses.

Blown Sixty Miles.

Fort Cobb, Okla.—Many law books, letters, photographs, bank books and papers were picked up here, having been blown here from Snyder, a distance of sixty miles. The storm did little damage here.

Woman Arrested.

Opelika, Ala.—Several days ago a young white woman, by the name of Minnie Hopkins, who lives near Grantville, Ga., came to Opelika with a small child, which she abandoned here and went to Columbus, Ga. Saturday she was arrested there and Deputy Sheriff Moon went over and brought her back. She was accompanied by a woman from Columbus, who adopted the child and carried it there.

A Fearful Explosion.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Twenty persons are known to be dead and more than 100 others were injured in the railroad wreck and dynamite explosion which occurred early Thursday morning on the Pennsylvania railroad in the southern part of the city. That no more persons were killed is considered remarkable by the Pennsylvania officials, as a full box car of dynamite exploded, directly at the middle of the heavy express train.

A scene of horror followed the explosion of the dynamite. The passenger cars and some of the freight cars instantly took fire. As the reverberation of the terrific explosion died away, the agonizing cries of the injured could be heard. Men and women came tumbling and climbing from under the wreckage. No one for the moment seemed to know what to do, and many of the passengers, momentarily seized with terror, ran wildly about the fields on the north side of the railroad or waded into the shallow waters of the river, which parallels the railroad on the south. Realizing their safety and the danger still threatening others, the frightened passengers soon began the rescue of the living. As they approached the wreck another explosion occurred which sent them scurrying away. Fearing that the entire train might be loaded with dynamite, no one dared go near the wreck. Finally the railroad men who knew the contents of the burning freight train led the way and the uninjured passengers followed.

Storm in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Two fatalities, several minor injuries and serious damage throughout the state, resulting from an extraordinary rain and electric storm, accompanied by high winds and hail, are reported from cities throughout Indiana. Ernest Johnson was killed by lightning at Nora, while Edward Martin, a laborer is dead from the same cause at Union City. A number of slight injuries by lightning are reported from various parts of the state. Hail inflicted serious damage upon crops, fruit, greenhouses and residences. One man was knocked unconscious by a hail stone at Logansport.

At Elkhart, Mrs. Elbert R. Burns died of fright during the storm. Telephone and telegraph service is seriously crippled.

Tornado Reaches Missiouri.

Platte City, Mo.—A tornado struck the town of Hampton, eight miles southwest of here, Wednesday night, and several persons were injured, though none were killed. A drug store, a general store and a blacksmith shop were demolished and half a dozen residences were badly damaged.

The public school building at Benten was struck by lightning during a severe rain storm. A number of school children were shocked, but no one was badly hurt. Montevallo, 20 miles southeast of here, sustained much damage from a wind storm. Several residences were destroyed, but no lives were lost.

Lieutenant Ross is Drowned.

Newport News, Va.—First Lieut. Moses R. Moss, of the artillery corps, stationed at Fort Monroe, was drowned in the moat at that post early Sunday. He was riding a bicycle along the cement walk which skirts the moat, when the chain broke, precipitating him into the water. Lieutenant Ross was 25 years of age, a native of Pennsylvania, and a graduate of Washington and Jefferson college. He was with the volunteer army in the war with Spain.

Montgomery, Ala.—William Sample, a young white man employed as a painter by W. F. Brunson in covering the papered roof of the old Louisville and Nashville railroad depot in North Montgomery with rubberine, a slippery paint material, Saturday morning overturned a bucket of the stuff and in stepping in it slipped and fell from the roof to the platform, fracturing his skull, from which injury he died an hour later at St. Margaret's hospital.

THE CHICAGO STRIKE

Among the Teamsters May End. It has Received Three Heavy Blows.

TO HOLD MEETING TO DECIDE.

Meeting of Teamsters' Joint Council To Be Held to Decide About the Strike.

Chicago, Ill.—Three severe blows were dealt to the cause of the striking teamsters Friday night, and as a result the governing body of the organization, the Teamsters' Joint Council, will meet to decide whether or not the strike shall be called off.

The decision to call this meeting of the council followed a two hours' session between the officials of the teamsters' union and the Teamowners' Association. The members of the latter body have all through the present strike been favorable to teamsters rather than to the employers' association. However, the teamowners bluntly informed the teamsters that their cause was lost, and that the best thing they could do was to call off the strike, and do it at once.

Second Blow.

The second blow came also from the Teamowners' association, when the resignation of John C. Driscoll, its secretary, was tendered, and adopted. Secretary Driscoll has been an official of the Teamowners' Association since its inception several years ago, and during the present strike has been a potent factor on the side of the teamsters.

The third blow was adopted at the meeting of the Illinois Manufacturers' association which is made up of business men from all parts of the state.

At a secret meeting held at the Auditorium hotel, the members of the association unanimously decided that they would uphold the cause of the Employers' association, which has been conducting the fight against the striking teamsters.

Negro Attacked.

Walter St. Clair, colored, employed by Armour & Co., at the stock yards, was attacked by a crowd of strike sympathizers at Twenty-seventh and Canal streets. St. Clair was apparently suspected of being a strike breaker, employed by the Peabody Coal Co. He was beaten with clubs, black jacks and other weapons. Two deputy sheriffs rescued him and escorted him to the stables of the Peabody company at Twenty-sixth and Canal streets, where his wounds were dressed. He was sent home in an ambulance.

A total of 1900 wagons were scheduled to be moved Friday by non-union teamsters under police protection. This is the largest number of wagons moved since the teamsters' strike began, the excess over the records of the previous days being 150 wagons. To accomplish the task 2,100 policemen were detailed to guard the wagons and were assisted by an almost equal number of deputy sheriffs.

Children Strike.

Spread of sympathetic strikes among public school children received a new impetus today. Pupils of the Carter H. Harrison school at Twenty-third street and Wentworth avenue went on strike when wagons of the Peabody Coal Co. arrived at the building to deliver coal. The Peabody company is a member of the Employers' association and has been active in delivering with non-union teamsters to firms antagonized by the strikers. Police were still on guard Friday at the Hendricks public school, where a strike similar to that at the Carter Harrison school had not entirely subsided.

Much Trouble.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Within the past forty-eight hours there have been more fatalities in serious accidents and in fights here than ever before in the history of Chattanooga. The city has a bloodier record than any similar time since the close of the civil war. There are now no less than eight persons at Erlanger hospital, one of whom is already dead, while four others are probably fatally injured. Following is the list:

William Meacham, seriously wounded in same fight.

John Sherman, fatally cut while acting as peacemaker between Doc Shelton and James Noodles, who are both seriously cut.

Percy Russell, grazed by train running fifty miles an hour, and one side badly injured; may recover.

Green Riley, half of head crushed in by pile-driver; will die.

Naturally, when jiu jitsu is once common property, the policeman and the soldier and the citizen, too, must become acquainted with its principles, says the Argonaut. The thug and the criminal never hesitate to catch up with what seems of some use to them. It is beyond a doubt that the worst class of offenders against the State's peace have already learned some of the tricks of this new Oriental art.

PROTESTING AGAINST RATE REDUCTION.

Atlanta, Ga.—The recent proposition of J. Pope Brown, chairman of the Georgia railroad commission, to reduce the passenger rate in Georgia from three to two cents per mile was protested against by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Order of Railway Conductors, and unions of the blacksmiths, machinists and telegraphers, boilermakers, railway trainmen, carpenters and joiners, clerks and car men. These organizations employed an attorney especially to represent them, who urged that such a reduction would work against the prosperity of the state and lead to a reduction in the number of railroad employes as well as of their wages. The Travelers' Protective Association also protested that a reduction as proposed would result in fewer trains and poorer service.—Special Dispatch to the New York News Bureau.

Negro is Lynched by Northern Mob.

Cairo, Ill.—Tom Witherspoon, a negro, was taken from officers at Belmont, Mo., fifteen miles below Cairo, Friday evening by a mob of several hundred persons and hanged in the public square to a large swing. Friday morning a negro, said to be Witherspoon, who only recently returned from the penitentiary, went to the home of Fred Hess, three miles below Belmont, and at the point of a rifle demanded $600. Hess, who is a member of the Missouri legislature, told the negro that he did not have that much money in the house. The negro ordered him to go to Belmont and get the money. He compelled Hess to hitch up a horse and buggy, and ordered him to get in with his wife and child.

The negro then saddled another horse, and mounting told Hess to drive toward Belmont, and when near the place the negro forced Mrs. Hess and child to get out of the buggy and enter a deserted shanty. The negro then told Hess to drive to Belmont and to send the money back by a negro preacher inside of an hour or he would kill his wife and child.

Hess hurried to Belmont and got the money and sent it back with a negro preacher. The desperado immediately mounted a horse and rode up the Iron Mountain railroad tracks. A posse was organized at once by Belmont and Columbus citizens, and a small party followed the negro on a switch engine and discovered that he took refuge in the swamps around First Lake. He was captured and taken to Belmont by the officers. A mob of several hundred persons had formed in Belmont, and they immediately took charge of the negro, and despite his begging and pleadings, they rushed him into the public square and secured a rope from a large swing and strung the negro up as the guilty man.

A New Court House.

Prattville, Ala.—The board of revenue has signed contracts with M. T. Leuman & Co., of Louisville, Ky., for the building of the new court house, and with Dobson & Bynum, of Montgomery, Ala., for the jail. It is understood work on each of these buildings will be begun at once. On account of the work necessary on the court house, it is likely the contractors will be one year in building it.

The Planters' Warehouse Company was organized here a few days ago and will erect a warehouse with a capacity of six or eight thousand bales of cotton. It is understood this company will buy and sell cotton and fertilizers and farmers' supplies generally. It will be ready for the fall business.

The Alabama Central railway, between Booth and Autaugaville, in this county, will put on a regular schedule for passengers in about six days. At present only freight trains are being run. When the regular schedule is put on, it is understood the trains will run through to Montgomery.

Paris is Acquitted.

Birmingham, Ala.—Coroner W. D. Paris has been acquitted on a charge of embezzlement brought by Joseph Poggiana, one of the administrators of an Italian who met his death in the Virginia mine in the awful explosion of February 20.

A warrant was sworn out against the coroner charging him with embezzling $74 which amount was taken from the pockets of one of the victims of the mine explosion. The coroner denied the allegation, claiming that no claim had been made officially for the money.

It is not creditable to Chilton county that when in the interests of expediting business, Judge and jury, lawyers and witnesses, are called together in the court house after the sun has set, that the business of the court has to be carried on in semi-darkness. Justice loves light, and a few lamps in Chilton county's court house is urgently needed.

CIRCUIT COURT.

After a lapse of eighteen months the Spring Term of Circuit Court was commenced at Clanton promptly at 10 o'clock Monday morning. A heavy rain was falling but the court room was well filled when the Grand Jury was called.

Judge S. L. Brewer, who for many years filled the office of Circuit Solicitor, took his seat for the first time here on the bench and at once proceeded to business.

J. W. Littlejohn was sworn in as Foreman of the Grand Jury, the oath was administered to the other members of the body, and at 10:20 o'clock Judge Brewer began his charge to the Jury, speaking in a clear and well modulated tone, and every word of his address could be distinctly heard in the furtherest parts of the court room. He said:

Gentlemen of the Grand Jury: This term of your Circuit Court has been convened under extraordinary circumstances, the like of which Chilton has never experienced before. There is much for you to do, and it is especially important this term that you be earnest, diligent and faithful in the discharge of your duties. If you are the kind of men the law contemplates you should be, I feel sure that you will faithfully discharge your duty. At this time enlarged authority is given you which calls for the very best of your hearts and minds that you possess.

If you discharge these duties as you should, you confer a blessing upon your county; if you fail you cast a stigma upon your county and upon your manhood. You stand as watchmen, and will investigate and report upon what comes within your vision. The lives of the people and their pursuit of happiness depends upon the observance of the law. That is true in private life; much more is it true when men are called upon by their country in an official capacity, as in the case of the Grand Jury.

On account of the thoughtlessness of men, and the weakness of human nature, the law requires you to take an oath for the faithful performance of the duties required of you. The law requires that you shall keep secret the information that comes before you. Witnesses must not impart what they may learn in attending upon you. A great many men get wrong along this line sometimes.

Gentlemen of the Grand Jury, I charge you this: If you find men coming to you, desirous of prosecuting some neighbor for some little, frivolous offense, be sure you find out that the prosecution is not dictated by malice, and if it is, turn away the informer without gratifying him by returning an indictment. In such cases it is as much your duty not to indict as it is to find a true bill when the evidence justifies it.

I am sorry to say that there are men who wish to dictate to the Grand Jury—to tell you what to do in certain cases. If such a man comes to you, if he seeks to turn you aside from your duty, he is [illegible] if you listen to him. Act upon your own responsibility. You are responsible for the manner in which you keep your faith to your country. Every principle of right and justice demands that you do your duty free from all influences and malice. As men appreciating the importance of your duty I believe you will faithfully do it

Do your duty without fear—physical fear, the law says you must overcome it; moral fear, you shall put that aside. Affection is a noble quality of mind and heart, but the law does not recognize it in the discharge of duty. Do your duty, regardless of the affection you have for your friend and neighbor. You must meet every test and obligation. No man before me will be guided by reward, whether in dollars and cents or otherwise—that would be horrible. To accept a trust from his country and then sell out, that would be horrible, and make him a traitor of the deepest dye. I deem it not necessary to dwell upon this. I have no suspicion that any member of this Jury would go to such depths of infamy.

The Judge then explained the difference between felonies and misdemeanors, called the attention of the Jury to the matter of carrying concealed weapons, unlawful combinations, buying certificates. violations of election law and examining books of county officers

Public roads system, he said, is not what it ought to be, but if we have a faithful discharge of duty under the law we would have greatly improved public roads.

Poor of the county Look into this matter carefully, and see that they are kindly cared for.

Public buildings. See that they are in proper repair and fitted in every way for the purposes they are used. See that your jail is safe and cleanly, and I would suggest that your Foreman read the report on the construction of jails, and make such recommendations as the law requires you to make. Then, if these recommendations are good, and your County Commissioners refuse to act upon them they are liable to indictment.

It would be a good idea to consider the enlargement of fhe court house, in cases of great interest it is doubtful if it is large enough to accomodate the people, it is well filled now and I can see several standing up.

Fix such hours as will give proper time to your duties, and in conclusion I will say I have confidence you appreciate your duties and will give to them the very best you can. One other matter, look well into the workings of the prohibition law.

J. L. Williams was sworn in as Bailiff and the Jury retired to their room.

Judge Brewer occupied exactly 45 minutes in his address which was listened to with rapt attention.

THE FLETCHER CASE.

THE SPIRIT OF SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK.

The Sunday school is organically, inherently, a part of the church—bone of its bone, life of its life.

The present form of Sunday school work dates from the latter part of the 18th century, but this system is merely the outward expression, resultant of this age of organized work, of an inward impelling force—a human need and desire of the knowledge of God which is well nigh as old as the race itself. Limplified, stripped of modern form and custom, reduced to basic principles, the Sunday school work is teaching children the history of God's dealing with His people and so bring them into a realization of His love and mercy that they may regain somewhat of that likeness to Him that was lost when the curse of sin marred the image. This then is the spirit that moves the Sunday school workers of this day. But this spirit, this germ of life that is the motive power of our work, existed long before Robert Raikes gathered the ignorant, unrestrained, wretched little factory children, in that old English town, into the first established Sunday school. It existed long before the ceremonious catechetical system of the 4th and 5th centuries; long before Christ's admonition to Peter to "Feed my lambs;" long before that beautiful scene by the wayside, when Christ, in sight of the blue line of hills that girt Jerusalem, with the shadow of the cross, already athwart His pathway stopped to speak comfort to those mothers who, by faith seeing the halo of Divinity circling His brow, pressed around Him seeking a blessing for their little ones. Those beautiful, tender words, "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for such is the kingdom or heaven," have ever been a brace and a mainstay to Sunday school workers. This spirit existed even before Moses wrote the "Book of the Law" and enshrined in the Ark of the Covenant Long before all this, when the church of God was a hastily constructed altar of rough stone, when the service was burning the flesh of animals, the children inquired what these things might mean, and were told of God the Father, the ruler of the universe and of the Messiah who would come some day to save the people from their sins.

So, whether this spirit finds developement in the consecrated teaching of our own day, whether it be the fanatical preaching of the zealots of medieval times that ended in the sorrow of the children's crusade, whether it be the Hebrew mother explaining to her children that the bread is sent from heaven, whether it be Abraham relating to his son God's promire that their seed should be a great nation, whatever the time or condition, wherever children have been taught of God, there abided the same spirit that actuates all this modern movement, the same spirit that has grown slowly into the strength and power of the International Sunday school Association.

Does Your Heart Beat

Yes. 100,000 times each day. Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

One frequent cause of bad blood is a sluggish liver. This produces constipation. Poisonous substances are then absorbed into the blood, instead of being removed from the body daily as nature intended. Keep the bowels open with Ayer's Pills, liver pills. All vegetable.

Why Suffer From Rheumatism?

Why suffer from rheumatism when one application of Chamberlain's Pain Balm will relieve the pain? The quick relief which this liniment affords makes rest and sleep possible, and that alone is worth many times its cost. Many who have used it hoping only for a short relief from suffering have been happily surprised to find that after awhile the relief became permanent. Mrs. V. H. Leggett, of Yum Yum, Tennessee, U. S. A., writes: "I am a great sufferer from rheumatism, all over from head to foot, and Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that will relieve the pain." For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

Bethsalem.

It is with great sympathy and for some special purpose that the Holy Father hath given our old fathers and mothers, together with the youthful characters who are as gay as the rose of spring, to meet each Sabbath morn as a Sunday school to discuss questions that are asked in regard to our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, as the Lord gave His life for us we should give our best time in thanks to Him. If we all should be out of Sunday school we would be as lost sheep of the forest wandering to and fro into strange lands as in indecent company. There will be services at this place on the third Sunday and Saturday before in this month. Everybody come.

Sunday School Girl.

Fourteenth Century Life.

In the fourteenth century people lived in mud huts, with a rough door and no chimney. It was not till a century later that the erection of a chimney was considered more than an indulgence in luxury, a fire commonly being built against the mud plastered wall of the hut and the smoke escaping through the roof. All furniture was of wood. Most persons slept on straw pallets, with a log of wood for a pillow. Even the nobility had no glass in the windows during this time. Cleanliness was not a characteristic of the people, and Thomas a'Becket was considered more than necessarily nice because he had the floor of his house strewn with fresh straw each day.

THE COTTON SITUATION.

Editor Banner—A few days since Mr. J. A. Johnson, of Stanton, was in this office (The State Auditor's) and incidentally we drifted into a discussion of the present movement to organize the farmers, which resulted in a request from him that I should write an article on the subject for your paper.

I wish to state in the outset that I do not expect this article to effect the acreage or the use of fertilizers this year as the planting season is about passed, but to refute some of the statements made by the enemies of the farmer and to encourage the farmer to think these questions out for himself.

I was brought up on the farm, and by the death of my father was thrown on my own resources early in life, and have had actual experience ranging from the "trash gang" up, therefore I am in the deepest sympathy with every movement for the betterment of the farmer.

Rarely a day passes that I do not read in the papers statements, or hear remarks which are intended to discourage any organized effort on the part of the farmers to better their condition. Inasmuch as the prosperity of every other business is dependent to some extent on the success of the farmer I cannot understand what good any one can hope to accomplish by these remarks.

The statements that there has been no reduction of acreage in cotton and of the use of fertilizers can be but guesswork. If we positively knew that there had been no reduction giving publicity to this can in no way benefit the farmer. I verily believe that but for this thing cotton would be selling today for ten cents.

Many are saying that the farmers cannot be organized. That they will make promises to reduce the acreage in cotton and the use of fertilizers and will not keep their promises. I do not believe this is true with a majority of them. Every man has a motive for what he does What motive prompts the farmer to plant a full crop of cotton? There is but one. To make more money. Suppose you show him that he can make more money by planting less cotton, will not the same motive prompt him to do it? To illustrate: The farmer plants the full amount of cotton as usual, say a 24 acre crop. Estimating that it will make ½ bale to the acre we have 12 bales 500 pounds each, 6000 pounds at 7c $420. He reduces the acreage 25 per cent and plants 18 acres, 9 bales, 4500 pounds at 10c $450. Gain, $30. He plants the other 6 acres in corn and makes 15 bushels per acre, 90 bushels worth in the crib, $90. Total gain, $120. He has another gain in that it costs less to make and gather corn than it does cotton. In this proposition there is but one thing to consider. Will a reduction of 25 per cent cause cotton to bring 10c? It has been shown that the world requires 10 or 11 million bales of cotton. If the farmers will make only that much they can name the price for it. If only one man reduces his acreage and all others plant a full crop it will still be to his advantage to reduce. Because it costs about 7c to make cotton on the uplands. If another large crop is made it will sell at about 5c, a loss of 2c per pound. The man who reduces will save a loss on 1500 pounds at 2c, $30, and has on hand his 90 bushels of corn, while all the others will have to buy their corn with cotton which they have made at a loss of 2c per pound.

There are many other ways the farmers will be benefitted by organization too numerous to mention. There are many crops that require less work and bring more money than cotton. The question of fertilizers, home-made and commercial; cattle and sheep raising; fruit growing and market gardening; poultry and eggs and good roads can all be discussed in their meetings and much benefit come from it.

I believe that a great crisis hangs over our farmers. I fear that if they let this opportunity pass, and do not use the interest already created to advantage that it will be many years before they will have another such opportunity. They must organize or forever more be the burden-bearers of the whole world. All other callings from the boot-blacks up are organized. The people who make everything the farmers use, eat and wear while living, and the coffins they are buried in when dead are organized and are putting exorbitant prices on all these things. If the farmers do not organize and get the worth of their labor there is no hope for them and only poverty awaits them.

Had I the unanswerable logic of a Henry Clay and the fiery eloquence of a Patrick Henry I would go among the people and use these powers to arouse them to a sense of their opportunity and duty.

Yours truly,

WM. R. SAWYER.

Saved by Dynamite.

Sometimes, a flaming city is saved by dynamiting a space that the fire can't cross. Sometimes, a cough hangs on so long, you feel like nothing but dynamite would cure it. Z. T. Gray, of Calhoun, Ga., writes: "My wife had a very aggrivated cough, which kept her awake nights. Two physicians could not help her; so she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which eased her cough, gave her sleep, and finally cured her." Strictly scientific cure for bronchitis and La Grippe. At Upchurch Drug co., price 50c and $1.00; guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, D. C., May 15, 1905

The announcement from Mississippi that that the Hon. John Sharp Williams, the able and erudite floor leader of the Democracy in the National House of Representatives, would be a candidate for the United States Senate to succeed Senator Hernando D. Money, has been the source of considerable gossip in and around Democratic circles here in Washington, where both men are so well known and so well liked by all who know them. The fact that Mr. Williams has allowed it to be authoritatively announced that he will be a candidate for the Senate is proof positive that Senator Money will not be a candidate to succeed himself. I know positively from Mr. Williams himself that he would not have been a candidate against Senator Money had the latter desired to succeed himself. Senator Money's new term in the Senate has only just begun, on the 4th of March last, and will not end until March 3, 1911, but the people of Mississippi have a way of electing a Senator several years before the term of the sitting Senator has expired, and it is likely that the fight for Senator Money's seat will come in the State primaries during the general election of 1908.

This will give Mr. Williams two more terms in the House, the Fifty-ninth Congress to which he has already been elected and which will end on March 3, 1907, and the Sixtieth Congress which will be elected in 1906 and expire on March 3, 1909. The chances are that this will cause a new alignment of leadership features in the House among the Democrats. There is no man of common sense who believes that Mr. Williams can be defeated for the leadership of the next House, the Fifty-ninth Congress which meets next December; or possibly next October, if the President carries out his intention of calling an extra session. That will make him the leader until March 3, 1907, but in the meantime the battle for the House in 1906 will have been fought and its complexion determined. If that House should be Democratic, and the chances are good that it will be, notwithstanding the overwhelming majority the Republicans have in the next House, and which will be a source of weakness to the Republicans, will Mr. Williams think he is entitled to the Speakership and go after it, regardless of the fact that he is a candidate for the Senate, and that the contest for that seat will be determined before the Congress in which he runs for Speaker is six months old? That is a question many are asking today in view of the situation. If Mr. Williams has the ambition to go to the Senate, will he also have the ambition to be Speaker? While it is true that his term as Speaker will end in 1909, two years before his term as Senator would begin, would it not militate against him in the race for the Speakership?

If the Democrats should win the next House the achievement would be so great that the man who is chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee in that contest would be a most formidable candidate for the Speakership, for he would undoubtedly be a very popular man with all the new and incoming Democratic members. So far there has been only one man suggested for the chairmanship of the next Democratic Congressional committee, so far as I know, and that is the Hon. James M. Griggs, of Georgia, who was the chairman of the committee in 1902, when he won eighteen seats from the redoubtable Babcock, chairman of the Republican committee, and did it without money, which the Republicans had in profusion.

CHAS. A. EDWARDS,

Whittiers of Danvers.

One day a stranger strolled into the old Berry tavern at Danvers. A number of men were seated in the office and were asked by the newcomer, "Will you kindly tell me where I may find the Whittier house?"

A young business man, not a native of the town, to be sure, but who had lived in it a number of years and belonged to New England, spoke up, saying: "You mean Joe Whittier, the contractor? He lives at Danversport."

"No, no; I refer to John G. Whittier."

"John G. Whittier? Never heard of him. The only other Whittier in this town is Clarence Whittier, janitor of the town house. He lives on Essex street."

The stranger became both amused and impatient and said: "I am talking about John G. Whittier, the poet. He's dead, you know. I want to find out where his home was."

"Oh, well," said the young business man, with a sigh of relief at his ability to impart information, "if it's anybody who's dead go right over to Will Crosby, the undertaker, across the street. He'll tell you all about it."—Boston Herald.

The Hope of Misfortune.

Pain is a soul tonic. Sorrow often brings out the best there is in us. Happiness does not develop character. It gives it surface brightness and decks it with prismatic bubbles. It takes the deep reaching arm of misfortune to trouble the depths and bring out the pearls that lie there. The most magnetic faces are lined by thought and noble care. Strong, unselfish love, even if misplaced and unappreciated, ennobles the lover. It is the frivolous, vanity born emotions that fritter away character and make faces insignificant. To fail in high aim after earnest and honest effort is not failure. The gain it brings in strength and discipline will appear in other directions. Misfortune has often in the history of the world been the means of making a poet, orator, philanthropist, scientist or statesman out of a person whose career but for the misfortune or physical disability would have been commonplace and influence limited.—Medical Talk.

The Gloaming.

The "gloaming" is by origin akin to gloom. The root idea is to look covertly from beneath the brows not with full open eyes, and so the gloaming is that time of day when the sun, sinking below the horizon, shines obscurely under the advancing shades of night, as eyes may gleam dimly from lowering brows.

Byron, the poet, wrote, "As gloaming, the Scottish word for twilight, has been recommended by many literary men and particularly by Dr. Moore in his letters to Burns, I have ventured to use it on account of its harmony."

The evening star is called the "gloaming" star in Scotland, and Lowell's "The snow had begun in the gloaming" and Hogg's "'Twixt the gloaming and the mirk, when the kye come hame," are familiar instances of its use.

Rice as a Soporific.

"If people would eat plenty of rice they would not need drugs to make them sleep," said a New York drug clerk, pausing for a moment in putting up a sleeping potion for a woman. "There is much said about rice as a strengthening food, but few Americans know that it has soporific powers. If properly cooked it has. Rice should be washed many times until the water no longer appears milky. It should then be soaked a few hours, salted and boiled rapidly about thirty minutes. When cooked in this way it can be eaten each day with relish, and the person who eats it sleeps well and dreams not at all."

Mental Effort.

"It is stated," we observe to the baldheaded man, "that the hair of mental workers falls out sooner than that of men in other lines of endeavor. Is your profession one of great mental effort?"

"It certainly is," he replied. "I compose the glowing advertisements of hair tonics."—Judge.

Curiosity Satisfied.

Mr. Oldboy (tentatively)—If a man were, say, fifty and the woman of his choice about twenty, do you think that would lead to an unhappy marriage?

Miss Young—I think it would be more likely to lead to a rejected proposal.—

Terrific Race With Death.

"Death was fast approaching," writes Ralph F. Fernandez, of Tampa, Fla., describing his fearful race with death, "as a result of liver trouble and heart disease, which had robbed me of sleep and of all interest in life. I had tried many different doctors and several medicines, but got no benefit, until I began to use Electric Bitters. So wonderful was their effect, that in three days I felt like a new man, and today I am cured of all my troubles." Guaranteed, Upchurch Drug Co; price 50c.

MAY DAY VERY QUIET

In St. Petersburg and the Dreaded Day Passed Off Without Feared Trouble

CONDITIONS ABOUT NORMAL.

Cossacks Quell Disturbances—Workmen Refuse to Risk Lives to Please Revolutionaries.

St. Petersburg.—The widely heralded May Day demonstration in St. Petersburg was a complete fiasco, and reports from Moscow and the provinces indicate that order reigned on Sunday generally throughout the entire extent of Russia. Minor disorders are reported at Reval, Kishineff and one or two other places, but up to midnight no reports of serious tumults or loss of life have been received, and the attempt of the social democrats and social revolutionists to signalize May Day by great anti-government demonstrations, appears to have been a complete failure.

Dispatches from Kazan, Tiflis, Saratoff, Cronstdat, Rostov, Kieff, Vologda, Tomsk and other cities say the workmen observed the day as a holiday; that the shops were closed, and that quiet was not disturbed.

In St. Petersburg the day was passed in almost perfect quiet, and without a drop of blood being shed. The revolutionaries found it impossible to execute the programme of demonstrations and bomb-throwing, which they so widely advertised, the working men declining to sacrifice themselves to advance the propaganda of their self-constituted leaders, and the advertised meetings were attended chiefly spectators. Governor General Trepoff handled the situation firmly, but with a view to avoiding collisions, and made his dispositions skillfully. Squads of Cossacks patrolled the streets, reserves being held out of sight in court yards, and the guard regiments were retained under arms in their barracks, but there was no occasion to call out either.

City Almost Normal.

The correspondent who rode all through the sections of the city and suburbs found the streets perhaps less thronged than usual. More or less tension and agitation were apparent in the industrial quarters among workmen promenading under the guise of Cossacks with whips in their hands, but otherwise the city wore almost a normal appearance. The weather which was cold and raw, perhaps acted as a deterrant of trouble, as Russians dislike physical discomfort.

At the Preobrajensky cemetery, where the principal meeting in honor of the "January martyrs," as the victims of the "Red Sunday" are popularly called, had been advertised, a scanty crowd, largely composed of curiosity seekers, assembled. Cossacks dispersed the crowd, the more aggressive of whom sang the "Marseillaise" as they were crossing the fields. This defiance was met by a charge of Cossacks, who used their whips freely, inflicting many nasty injuries. There was a similar incident on Vassili island, where a dozen students, mainly girls, raised the "Marseillaise" and gathered a crowd.

Cossacks cantered up and down, dispersing the crowd with whips, seeming to take special pleasure in slashing the students with their whips, but the latter apparently were anxious to pose as martyrs, and deliberately provoked attack by singing revolutionary songs. The affair gave rise to rumors that a number of persons had been killed, but in the incident which happened under the eyes of the Associated Press correspondent, sabers were not even drawn, and nobody was seriously hurt.

Tumult in Park.

The day wound up with a tumult in one of the people's parks, where white merry-makers were dancing Russian national dances, agitators scattered proclamations among the crowd, and drove a scanty guard of police into a shallow artificial lake. Cossacks came up at a gallop, wielding their whips, rescued the police and made numerous arrests. It was noticeable that the Cossacks rode at wide intervals, evidently to minimize the effect of bombs should they be thrown.

Governor General Trepoff is exceedingly pleased with the result of his precautions and points out that order was exceptionally well maintained during the day without firing a shot or inflicting a single injury serious enough to warrant surgical or hospital attention. He attributes the success of his measures largely to wholesale arrests of incendiary leaders Saturday and Sunday night. He also praises the working population for its sensible stand.

Peasants Burning Estates.

Peasants in Kherson, Poltava and Bessarabia have burned many estates, and there were no indications that the popular movement had been checked except in the cities, where order was maintained only by strong forces of troops.

Rojestvensky's Fleets Combine.

According to a report from St. Petersburg, Russia, the squadrons of Rojestvensky and Nebogatoff have joined forces north of Saigon.

An Aged Lady Cruelly Choked.

Greensboro, Ala.—Mrs. Emmaline Potter, an aged lady living alone in Greensboro, was cruelly choked and beaten into insensibility by some fiend Friday night. The brute gained an entrance through a door that had been left open by Mrs. Potter for fresh air, her intention being to close it before retiring. Unfortunately she fell asleep before locking the door and was only awakened by some one's fingers closing around her throat. After thus maltreating her and evidently believing her dead the assailant left the house.

Mrs. Potter later on regained consciousness and got up and locked the door. Then the brute came back and attempted to force his way in. Mrs. Potter, too frightened to stay in the house, fled through the back door and taking refuge in an outhouse, remained there the rest of the night. When daylight came she gained courage to crawl back to the house, where she was found by a neighbor who had gone to take her breakfast to her.

His only motive seems to have been revenge, no attempt being made at rape or robbery.

The authorities have their eye on a negro who is strongly suspected and his arrest will probably follow in a few days.

Killing at Dolomite.

Birmingham, Ala.—Wilson Brown, a well known merchant at Dolomite, shot and killed Burt Crow, another white man, about 5 o'clock Saturday evening. Brown, it is said, was standing in the door of his store at Dolomite when he fired the fatal shot. Crow was passing at a distance of about thirty yards. A double barrel shotgun was used, and the gun is said to have been loaded with No. 12 buck shot. The entire load penetrated the side and passed through the body of Crow. Crow lived about thirty minutes.

The shooting is said to be the result of bad feeligs between the two men growing out of some family trouble. It is said that a few days before the men had had some words and threats had been made.

Brown surrendered himself to the authorities.

A Bold Robbery.

Decatur, Ala.—One of the boldest robberies ever enacted in this county took place near Eva, about night, and one of the most prominent farmers of the county lost one hundred dollars in the transaction.

Last night at the country home of Willis Childress, a strange white man, all alone, broke open the rear door of the residence in the absence of Mr. Childress, while his wife and 12-year-old son were in bed asleep, and at the point of a revolver forced them to keep quiet while he carried a trunk from the room to the barn, where he burst open the trunk, taking $100 therefrom.

Shooting Near Brooksville.

Gadsden, Ala.—At Brooksville, Marshall county, a few days ago George King, who lives at Guntersville, met James Hyatt near Brooksville and a shooting match at once commenced in which Hyatt was shot three times. It is not thought that any of the shots will prove fatal. King was considerably carved up by Hyatt with a pocket knife and his wounds may prove fatal.

Shooting in Woods.

Blocton, Ala.—Ben Smith shot Robert Rawlins some time Sunday morning in a quarrel near here. It is reported that several men were in the woods with a keg of beer and were having a game of draw poker. It is stated that Rawlins cut Smith's throat and that Smith shot Rawlins.

It is believed that Rawlins will die. While shooting at Rawlins, Smith shot a man named Edmonds in the leg. Smith is at large.

Killed Herself.

Andalusia, Ala.—News has reached Andalusia of a tragedy at Alberton, a few miles East of Opp, Wednesday afternoon. Miss Gussie Freeman, a very beautiful young lady about 19 years old, committed suicide by shooting herself with a shotgun.

Suicide at the Union Depot.

Birmingham, Ala.—John Bowman, brother of P. G. Bowman, shot himself through the head Saturday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock, using a 38-caliber pistol. Bowman went to the union passenger station and while the crowd was at its height, several trains being about ready to depart from the city, he placed the barrel of the pistol to his forehead and fired. He died within thirty minutes.

Porto Rican Strike Ended.

Washington, D. C.—The strike of the 14,000 agricultural laborers in Porto Rico has ended, according to a cablegram received by President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, from Santiago, Iglesias.

Big Church Income.

The reports of the income of the eight boards of the Presbyterian Church received by the Rev. W. H. Hubbard, at Auburn, N. Y., showed a total for the year of $3,263,735, the largest ever reported.

England Aiding Adjustment.

The British Government, a dispatch from Paris, France, said, has informally been aiding both France and Japan to reach a settlement of the dispute over neutrality.

A TERRIBLE TORNADO

Sweeps Over Kansas, Destroying Many Lives—Injured Many—Town Ruined.

TWENTY-SIX MORE DEAD.

May Go Higher—Country Districts to Hear From—One House Standing in Stricken Section.

Marquette, Kans.—Twenty-six persons are known to have been killed and over forty-four were injured in a tornado, the most disastrous in the history of Central Kansas, which swept over this portion of the state at midnight. One large section of Marquette, where the principal loss of life occurred, was entirely wiped out. Reports from the surrounding country shows that the destruction to life and property was widespread and the list of dead and injured is growing constantly.

A store room belonging to Olaf Olson, a furniture dealer, has been converted into a temporary morgue and at 9:30 o'clock twenty-four bodies had been brought in. Following the storm the utmost confusion prevailed and it will be some time before the actual extent of the storm is known.

State of Panic.

When daylight broke over the town it found the entire population in a state of panic. Business was entirely suspended and everyone who escaped injury turned his attention toward aiding the wounded.

The tornado formed three miles south of Marquette and did not spend its force until it had passed many miles north of the town. In Marquette the residence portion west of the main street suffered the principal damage. The houses in the course of the tornado were all, with two or three exceptions, completely wrecked. In this section there was a number of modern residences of which only one, the home of R. A. Thompson, was left standing.

The Swedish Lutheran and Methodist churches were among the first buildings struck, and they together with the parsonage adjoining the Methodist church, were demolished.

Yesterday afternoon had been hot and oppressive, the atmosphere loaded with electricity. Late in the evening a terrific rain storm broke over the town. The rain continued to fall in torrent until 11:50 o'clock Monday night, when the tornado struck. Within less than five minutes it had wrought its terrible work and passed on. Telegraph and telephone wires were carried down and it was several hours before the outside world could be appraised of the plight of the city.

Clearing the Debris.

It was not until 8 o'clock that physicians and surgeons began arriving from surrounding towns. In the meantime dozens of willing hands set to work to clear away the debris and extricate the dead and injured. The Swedish Lutheran parsonage and several private residences were turned into temporary hospitals, while aid was asked from other towns and physicians were sent from Salina and many nearby places.

Marquette is a town of 1,500 people in McPherson county. It is in the exact center of Kansas and in the richest farming country in the state.

Distinguished Educator Dead.

Auburn, Ala.—Dr. O. D. Smith, professor of mathematics in the Alabama Polytechnic Institute for over twenty years, and one of the best known instructors in Alabama, died here suddenly Sunday.

Farmer Killed by Son-in-Law.

Fort Worth, Tex.—A special from Terrell, I. T., says that in a street duel Sunday between Joe Matthews, a farmer, and Bruce Roberts, Matthews was instantly killed. Matthews had objected to the attention of Roberts to his daughter. Saturday he learned they were married, and meeting them on the public road fired on Roberts, frightening the latter's team, the bride being injured in a runaway.

The father took the daughter to his home Saturday and when the father and his son-in-law met at the livery stable, Matthews fired at once, and Roberts returned the fire, killing Matthews.

Violate Sunday Laws.

THE PULPIT.

AN ELOQUENT SUNDAY SERMON BY THE REV. E. E. NEWBERT.

Subject: Reality in Religion.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The Rev. E. E. Newbert, of this city, thrilled and delighted a large congregation last Sunday with an eloquent sermon, entitled "Reality in Religion." He took for his text: "The hour cometh, when neither in this mountain, nor yet in Jerusalem, shall ye worship the Father. The hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshipers shall worship the Father in spirit and truth." John iv., 21, 23.

These are great words. I do not come, however, to interpret them. I quote the text because of the spirit it breathes. I quote it as a protest against the limitation of worship, as an answer to the creeds of Christendom. I quote it because it denies formal religion, and places emphasis on truth and life. It does us good to come upon a thought like this, maybe half forgotten. And to find it, after having been made to believe in the little words of a sectarian faith, is like coming out of the fog of the lowland to the hills, to find the sky clear and the sun shining. Or it is like following a foul stream to find its source in a mountain spring. Indeed, it is refreshing to throw off our load of belief and fear and doubt, and think for an hour of life as it is. It is inspiring to think of religion as without bounds or name or division, just a splendid ideal of life and a daring thought of the eternities.

In passing, I think of a great picture and its poor copy. I turn from the copy, badly done, to the original. Its setting is the quaint life and quiet scenes of Galilee. At once we think of the night prayer in the hills and the teaching on the mount, the central figure that of a man who speaks to the people of the realities of life. But we must not linger with the picture. It is enough to catch its spirit. Life is swift, and its course is onward. Religion is a present reality. It is everywhere abroad in the life of the modern world. In worship? Yes. In good living? Yes. Hunt for religion in the beliefs of men, and you lose it. Bind it and bound it, and you have only husks. Live it, and you know it for what it is. Go where life goes, go where the great world's work is done, and you will find real religion. Is the church its audible voice? Then it should bear the live coal upon its altars. It should be in love with truth and in touch with life. It should be modern, with a message to modern man. It should lead, command, advance. It should worship the living God, not learn ritual or mumble over relics in the sepulchre of the dead.

So long poorly taught, we can hardly think of religion apart from the church, its rites and dogmas. Baptism, for instance, awaits us at the outer gate. Shall it be the condition of our passing through? Does the kingdom of God wait for baptism? Is the rite a vital part of religion? Men have been baptized; but what of humanity? What of the round world? Are the unbaptized outside the gate? Baptism? Oh, go out some summer morning, and stand uncovered in the fields. Wait reverently for the sunrise. Be tenderly affectioned toward the world. Be thankful for life and not afraid of death. Let nature be to you a sanctuary, the world a holy place. Invite the dew of the morning to wet your head; and in that hour of stillness, reverence and joy, you will receive a baptism, the end of all novitiate and probation.

Or what of the ordination of a minister of religion? Does the candidate stand in the apostolic line? Has he had the hands of a bishop on his head? Has he been consecrated by a rite which separates him from his fellows? Is his office holy? Are such questions of grave importance? Or do they concern anybody in this busy world but the ecclesiastic? Indeed, what is a minister of religion more than a man? Or what can ceremony add to a man? Not by any miracle can a priest be made a man if he be not first a man. Fools and knaves have been ordained to the priesthood, but neither bishop's hands nor the most sacred rite can make a fool learn wisdom, or teach a clown to be serious, or put an honest soul into a knave.

And then there are the apostolic people. These form an exclusive set in the kingdom of God, a sort of chosen people. They have gone through the gate, and have shut the gate behind them. Nothing of ceremonial or belief has been left undone. They have taken out insurance for eternity. But what of humanity? What of the round world? Where stand the majority of men and women? In the winnowing of souls, why so few grains of wheat? As I try to answer, even in part, I think of those who are doing the world's work. I think of the men and women who are fighting the world's battles and winning its victories. I think of the shoulders beneath the ponderous wheel of progress, now rolling on, now down to the hub in the mire. I think of those who are lending a hand in the gigantic world struggle for the supremacy of righteousness. I think of those in the vanguard who light watch-fires on the hills, who are educating, humanizing, liberating. Or I think of the gentle hands, the swift feet, the tender hearts, the angels of mercy and peace, in whom dwell sweetness and light. Who are they? By what name are they called? To what church, if any, do they belong? Idle the question, impossible the answer. Sufficient is it that they establish a Christian civilization. No, not an exclusive set, not a small division of humanity, but these lovers and comrades and workers who walk together, constitute the kingdom of God. If this be not so, woe unto the world, hopeless our human lot!

Humanity has made many experiments, and from failure learned wisdom. All that the ecclesiastic would to-day teach has been tried, and it has failed. At least for 1000 years the religion of dogma and ceremonial ruled the world. These ten centuries are distinguishable by the supremacy of a blind faith. For 1000 years men knelt to the ecclesiastic, and in death turned to him as the arbiter of their eternal destiny. I do not forget that this absolutism of the church forbade progress. I do not forget that it made scholarship a dangerous calling, that it set a price on high intelligence, that it stamped every new thought as heresy, that it burned the thinker and hated the truth. And all this was done in the name of religion. It was done in defense of the faith. It was done for holy church and God. The experiment, however, was a failure. The absolutism of the church was checked. Humanity broke the fetters that bound it to little things, and the awakening, wondering world started for freedom. We boast a modern age, we talk of democracy, we proclaim the rights of men, because, in the bitter conflict, mediaevalism lost. It lost in art; it lost in literature; it lost in science; it lost in politics; it lost in religion. The triumph was not of a party; it was a triumph for humanity. The destiny of the round world was involved. The Old World principle was hurled back; the New World principle appeared. The mediaeval ages ended, the modern began. The worst stage of religious nightmare was lifted from the mind and conscience of mankind. Yet think of what might have been! Think what might have been, had mediaevalism triumphed! Think what might have been, had dogmas silenced reason! Think what might have been, had the absolutism of the church and the Old World principle continued supreme!

Let him who easily forgets think what might have been. Manhood suffrage and manhood religion are not ideals of mediaevalism. They are ideals of freemen, wrung from tyranny and paid for with a great price. Only the man who forgets, values as a small thing our heritage of religious liberty. Only the man who forgets is indifferent to religious progress. Only the man who forgets can receive unmoved the suggestion of a revival of a dogmatic faith and an ecclesiastical absolutism which ever has meant bondage, ignorance, superstition, fear, and stagnation. Only the man who forgets can be misled by the mockery of form or the quackery of belief. Only the man who forgets can deny the logic of the new learning or turn his back on reason and experience, his face toward the past.

As truth is above price, as liberty is worth its cost, as freedom is precious to every man, I urge on this generation that it forget not, neither be indifferent to religious progress. In the name of freedom, in the name of truth, I plead for manhood religion, for the simple truth, for the honest thought, for the supremacy of character. I plead for the modern learning, which emancipates the world, which crowns every man a king and anoints every man a priest. I plead for the modern living, sane and gladsome and wholesome. I plead for the modern age, splendid in achievement, rich in promise. I plead for modern man, who has come so far and done so much. I plead for the modern religious idea whose support is the truth that makes men free.

The Infallible Hands.

A lady, who had been three or four years away from her childhood's home and settled in one of her own, was taken seriously ill. Her mother, with all a mother's solicitude, was anxious to be with her daughter at once, and hastened to her bedside. She found skilful physicians in attendance and a trained nurse in charge; there was really nothing for her to do—nothing that she could be permitted to do. Day after day she made brief, silent visits to the sick room, even her presence could not be allowed long, and went away powerless to aid. The ministering was in wiser, more efficient hands than hers, and she could not be trusted with it—would not have dared to trust herself with it.

"But it seems strange," she said sadly one day, "that even I, her mother, can only stand aside and do nothing. There never before was a time when 'mother' wasn't the one to help and comfort; it seems as if it ought to be so still, and yet I would be afraid to do anything but keep hands off and trust to a knowledge and strength that is greater than my own."

It is the same in many a spiritual crisis through which we see our dear ones pass. We long to shift the burden, to lighten the trials, to bestow the coveted gift; but the Great Physician holds the precious soul in His hands, the hands that will make no mistake, and we can only stand aside and trust Him.

Lent to the Lord.

The Rev. George Gilfillan, the eminent divine, was distinguished for his generosity and largeness of heart. On one occasion he met a member of his church whom he had not seen at worship for a long time. Reminding him of the fact, the minister asked what was wrong.

"I did not like to come in a coat I am ashamed of—it is so bare," answered the man.

The minister instantly divested himself of his own coat, and handed it to his distressed parishioner.

"There, my man, let me see my coat every Sunday until it becomes bare, and then call back."

The worthy divine then returned to his studies in his shirt sleeves; and his wife, observing him, asked what he had done with his coat.

"I have just lent it to the Lord!" was Gilfillan's noble answer.

Instruments of God.

Evan Roberts, the miner of only twenty-six years of age, whom God has been using so wonderfully in what has come to be known as the "Welsh Revival," is a man of great simplicity and modesty. At one large meeting he went out because the expectancy and curiosity had become too great. That meeting proved to be one of the most mightily influential gatherings of any held in the region. When Mr. Roberts left, a young girl rose, and, as if inspired, demanded of the people: "Whom are you after, Evan Roberts, or Jesus Christ?"

Who, after all, is Paul, or Peter, or Apollos, or Augustine, or Luther, or Wesley, or Moody, or Evan Roberts, but a minister by whom men believe?

God's Doing.

It is not by regretting what is irreparable that true work is to be done, but by making the best of what we are. It is not by complaining that we have not the right tools, but by using well the tools we have. What we are, and where we are, is God's providential arrangement—God's doing, though it may be man's misdoing.—F. W. Robertson.

Spiritual Life.

Hush thy complaints. Sweetness and kindness are good when they bear thee home to God. Cruelty and wrong are good when they force thee to the bosom of God. Evil is evil unto him who doeth evil, but evil is good to thee if it unites thee with God the Beautiful.

Eskimo Courtesies.

A Washington woman was chattering to Commander Peary, the Arctic explorer, relative to the Eskimos, and asked if they had a distinct language. Mr. Peary replied in the affirmative, whereupon the butterfly said: "Do give me an idea of how the language sounds. For instance, how would an Eskimo say 'good morning?'" "He wouldn't say it,' gravely responded the explorer. "Dear me!" said the woman. "Are there, then, no social amenities among the Eskimos?" "On the contrary," said Peary, "they are a comparatively polite people; but as in the country where they abide they would have occasion to use the expression only once a year they have no words equivalent to it."

Taylor was remanded to await further action by the grand jury.

WHAT THE COWBOY REALLY DOES OUT WEST

His Presence Ever Required on the Ranch, For There Are Unseen Dangers to Be Guarded Against.

The actual work with the cattle performed by the cowboy might not require over half his time. But slight as were the days of his recreation, his presence was ever required on the ranch, for there was the unseen to be guarded against. Some of his work was done under circumstances requiring unlimited patience, and then again with a rush where all the comforts of life were left behind. In the Cherokee Strip, now part of Oklahoma, I have seen a prairie fire break out from the reflection of the sun on a tin can, throwing its signal column of black smoke into the sky, instantly summoning every man within fifty miles. Or it might occur at night, from different causes, with its brilliant horizon, the flames leaping upward, visible at the distance of twenty miles, while every breeze was saturated with the smell of burning grass. Under such circumstances horseflesh was never spared in reaching the actual scene. The first men to arrive would begin back or counter firing, as it was called, much the same as city firemen blow up blocks in the pathway of a conflagration, taking advantage of every arroyo or dry wash, and with saddle blankets beating out their own fire on the leeward before it could gain headway. If a wide enough belt could be thus burned, in advance of the main conflagration, it might check the fire, or, jumping the emergency guard, break out anew on its course. Within two or three hours after a prairie fire had thus started, there might arrive fifty to 100 men. Being plainsmen as well as cowboys, they knew what to do. Frequently several light cow brutes were killed, beheaded, and split down the spine, leaving only the hide to hold the body together. The carcass of the animal was then turned flesh down, ropes were fastened from a fore and hind foot to pommels of saddles, and, riding astride the burning grass, the body was dragged over the fire, virtually rubbing it out. Other men followed on horseback to beat out any remaining flames and relieve the mounts by pulling on the ropes. This process could only be applied on the flanks of the main conflagration, and on the leeward of all counter firing, as no one dared dispute the sway of the fiery monster, except well in its advance. Such a fire might last three hours or three days, at the termination of which the men would ride for the nearest camp for rest and refreshment. —Andrew Adams, in the Pilgrim.

War and Swindling.

The political evils of war are almost as weighty as the moral. Probably no Government in modern times has been able to carry on a serious contest that has not been attended with extravagance and dishonesty. At any rate, the United States has never been able to do so. From the time that the soldiers suffered needlessly at Valley Forge on account of inefficient supply service and dishonest contractors, down to the purchase of army transports and "embalmed" beef in 1898, profusion and peculation have invariably attended our military operations. This evil, moreover, usually outlasts a war, because loose and irregular methods of conducting public business are not speedily reformed. After the Civil War Washington was still infested by swindling contractors who found not a few choice pickings, and the slimy trail of the corruptionist led up to the doors of Congress and some of the executive departments.—Charles J. Bullock, in the Atlantic.

Criminal Treatment of Pigeons.

Instances are not lacking where pigeons, with all their lightning change developments, have been found too slow for the purposes of the type desired, and the fancier has altered nature, says a writer in Country Life in America. There have been occasions when the beak of the Almond short-faced tumbler and the lower mandible of the Turbit were thumbed back and pulled down to give a diminished beak and the overhang of the brow. The bird is then voiceless and cannot express pain. And Dragons, whose glory is the regular wattling of the beak and the round and even cere of the eye, are sometimes massaged, when the skin sprouts, the budding flesh being worked back into the smooth surface.

Don'ts For Bachelors.

Don't be afraid of a needle; it will not stick you unless you attack the wrong end of it first.

Don't start a piece of sewing with a thread long enough to hang yourself.

Buy a thimble that fits; don't push your needle through with your teeth.

Don't attempt to push a No. 3 needle through a No. 10 hole.

Select the proper size button before you sew it on; don't cut the buttonhole larger with a penknife so as to make it fit the button.

And don't, oh, don't leave the needle in your chair when you are through sewing. You may discover it unexpectedly.—Kansas City Star.

Fixing Railroad Rates.

Making railroad rates is like playing a game of checkers or chess. Communities to be benefited, producers, manufacturers or shippers to be aided represent the pieces used. Every possible move is studied for its effect on the general result by skilled traffic managers. A false move in the making of freight rates may mean the ruin of a city, of a great manufacturing interest, of an agricultural community. Railroads strive to build up all these so that each may have an equal chance in the sharp competition of business. So sensitive to this rivalry are the railroads that in order to build up business along their lines they frequently allow the shipper to practically dictate rates. Rate making has been a matter of development; of mutual concessions for mutual benefit. That is why the railroads of the United States have voluntarily made freight rates so much lower in this country than they are on the government-owned and operated railways of Europe and Australia that they are now the lowest transportation rates in the world.

Sores on Face and Back—Tried Many Doctors Without Success—Gives Thanks to Cuticura.

Captain W. S. Graham, 1321 Eoff St., Wheeling, W. Va., writing under date of June 14, '04, says: "I am so grateful I want to thank God that a friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment to me. I suffered for a long time with sores on my face and back. Some doctors said I had blood poison, and others that I had barbers' itch. None of them did me any good, but they all took my money. My friends tell me my skin now looks as clear as a baby's, and I tell them all that Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment did it."

Body Guards of Rulers.

A German periodical has printed pictures and descriptions of the picturesque body guards of the rulers of the modern world, including the Indian body guard of the King of England, and Swiss guard of the pope and many others. It remarks of the United States secret service that no king can be more carefully protected than is President Roosevelt, even though his body guard is not clad in bright and easily recognized uniforms.

QUICK RESULTS.

W. J. Hill, of Concord, N. C., Justice of the Peace, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills proved a very efficient remedy in my case. I used them for disordered kidneys and backache, from which I had experienced a great deal of trouble and pain. The kidney secretions were very irregular, dark colored and full of sediment. The Pills cleared it all up and I have not had an ache in my back since taking the last dose. My health generally is improved a great deal."

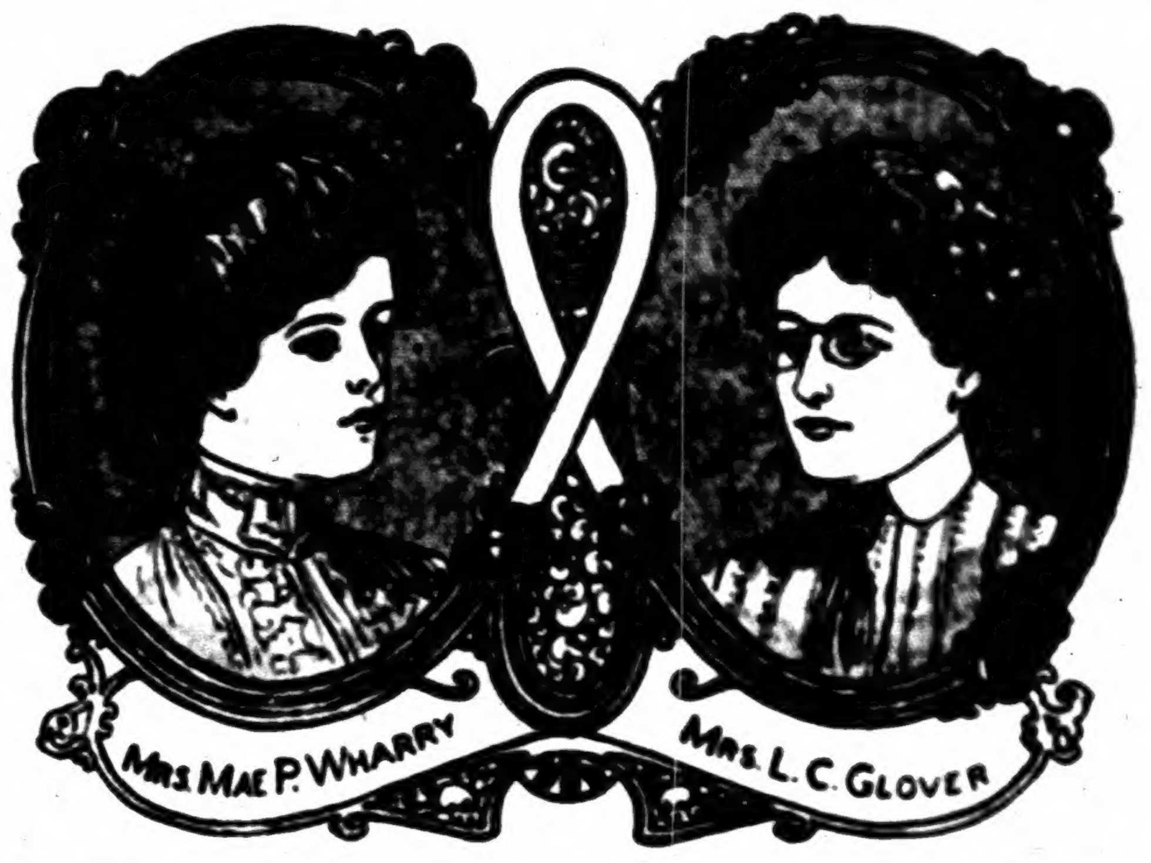
MOTHERHOOD

Actual Sterility in Women Is Very Rare—Healthy Mothers and Children Make Happy Homes.



Many women long for a child to bless their homes, but because of some debility or displacement of the female organs they are barren.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound more successfully than by any other medicine, because it gives tone and strength to the entire female organism, curing all displacements, ulceration and inflammation.

A woman who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution. Is not that an incentive to prepare for a healthy maternity?

If expectant mothers would fortify themselves with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for thirty years has sustained thousands of women in this condition, there would be a great decrease in miscarriages, in suffering, and in disappointments at birth.

The following letters to Mrs. Pinkham demonstrate the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in such cases.

Mrs. L. C. Glover, Vice-President of Milwaukee Business Woman's Association, of 614 Grove Street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I was married for several years and no children blessed our home. The doctor said I had a complication of female troubles and I could not have any children unless I could be cured. For months I took his medicines, trying in vain for a cure, but at last my husband became disgusted and suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; this I did, and I improved steadily in health, and in less than two years a beautiful child came to bless our home. Now we have something to live for, and all the credit is due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. Mae P. Wharry, Secretary of the North Shore Oratorical Society, The Norman, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I was married for five years and gave birth to two premature children. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me, and I am so glad I took it, for it changed me from a weak, nervous woman to a strong, happy and healthy one within seven months. Within two years a lovely little girl was born, which is the pride and joy of our household. Every day I bless Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for the light, health and happiness it brought to our home."

If any woman thinks she is sterile, or has doubts about her ability to carry a child to a mature birth let her write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., whose advice is free to all expectant or would-be mothers. She has helped thousands of women through this anxious period.

Women suffering with irregular or painful menstruation, leucorrhœa, displacement, ulceration or inflammation of the womb, that bearing down feeling or ovarian trouble, backache, bloating or nervous prostration, should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for the greatest number of actual cures of woman's ills, and accept no substitute.

Many Women Have Been Benefited by Mrs. Pinkham's Advice and Medicine.

d luck to General Green.

"I have never seen the grass so k before," is what everyone is ing, and we all know that what rybody says must be true. It's pitched battle the farmers are hting, and it takes every hand, d all the time they can put to it, down the foe. And in spite of , they say in some places it ans ruin to the crop; General en will get the best of them. l. Knox says that 'If that man benefactor to the human race o makes two blades of grass to w where only one grew before,' at can be said of the present ation where a hundred blades growing where none grew ore, and what is more, none is nted."

And here we are, with grass wing all around us, all obliged come to court. It is hard on our d farmers to have to leave their ps at this season to get on as t they can, but the law must be yed, and at the call of duty ors and witnesses, with a sigh, ve wives and children to attend home affairs, while, like good izens, they attend to the public al.

Judge Tipton Mullins presided Circuit Court at a case on Mon- ; temporarily, it is true, but his nds hope to see him occupy a ilar position permanently some these days. It was a pleasing t to Chilton citizens to see a n born and bred in Chilton nty occupying this lofty position th dignity and a full conception the duty required of him. All nowledge that he acquitted self in a manner creditable alike himself and the county. In this e (The State vs. George Hilson. rying concealed pistol) it was essary for Judge Brewer to ate the bench, as the indictment s found at the time he was cuit Solicitor, and under the , in such emergencies, the Judge y appoint an attorney to act as porary judge, provided the endant's attorney agrees. Judge llins carefully followed the esses, and at the close of the charged the jury as to the of law and the evidence in learned and impartial manner isfactory to both sides. ADVICE TO GIRLS.

Stanton, May 16, 1905

Editor Banner—It seems that the people are more interested in the welfare of the boys than of the girls from the good advice they have been giving them through your paper. Perhaps they think they need more, but as I am a girl, I see very plainly where the girls need a great deal, so I shall give them a short sketch of my limited ideas. Girls, when you are about fifteen, just at the right age to accomplish more than ever again, don't lay your books aside and study the boys, for they only laugh at those who study them most and have less respect for you than if you scarcely respected them. Don't think that your parents know less than anybody else, for they are your best friends and wisest counsellors. Don't think that old people are too old and insulting for you to respect and assist, for their race is nearly run. You should be, as ladies, ever ready to minister to their welfare and happiness. They have struggled under many a hard fought battle for your sake, then how can you disrespect the old and again call yourself a lady? Don't think that you look and act better and know more than any of your companions who strive to do right, for a fool is wise in his own eyes.

Don't be haughty and put on airs with insolent pride of station. Don't be proud and turn up your nose at poorer people in plainer clothes; but learn, for the sake of your soul's repose, that all proud flesh wherever it grows, is subject to mortification. The greatest people in the world are the most plain and respectful, for it helps to make them great. So if you desire to be truly great and honored by both old and young you should be truly helpful and courteous, you should determine to do something for the honor and elevation of your sex. Your powers of mind and body should be applied to a good end, you should resolve to help, with the weight of your encouragement and counsel, your sisters who are striving nobly to be useful, to remove as far as possible the obstacles in their way. You should call to your aid all the forces of character you can command to enable you to persist in being a woman of the true stamp. Girls, our influence is the chief anchor of society, and this influence is purifying the world as we purify ourselves. The work we are accomplishing will last forever. No costly marble can build a more enduring monument to our memory than we are laying day by day, so let us not yield to the way of fashion and folly; let us love truth and virtue, and to the close of our lives we shall retain those feelings which now make life appear a garden of sweets, ever fresh and green.

Yours very earnestly,
Lottie Johnson.

Asher, Okla., May 12, 1905

Editor Banner—As it is a wet, rainy day, I will give a description of this country. We have had plenty of rain this spring, but have had no floods or gully washers as we usually have in the spring. Some of the farmers here seem to be behind with their work as they are breaking land and planting cotton yet; it will be planted here until up in June. It is claimed the cotton acreage is considerably reduced here. This (Pott county) is the banner Irish potato county of Oklahoma, as there are thousands of bushels raised here and shipped every. The prospect for potatoes is good, I never saw them look better. Land is high in this country, it ranges from $20 to $100 per acre.

Mr. Gulledge of Verbena gives the farmers good advice, he advocates raising lots of forage. I believe alfalfa would do well there.

I will give a description of a trip to Mexico. I left here the middle of January, when the whole face of the country was covered with snow and ice. I got to San Antonio the next day, Sunday morning, spent the day there. I was just cold enough to wear an overcoat. San Antonio is a beautiful city. We left there after midnight, got to Laredo next morning and to Monterey that evening. It is also a nice old city, with street cars pulled by mules. We left there next morning and went to the Chamal valley. It is a very fertile valley, situated about 90 miles northwest of Tampico. All vegetation there was as green as spring of the year, and all tropical fruits do well there, and honey, no end to it. The Americans there seemed well satisfied. I went to Tampico, it was warm there. It is a fine country to raise tropical fruits and all kinds of vegetables and sugar cane. The land west of Tampico on the river is very fertile and cattle stay fat the year round without feed. Two young men went from Florida to Tampico; they are raising tomatoes and are making money out of them. The tomato vines bear fruit two years and then are plowed under and planted again. Tampico is a good place to ship from to all parts of the country, as the largest ships go there. The northern part of Mexico and the southern part of Texas is a barren country. Most of the land in Texas looked thin to me. I will close with best wishes to the Banner. Respectfully,

R. J. Walker.

The health of our community is good at present. Farmers are having a tough fight with the grass, and it is hard to conquer, but we will press the battle on if the good Lord is willing.

We are glad to welcome Marion and Willie Mims in our community again after some months absence.

The farmers have had several beautiful days to battle with the grass, and they have not failed to make good use of them.

I agree with "Poster" on the cotton situation, but can't see why he is in favor of all jumping on me because I am on the stock law side. I would like to know how many more favor the proposition, I would like also to know if there are any who oppose all jumping on one and would be in favor of pulling some off in case all jumped on one. I like to talk about stock law or any other good thing.

Yours for stock law,

Mr. C. B. Wainright of Lemon City, Fla., has written the manufacturers that much better results are obtained from the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in cases of pains in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus by taking it in water as hot as can be drunk. That when taken in this way the effect is double in rapidity. "It seems to get at the right spot instantly," he says. For For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

THE BANNER.

CLANTON, ALA.

The British war department is alarmed at the horse outlook. The development of the auto is diminishing the horse-breeding business, the class of horses demanded for war purposes is deteriorating, and foreign purchasers are draining the available supply.

The farmer does not know his power and seems slow to recognize his importance, declares Up-to-Date Farming. These will both dawn upon him one of these days—in fact, he has recognized them already, and then he will take his proper position among the people of the world—will come to the front.

Human nature is much like it was centuries ago, when the poet wrote of the very rich of the Augustan era of Rome: "The covetous man is always in want." He is in want, he has the longing of the beggar, though he is the possessor of tens of millions. And thus did Horace, ignorant perhaps of the Sermon on the Mount, picture in satire a trust magnate of the American republic of our day, relates the Washington Post. Solomon would have added some of our trusts to the things that "say not it is enough," if they had existed in his day.

An Austrian statistician publishes the results of curious examinations he has made as to the frequency of crime on the several days of the week. His investigations extended over several years and several provinces of the Austrian Empire. Of the 723 cases examined this is the result: Sunday, 254; Monday, 125; Tuesday, 69; Wednesday 62; Thursday, 62; Friday, 48; Saturday, 103. On Sundays, continues the New York World, when public houses are most frequented and most alcohol is consumed, most crime occurs; on Monday people are still under the influence of their Sunday potations, and the number recedes until Saturday, which is pay day. Saturday does not reach the figures of Sunday because the public houses are frequented only in the evening.

Contrary to the experience of Chicago and Buffalo after their expositions, St. Louis, to quote The Globe-Democrat, "has a building boom, a boom in postal receipts and a business boom generally." As one of the incidents of this booming spirit and the rejuvenation of the city by the big bridge, a Million club has been organized, whose object, as its name implies, is to increase the population of the city to the million mark, and the time limit set for this accomplishment is that of the next decennial census of the United States, says the New York Tribune. To achieve this aim, which seems a desirable thing to ambitious and enterprising St. Louis people, The Globe-Democrat says only two things are necessary: "Make the advantages of the city known and make the city worthy of its advantages."

Commandant Jan Louw, the Boer officer, who refused to lay down his arms when his fellow-countrymen surrendered to the British, and who fled to the Longberg mountains on the borders of German West Africa with his band of burgher fighters, has been successfully resisting the combined English and German forces in South Africa for more than two years. In June, 1902, when the Boer army capitulated, Louw fled with only about 300 men. Within the first year, however, this number was increased to 2000, and today he is said to have a combined force of 8000 sturdy warriors under his command. Many Boers still believe that their country can be reclaimed, and many of them look to Louw as the man who will start the next rebellion, the Argonaut states. There exists an understanding among the Boers and their sympathizers that the next uprising will be in 1906, and it is also stated that 15,000 men have agreed to respond to the commandant's call.

Capt. A. C. Anson, "Uncle Anse," Chicago's new City Clerk, is not the first professional ballplayer to graduate from the diamond into office, states the New York Evening World. Two Senators, at least one Cabinet officer and any number of minor officials, State and national, have been balltossers. Belief that many eye teeth are cut on the diamond seems justified by the subsequent careers of ballplayers in business as well as in public life.

Deputies Shot from Ambush.

Centreville, Ala.—At 11 o'clock Friday night Sheriff Crawford and Deputy Sheriff Gardner left through the country for Blocton in response to a telephone message that Deputy Sheriffs Golston and C. H. Cole had been shot from ambush. It seems that the deputies arrested six of eight white men at Blocton and put them in jail, and shortly after leaving the jail the deputies were fired upon from ambush and seriously wounded. They were shot with shotguns, and the parties who did the shooting used buckshot.

For more than a year the union miners at Blocton have been on a strike, and recently they have been guilty of many alleged acts of disorder. During the latter part of last week an armed body of union men drove from the public cemetery at Blocton some men who were digging a grave for the body of a non-union miner. The union men with pistols, knives and shotguns drove the men who were digging the grave from the grave after having made them fill up a partially dug grave at the muzzle of shotguns. A warrant was sworn out for eight of these union miners charging them with the common law offense of preventing the burial of a dead body, and it was under these warrants that the arrests were made which led up to the attempted assassination of Deputy Sheriffs Goldston and Cole last night.

Exhibit at Two Fairs.

Montgomery, Ala.—Governor Jelks Friday authorized Commissioner Poole, of the State Department of Agriculture and Industries, to expend $4,000 of the agricultural fund in preparing an exhibition of the State's resources at the State Fair, to be held in Birmingham and to later remove the exhibit to Selma to be placed in a hall of the fair to be held by the Central Alabama Fair Association.

This action was taken by Governor Jelks on the solicitation of delegations from Birmingham and Selma which visited the capitol some time ago. The Birmingham delegation was headed by Eugene Fies. The Selma delegation consisted of J. B. Ellis and B. A. Evans.

Commissioner Poole will begin soon collecting the exhibit. He thinks much good is to come from the exhibit at the two fairs.

Florence's First Strawberries.

Sheffield, Ala.—John Bose, general agent, this division of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, provided a car for the first shipment of strawberries for the Florence Strawberry company. The consignment was to Cincinnati, and brought $2.25 per crate. The berry was of the Gandy variety and said to be the finest berry grown anywhere. They were of good color large and juicy—18 to 25 berries to the quart.

There are one hundred and fifty pickers in the field. This is the first year of the product. The yield is not as large as was expected, but they will be able to ship a car every other day for the next two weeks. There are several commission men on hand to buy or sell on consignment. The company is very much encouraged by the first year's experiment. There will be plants enough from the yield to plant a thousand acres of the berries. Mr. Bose left today for Lawrenceburg, Tenn., to ship their first crop.

Putting in Water Works.

Sylacauga, Ala.—Work has begun on the excavation for the main pipes of the water works system.

Sumter Mines.

Bessemer, Ala.—The indications are that Sumter mines, which were greatly damaged by fire a few weeks ago, will be in a condition to be put in operation in a month's time. The water is being pumped out, and the woodwork of the mines being rebuilt.

Serious Fire Narrowly Escaped.

Guin, Ala.—A serious fire was very narrowly averted here Friday morning about 9 o'clock by the quick response of the citizens, and the fast work of the water carriers. A house belonging to L. Pearce, and at present occupied by some negroes, caught fire during the absence of the occupants and the fire had gained considerable headway before discovered. The cause of the fire is supposed to have been from leaving some kindling too near the fire or by a spark. As soon as the alarm was given a number of men gathered and by fast work extinguished the flames before any serious damage was done.

Would Fight a Duel.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Charged with sending a challenge to fight a duel, M. D. Blanton, a well-known young man, was indicted by the grand jury and arrested Saturday night. He made bond of $1,000 for his appearance in court.

Knoxville, Tenn.—An ordinance was introduced in the city council Saturday night to fix the tax rate at $1.85. Fifty cents of this will go for streets

Accidents at Holt.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—Thursday morning a negro, who was a workman at the furnace at Holt, four miles from town, was run down by a switch engine and both of his legs were crushed and his skull fractured, but during the afternoon he died from the effects of the accident. The Central Iron and Coal Company plant was seriously damaged by a large fire which occurred at Holt.

The machine shop, a very valuable building, was completely destroyed by fire about half past 3 o'clock. The fire originated from some molten slag which was being hauled out to be dumped. On account of a defect in the pot, the bottom fell out just as the tram was passing the machine shop, and the place was flooded with the molten matter. The shop at once took fire and was consumed before any check could be given the flames by the fire department. The loss is well covered by insurance.

Cotton Warehouse Burns.

Opelika, Ala.—The Frazer cotton warehouse was destroyed by fire causing a loss estimated at $40,000, chiefly of the contents, the warehouse being valued at $5,000. The walls of the warehouse remain standing. The insurance upon the cotton and building amounts to $26,000. There is no clue to the origin of the fire.

Bartow Smith has leased the warehouse for the past fourteen years, and was asleep in the office at the time the fire was discovered by a neighbor, who aroused him before he had been awakened by the flames. This is the third cotton warehouse to burn in this city within two years, the last one being the most destructive of the three. The firemen spent all day at quenching the smoldering fire in the cotton bales, some of which still have much good cotton in them.

Alabamian Appointed Delegate.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—Mr. Benjamin Dugger, who is a cousin of R. B. Dugger, of this place, has been appointed by the United States to represent same as a special delegate to the Scientific Congress of botanists which is to meet in Vienna, Austria in June. He graduated at Clarksville Miss., after which he attended school at Auburn. He then went to Yale and afterwards was assistant botanist at Cornell. After being in the botanical department at Washington for a year he was elected as professor of the department of botany at the University of Missouri, he originated this department there and still holds the position. He has been granted a leave of absence for one year with full pay. He is but 33 years of age

Killed with Brickbat.

Montgomery, Ala.—Because of a dispute over a pair of shoes valued at $1.50 Ed Gant, a negro, is in the Montgomery county jail charged with murder, and George Lewis, a negro, is dead.

Lewis was killed by Gant at 12:15 o'clock at the plant of the Montgomery Cooperage Company, where both men are employed.

Gant was immediately arrested by Mounted Patrolmen Taylor and Crossland and taken to the county jail on a warrant charging him with murder sworn out before Justice J. N. Browder. He was not averse to talking of the tragedy.

Shipping Beans by Car Loads.

Livingston, Ala.—Beans have been shipped from Livingston last week by the car load. The crop is excellent, and those who were in time for the prices the first of the year are happy.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—Contracts have been recently let by Tuscaloosa county for the working of the public roads of the county. Twenty-five contracts were let to different parties in twenty-five beats. The total amount of the contracts amount to $14,595.75.

Two Will Hang.

Linden, Ala.—Albert and Henry Richards were sentenced to hang on June 23 and Henry Haskins was given a life sentence Friday for the murder of Dr. Fostesque. Dr. Fortesque, a retired citizen of Demopolis, was killed while walking on the railroad track near his home.

Boy Accidentally Shoots Himself.

Opelika, Ala.—While cleaning a 38-caliber revolver Kyle Andrews, aged 16, was seriously shot in the left thigh by the accidental discharge of a chamber. The wounded boy is the oldest son of W. A. Andrews, of the Andrews-Melton Lumber company.

Smallpox Case at Lexington.

Lexington, Tenn.—F. Stanford, section hand, has a well developed case of smallpox. He is under quarantine.

Residence Burned.

Bethpage, Tenn.—The residence of Mrs. R. T. Bush was destroyed by fire Friday morning. The loss was about $2,000, partially covered by insurance. The origin of the fire could not be learned.

IMMIGRATION IS HEAVY

And Must Stop—Coming at the Rate of More Than a Million a Year.

A HEAVY TAX IS PROPOSED.

President Will Probably Recommend That Congress Act on the Matter.

Many Undesirable.

Washington, D. C.—President Roosevelt is considering the idea of presenting the immigration problem to Congress as containing a serious peril and urging drastic action. Immigration this year is breaking all records. The figures indicate a total immigration for the year of over a million, or one-eightieth of the population, and most of it comes from Italy, Hungary and Russia.

Considering Two Methods.

Two methods are under consideration—the limiting of the number of immigrants who can be landed in a month and the increase of the head tax to a prohibitive figure. The latter is the one likely to be recommended by the President. The purpose is to check and reduce the immigration as much as possible. Immigration from Great Britain, Ireland, Sweden, Norway, Germany and other countries, furnishing desirable citizens is vanishing and is being replaced by an enormous immigration of the least desirable classes from the three countries above named. If the immigrants from these three countries would go to the country the problem would not become so serious and it might not be necessary to consider the idea of checking the rush at all. But they stay in the cities.

Is Needed in the South.

"In the south," said Secretary Metcalf, "immigration is urgently needed. We get appeals from the south all the time for immigrants. Louisiana alone could use 100,000 of them. In parts of the west, too, they are needed."

The Secretary produced a photograph of a powerfully built immigrant with a sturdy wife and seven lusty looking children.

"That family," he said, "landed with $160 and subsequently received $150 more. With that money they went to Dakota. They will be useful there and help to develop the country, and they will undoubtedly become good citizens. If this sort of thing was more common we would not have so much of a problem."

The plan for placing an arbitrary limit on the number of immigrants who can be landed in a month is regarded as admirable if it could be successfully put in practice. The difficulty would come with the apportioning of the number of admissable immigrants among the different countries. To permit one country to send more immigrants than another would give rise to charges of discrimination and perhaps be regarded as unfriendly to the country discriminated against. It looks as if the immigration from each country would have to be limited to the same number so that, for instance, Great Britain could not send any more immigrants than Italy. This is not regarded as an ideal arrangement, for the immigration from the northern and western parts of Europe is welcome.

Plan to Increase Head Tax.

The increase of the head tax is looked upon with much favor by the administration. At present it is $2 a head and out of the head fund thus raised the expenses of the immigration inspection service are paid. The plan under consideration is to raise the tax from $2 to $25, which would be practically prohibitive in a great number of cases and would undoubtedly reduce the immigration of the poorest classes. A combination of both propositions is considered and there is also talk of an educational test, but as a high official of the commerce department pointed out today, the immigrants who can pass the educational test are frequently of the very worst class, while many immigrants who have little education are honest and intelligent.

Recent publications about conspiracies in Europe to evade American laws concerning the health of immigrants attract little attention at the commerce department. It is said there that the evasion of the law on the other side makes no difference, as the immigrants who have been legally shipped are caught on this side by the inspection service.

Copper Mine May be Ruined.

Prescott, Ariz.—Millions of tons of rock and earth caved in at noon Monday in Senator Clark's United Verde copper mine at Jerome, Ariz., the ground dropping over the surface to the 700-foot level. Cracking timbers gave the warning, and three hundred miners fled for their lives and escaped uninjured. For several days the ground has been settling and timber creaking.

The extent of the damage can not as yet be ascertained, but if as bad as feared the great property will be closed and the existence of Jerome will be doomed. The officials of the company take an optimistic view of the situation, and say the damage is not irreparable, and that the smelter will be working again within a month.

THE LAST LEAF.

(Apropos of Dr. Osler's Joke.)

I saw him once before
As he passed by the door,
And again
The pavement stones resound
As he totters o'er the ground
With his cane.

They say that in his prime,
Ere the pruning knife of time
Cut him down,
Not a better man was found
By the crier on his round
Through the town.

But now he walks the streets,
And he looks at all he meets
Sad and wan,
And he shakes his feeble head,
That it seems as if he said,
"They are gone."

The mossy marbles rest
On the lips that he has prest
In their bloom,
And the names he loved to hear
Have been carved for many a year
On the tomb.

My grandmamma has said—
Poor old lady, she is dead
Long ago—
That he had a Roman nose,
And his cheek was like a rose
In the snow.

But now his nose is thin,
And it rests upon his chin
Like a staff,
And a crook is in his back,
And a melancholy crack
In his laugh.

I know it is a sin
For me to sit and grin
At him here;
But the old three-cornered hat,
And the breeches, and all that,
Are so queer!

And if I should live to be
The last leaf upon the tree
In the spring,
Let them smile, as I do now,
At the old forsaken bough
Where I cling.
—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

WHO GOT THE BEST OF IT?

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

By Boodie Smith.

REALLY, now Mona, this is not like you to object to my going up to Burtonville. You know a man's business has to be attended to, let matters be as they may. I like to let you go to the Springs, but I really must go to Burtonville, and I can get cousin Melissa to come stay with you while I am away." And Mr. Lee looked half eagerly at the pretty face of his wife as she busied herself with the tea pouring.

Mona Sayton had been married to Horace Lee for about three years, and he had been quite a model husband; but here of late he had made two or three trips off without asking her to accompany him, a thing Mona did not quite understand, and she resolved she would see more into it.

"Why," she said, looking up from the hot muffin she was buttering, "I thought you attended to that business the last trip you made up the Hudson with Mr. Moutin."

"Oh, yes"—his fair, handsome face flushing crimson—"so I did go up to attend to it; but there was a hitch somewhere. Women don't understand business, and I don't want your pretty head filled up with dry details, but think about your music, your birds, and go down to Stedart's and get that silk pattern you admired so much. There, won't that keep you from teasing? Run along and pack me a change or two of linen in my valise, there is a pretty girl," he continued, as they rose from the breakfast table.

Mrs. Lee said nothing more, but as she busied herself in packing her husband's valise there was a resolute gleam in her pretty brown eyes that spoke volumes, had Mr. Lee not been so absorbed in his own affairs as not to notice it.

"H'm," he muttered. "She was easier to manage than I expected. I thought there would be the lest bit of a scene, but she took it more quietly than I thought. I reckon it is somewhat lonely here for her when I am gone. When I come back I'll take her for a trip to her uncle's, out in the country. I'll show her I am grateful for her acquiescence in this matter.

"Hurry up, my pet, or I'll be too late to catch the train," glancing at the little clock that stood on the mantel. "It's a quarter after seven now, and I've barely time to reach the station. There! Thanks; I'm ever so much obliged. Shall I leave word for cousin Melissa to come up this morning or this evening?" he inquired, as he was just starting.

"Thanks. You need not stop, as you will be pressed for time. I've half a mind to take a good nap till this evening, when I'll call at aunt Minnie's and bring cousin Lissa back with me," she replied.

"Well, do so by all means. Take the nap, for you were up late last night at Mrs. Hart's reception; but don't forget to call for Lissa. I'll be back in three or four days at furthest. Take care of yourself. By, by!"

After he was gone pretty Mona Lee sat down and indulged in a hearty cry, as almost any woman would in the circumstances; but she soon dried her eyes and set about packing her trunk with such haste that all preparations were complete in a few hours.

Taking out her purse, she counted over her money with an anxious face. "Two hundred—yes, two fifty. Surely that is as much as I'll need. But, for fear of an accident, I'll go to Horace's partner, Mr. Blye, and draw another hundred. I can tell him I'm going out of the city during Horace's absence, which I am—and I don't care who knows I am going, so no one knows where I am going. Horace thinks he is deceiving me, but we will see something about that busines which is so hard to attend to, and women can't understand. Well, we will see what we will see."

She rang her bell, and when the servant girl came in she said:

"Patsy, you've been wishing to pay your mother a visit. You can go and stay till next Friday. Here are your wages. Be kind enough to request the housekeeper to remain and take care of the house till next Friday. She can keep one or two of the servants. To those she does not need she can give a holiday, but tell those who take holiday to be here by next Friday morning. You may go."

* * * * * * *

"By Jove! what a superb form! Who is that lady, Norcross, in the blue walking suit, with the brown veil?"

"Mrs. McKenny, a widow—late arrival. She is a regular beauty, though. The late lamented was a fortunate man."

"So you know her, do you? Introduce me, old boy, won't you?" eagerly inquired Mr. Horace Lee, as he and his friend, Harry Norcross, sat on the veranda of one of the most noted hotels at a fashionable watering place.

So the urgent business that was so pressing that he had refused to take his young wife to the Springs was here at this hotel on the veranda, and it semeed to be nothing more nor less than that he had determined to take a few days' pleasure at this summer resort while his wife remained at home alone, or, at best, her only company her old maid cousin. This was the business that women couldn't understand.

No doubt he thought he could best enjoy himself minus his wife's company, for here at the Springs he did not scruple to pass as an unmarried man, and many were the flirtations he engaged in while on these trips. Of course, he meant no real harm, but he should have thought how he would have liked his wife to have done likewise.

Three whole days passed before he could succeed in getting an introduction to Mrs. McKenny, for she was very exclusive; but at last, one evening, just at dusk, he saw her promenading on the piazza in company with a lady with whom he was well enough acquainted to ask the favor of an introduction to her friend, provided, of course, "the lady would do him the honor."

"May the fiends seize the darkness! I can't catch even the slightest glimpse of her features; but from what I've already seen, and with that superb form, she cannot be aught else than beautiful. At any rate, I intend to cultivate her acquaintance so assiduously as to make up for the lost time. Jove! I've got to move fast, for my time is running short. Well, here goes for a day or two of fun."

From that night Mrs. McKenny was besieged. Bouquets of her favorite flowers, with tiny notes hidden in their fragrant depths, found their way to her room constantly. He was her escort on their moonlight sails, rambles and drives; but one singular thing that struck him was that he had never yet succeeded in getting a sight of her face. He could never meet her in the daytime. It was always night, and she invariably wore a veil and a long, fleecy scarf of snowy whiteness, which she wound turban-like around her throat and head, and which he inwardly anathematized.

"Why won't you remove your veil sometimes?" he would say. "I can never see your face. Will you not raise it now?" he pleaded, on one of their promenades.

"No, no; not now," she hastily replied, in a husky voice. "I cannot come out in the evening air without my scarf. I have to wear it for protection. I am subject to a weak throat, and I really cannot do without it."

"But you could raise it from your face just one half minute, can you not? Reflect that I never yet have seen your face."

"Do you really care to see my face—and, if so, why? I may disappoint you," she replied.

"No, no! I know that your face can be none other than most lovely. Remember my devotion, I pray you. My soul is starving for a look into thine eyes."

"I warn you that you will be disappointed. You must take all the blame upon yourself, and I assure you now that you will regret it in two seconds after it is done."

"Regret it? No, no. I shall be——"

"There are too many observers now, but if you really desire to meet me face to face, meet me in the back drawing room to-morrow evening at half-past eight. That room is usually deserted at that hour."

"How can I ever thank you? But I don't think I can survive through all the long hours till eight to-morrow. But I shall live by anticipations of the sweet triumphs of that hour."

All through the hours of the next day Horace Lee lounged about the hotel, whistling, smoking and trying to while away the tedious minutes. At dusk he went out and bought a magnificent bouquet of freshly cut flowers—camellias, heliotrope, tuberose and geranium leaves—which he sent up to Mrs. McKenny's room, with a written verse of tender, loving poetry, and at the bottom of it a request that if she reciprocated the tender feelings expressed in the verse, would she grant his request to wear a bunch of the heliotrope in her hair at the coming interview?

When the appointed hour of the meeting came he repaired promptly to the drawing room. In the semi-darkness he thought the room unoccupied, but as his eyes became accustomed to the gloom he saw a familiar figure standing near the mantel, with an arm upraised in the act of turning on the light.

Hearing his step as he entered the room, the lady slowly turned her face toward him, as at the same moment she flooded the room with light.

"Merciful heavens! Mona!"

"Yes, Horace; it is I."

Horace Lee hung his head. When he raised it shame and remorse seemed struggling for mastery. At last he spoke:

"Well, Mona, you've got the best of it. If you will forgive me I'll solemnly swear I'll never be guilty of this again."

"I'll forgive you, Horace, and I'll forbear to reproach you; but are you ready to go home to-day?"

"Yes; but, Mona"—and here he looked sheepish—"don't let this get out. Keep up the character, and just give out that you are going home. Go off by yourself, and I'll overtake you at the next station. Nobody will suspect."

Mrs. Lee was hurt, but she felt that she had so much the advantage that she could afford to be generous, so she packed up and left for home. Mr. Lee joined Mrs. Lee at the next station, and as they journeyed to New York he promised faithfully that he would never be guilty of such an indiscretion again.

Mrs. Lee never exposed him to anyone, and Mr. Lee reformed from that hour. Mrs. Lee avers that he would have gone on for years, and brought her no end of trouble, had she not had the courage to follow him and play her little game. For, says she, suppose I had done, as so many wives do, sat down here at home and cried all my good looks away, and where would we have been? Separated, without a doubt. So let us rejoice that she was of true courage.—New York Weekly.

Push the Collections.

What earthly reason is there why a publisher should do business on a different basis than any other business man? Why should a publisher allow a slow-paying customer to go on piling up a debt? None whatever. The fault is all with the publisher, or should we say, all with the "habit?" So often have we met with a publisher who would not push a certain advertiser, because he felt that he would lose the business if he did. Well, what earthly good is the patronage of a man who is either slow pay, or does not pay at all? Take it home to yourself. If you do not meet salaries, how long do your men stay with you? If you do not pay your paper bill, how long does the paper maker stand by you? Do you dare receive a bill from a creditor, month after month, and never say a word? Indeed, no. Yet, you have customers on your books to-day, to whom you have sent bill after bill, and they haven't paid as much attention to them as you pay to a stray copy of the Congressional Record on a rainy afternoon. It isn't good business, and you know it isn't. Then why continue it?—Newspaperdom.

Socialistic Menance Exaggerated.

Socialism is less of a menace to the United States than had been feared. Eugene V. Debs, the Social Democratic candidate for President, boasted, shortly after his nomination last May, that he would get 1,000,000 votes in 1904. Immediately after the election he said his poll had reached 700,000. The official figures show that it was a fraction short of 400,000. Yet it will be well for the American people to keep Socialism as a political force in mind. Mr. Debs, who was the candidate of his party in 1900, also, received 88,000 votes in that year. A jump from 88,000 to 400,000 votes in four years represents a far larger gain than was made by any of the other minor parties. The Populist vote increased from 50,000 in 1900 to 125,000 in 1904; the Prohibition poll advanced from 209,000 to 248,000, while the Social Labor vote, which was 40,000 in 1900, was down to 34,000 in 1904.—Leslie's Weekly.

Hotel on Wheels.

Old sleeping cars and parlor cars bring good money in rental before they are sent to the junk shop. They are chiefly wanted by showmen and traveling photographers, who run all over the country with them during the summer. You find them sidetracked at all small towns. Some are used by medicine men and agents of all kinds, who travel in large groups. Scores of these cars are in the hands of strolling players who want to remain idle until next season.

The rental of these movable hotels has developed into a recognized industry. A bond is required for the return of the car to the point where it was hired. From ten to twenty persons can live comfortably on an ordinary "show" car.—New York Press.

An Egyptian Bill of Fare.

"I have sometimes wondered what people had to eat in ancient times before breakfast foods were invented," said Professor Robert W. Rogers, of Drew Theological Seminary, and then he went on to give a translation he had made of a piece of papyrus dug from an Egyptian mound and which bore the date of "A. D. 1," which contained a household list of things eaten on certain days.

Among these was for one day a dish of liver; "two small loaves and a bird from the water and two snipe" for another day, and on another "ten oysters and one lettuce."—Baltimore Sun.

THE SHEARING.

The day they cut the baby's hair
The house was all a'fidget;
Such fuss they made, you would have said
He was a king—the midget!

Some wanted this, some wanted that;
Some thought that it was dreadful
To lay a hand upon one strand
Of all that precious headful.

While other said, to leave his curls
Would be the height of folly,
Unless they put him with the girls
And called him Sue or Molly.

The barber's shears went snip-a-snip,
The golden fluff was flying;
Grandmother had a trembling lip,
And aunt was almost crying.

The men folks said, "Why, hello, Boss,
You're looking five years older!"
But mother laid the shaven head
Close, close against her shoulder.

Ah, well; the nest must lose its birds,
The cradle yield its treasure;
Time will not stay a single day
For any pleader's pleasure.

And when that hour's work was weighed,
The scales were even, maybe;
For father gained a little man
When mother lost her baby!

A VISITING RAINBOW.

Nap-time was over in the "getting-well" room of the accident ward of the children's hospital. After nap-time came story-time, and Nurse Gilbert, who had charge of the room, could tell the most charming stories—stories that made the little children forget they were lying in a bed and could not run about, jump and play. It was the best hour of all.

The children took turns choosing what the story should be about. Today it was little Marie Alberti's turn to choose. It was a dull, gray afternoon. Outside the snow was falling, and the wind was scooping it up and tossing it against the windows, and heaping it in drifts in the street. Marie had come from Italy, where the days are long and sunny, and she did not like the cold and the snow. She thought often of the green fields filled with flowers, where she used to play, and longed to go back to them.

"What shall the story be about?" said Nurse Gilbert.

Marie looked at the storm outside; then she looked at Nurse Gilbert, who was busy sewing bright-colored ribbons together to make a bag.

"Oh, oh!" she said. "Tell us a story of a rainbow, a bright, beautiful rainbow; such as spreads itself after a rain over my hills of Fiesole."

So Nurse Gilbert told of the strange adventures of a little boy and girl who went out to search for the pot of gold which fairy stories say may be found at the end of a rainbow.

While Nurse Gilbert was telling the story Marie forgot about the snow and the cold, but when it was finished she sighed and said: "Oh, how I wish I could see again a beautiful rainbow!"

The next day, when nap-time was over, the sun was looking in at the windows, as if to see how the children were getting on since his last visit.

But what did Marie Alberti see on the wall over her bed? She looked and looked. Surely it was a piece of a rainbow.

All the children wanted to know where the rainbow came from, and Nurse Gilbert went to one of the windows, and took from the ledge a piece of glass.

It was cut in diamonds and squares, and when she moved it to and fro in the sunshine the children saw pieces of rainbows dancing about the room.

"This ball of cut glass is what makes the rainbows," she said. "It used to make rainbows for me when I was a little girl. Now it may make rainbows for you."

Each day the glass set in the window, and when the sun shown the rainbows came on the wall and traveled slowly round the room, and the glass stood in such a way that the rainbow began at Marie's bed and traveled down the room to little Betsy Frazer.

One day, when Marie had been watching the rainbow for a long time, she said to Nurse Gilbert:

"Do you think, Nurse Gilbert, that the children in the other room would like to see the rainbow?"

"Why, to be sure," said Nurse Gilbert. "Shall I send the rainbow-maker to pay them a visit?"

"Yes, yes!" cried all the children. "Let it go visiting the others, and see if they like it!"

They liked it so well that what do you think Nurse Gilbert did? Why, the very next time she went shopping she bought a glass rainbow-maker for each of the rooms where the children were ill, and now every day when the sun shines beautiful rainbows come visiting the children who lay in the little white beds.—Elizabeth Flint Wade, in Youth's Companion.

DOROTHY'S BIRTHDAY GUESTS.

Dorothy was to have a birthday party, and had been promised that she should make out the list of guests herself.

Dorothy called in her very best friend, Caroline, to help her, and the two, with paper and pencil, devoted at least an hour to deciding who should be the ones favored with invitations. When the list was completed, it was brought to the smiling mother for approval. Her eyes opened with astonishment, for it was a yard long, consisting of pieces of paper pasted together.

"Why, child!" she exclaimed, "what have you here?"

"Only 500 names," said Dorothy, "and at the ball I read about in the paper the other day there were 600 people, and I guess I want to be as fashionable as other people."

The mother ran her eyes over the list. It included all Dorothy's playmates and most of her acquaintances, and then followed a list of such names as Ala Baba, Harom Alraschid and the like.

"Where in the world did you get these names?" inquired the mother. "Who are these people?"

"Oh, I got them out of the 'Arabian Nights,'" said Dorothy. "But you don't need to be afraid. I don't believe more'n half of 'em will come."

"Ah, yes, I remember now," said the mother. "I thought those names sounded familiar. Go on and invite them."

And then she added, meditatively, with a look back into her own youth: "I wish they would come—all of them."—Indianapolis News.

THE INVISIBLE MADE VISIBLE.

Here is a way in which you, too, may join the ranks of those who control the magic power over the seen and the unseen. It is, perhaps, a very humble experiment with which to introduce yourself into the wizards' circle. Yet it will demonstrate conclusively that you have the same power (in a sense) as the greatest practicians of the black art.

Procure an empty basin. Set it near the edge of a table. Place a coin in the centre of the bottom. Then ask one of the spectators to first stand alongside the basin and then to walk slowly backward until the coin is hidden from his eyes by the rim of the bowl, and the inside of the bowl looks as shown in Fig. 1.

Now direct the person to watch the bowl intently. Make him admit that he sees nothing. Then modestly state that you will cause the coin which he knows is in the bottom of the basin, though invisible to him, to become visible without his moving an inch or you touching it.

He says it can't be done. You call for a pitcher of clear water; pour it slowly into the basin until it is about half full. When it settles the result will be as shown in Fig. 2. The coin will appear perfectly visible to the eye of the surprised onlooker, and you will have proved your power to make the invisible become visible—in this case, at least.—New York Evening Mail.

EATING HIS TABLE.

Freddie despised the multiplication table. It was easy to learn to read and spell, but the multiplication table—he couldn't just remember.

One day mother brought him a bag of tiny colored candies.

"Now," she said, "here are five candies in a row, and eight rows. How many candies?"

"Forty," promptly.

"Now make seven times five, and four times five and the rest. When you have made the whole table, learn it. When you have learned it, eat it!"

It was a splendid way to learn tables! Freddie forgot that they were tables. He went to work with a will, and when the teacher—that is, mother—said, "School's out!" he had learned his five tables. He didn't eat them till after school.

He often shared his tables with the next door twins. One day the next door twins' teacher was making their mother a call. Freddie was making one on the next door twins. "Don't you go to school, little boy?" the teacher asked him.

"Oh, yes'm," politely.

"Oh, you do? Well, I suppose you think the multiplication table is perfectly dreadful, too?"

"Oh, no'm!" eagerly. "I'm fond of mine."

"Indeed! How far along are you?"

"I've only eaten as far along as seven times seven, yet," said Freddie.—Adapted from Youth's Companion.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR MAY 28.

Subject: The Crucifixion, John xix., 17-30—Golden Text, 1 Cor. xv., 3—Memory Verses, 25-27—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

I. The journey to Calvary (v. 17). 17. "Bearing His cross." All the preparations having been made the sad procession started. On the way, to the place of the crucifixion it is evident that Jesus became exhausted, because of what He had undergone during the night, and sank under the weight of His cross which He was carrying. The soldiers then compelled a man from Africa, Simon, of Cyrene, who was coming into the city, to assist Jesus. "Went forth." He now goes "even unto death" (Phil. 2:8). "A skull." A bold, round, skull-like hillock, probably the ordinary spot for executions. "Golgotha." Golgotha is the Hebrew word and Calvary the Latin word.

II. The crucifixion (v. 18). 18. "They crucified Him." It was 9 o'clock in the morning, the hour of the usual morning sacrifice of which Jesus, the Lamb of God, was the great Antitype. Jesus was probably nailed to the cross before it was raised. The feet of the sufferer were only a foot or two above the ground—a fact of some weight, as showing that Jesus suffered in the midst of His persecutors. It was at this time that they offered Christ "wine mingled with myrrh" with a view to producing stupefaction. He tasted it, but refused to drink, as it would obscure the clearness of His faculties (Matt. 27:34). "Two others with Him." The two thieves crucified with Him may have belonged to the band with Barabbas. They evidently knew something about Christ. One mocked, the other prayed.

III. The title of the cross (vs. 19-22). 19. "Pilate wrote a title." It was the common custom to affix a label to the cross giving a statement of the crime for which the person suffered. In this case Pilate Himself attended to the title. "King of the Jews." Although written by a wicked Roman ruler, probably as an expression of contempt for the Jews if not for Jesus, yet it told the exact truth—Jesus was "the King of kings." 20. "Written in Hebrew." For the Jews. "Greek." For the foreigners and visitors. "Latin." For the Romans. Power, culture and piety in their noblest forms pay homage at the feet of Jesus. 21. "Then said." The chief priests felt that they and their nation were being insulted by the Roman governor.

22. "What I have written." The Roman laws forbade the sentence to be altered when once pronounced.

IV. "Christ's garments divided (vs. 23, 24). 23. "The soldiers." They were Romans, four in number. They probably knew nothing about Jesus, and were acting merely as executioners. "Took His garments." The clothes of executed criminals were the perquisites of the soldiers on duty.

24. "Rend." Which would, of course, ruin the garment. "Cast lots." Gambling was a favorite pastime of Roman soldiers. "The Scripture." The Scripture referred to is Psa. 22:18. This is one of the seven Messianic Psalms. "Fulfilled." What the soldiers did was of their own free will, but in doing what they did they unconsciously fulfilled the Scriptures. God does not control free will, but He uses it. There were seven sayings of Christ spoken from the cross. His first saying was a prayer for His enemies (Luke 23:34). His second saying was spoken to the dying malefactor.

V. Jesus provides for His mother (vs. 25-27). 25. "His mother." It is generally supposed that she was a widow at this time. She was there watching her Son and suffering with Him. "Mother's sister," etc. It is uncertain whether there are three or four women referred to here. "Wife of Cleophas." Called also Alphaeus. "Mary Magdalene." She was the first to see Jesus after His resurrection.

26. "Saw His mother." He saw and recognized His mother and arranged for her future. "Disciple—He loved." This was John, the author of this gospel. "Woman." This was a customary form of address and was not spoken with any lack of love. "Thy Son." Accept from Him the care and protection that a mother would expect from a son. 27. "Thy mother." Establishing a sympathetic bond. This was Christ's third saying from the cross.

VI. The closing scene (vs. 28-30). 28. "After this." From the sixth hour (noon) there was darkness over all the land until the ninth hour (3 o'clock). Toward the close of the darkness Jesus uttered His fourth saying from the cross: "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" (Matt. 27:46). "All things—accomplished." He had the full consciousness that His work was completed, that the prophetic words were fulfilled, and that He had now only to surrender His spirit to God the Father. "Fulfilled." "Connect this clause, not with 'I thirst,' but with the first part of the verse." All that the Scriptures had foretold had been accomplished. "I thirst." His fifth utterance from the cross. Another evidence of His humanity.

29. "Vinegar." Sour wine which we are told was the common drink of the Roman soldiers. "Hyssop." The sponge was fastened on a hyssop stalk.

30. "Received the vinegar." The first drink of vinegar and gall Jesus refused, but this, unmixed with any drug was accepted. "It is finished." The sixth saying from the cross. This is one word in the Greek and has been referred to as the greatest single word ever uttered. The work which Christ had come to do was now complete. Immediately afterward came the seventh and last utterance, "Father, into Thy hands I commend My spirit!" "Gave up the ghost." "He dismissed His spirit." He gave up His own life.

King Edward says, after inspecting the precious gem, that if he had seen the Cullinan diamond lying in the road he would have kicked it aside as a lump of common glass. What has become of that instinct of royalty that used to detect rose leaves under the mattresses and give other such tokens of superior understanding? asks the Boston Transcript.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Court continued in session last week until Saturday morning when the civil docket was finished and an adjournment taken until Monday. The Grand Jury made a partial report and also adjourned until Monday. The principle cases disposed of were:

W. L. S. Lunsford vs. L. E. Gullahorn, note; judgment and verdict for defendant.

C. W. Larsen vs. L. & N. R. R. Co., damages, continued.

M. J. Goggans vs. L. & N. R. R. Co., damages; judgment and verdict for plaintiff and damages assessed at $ 50.

Monday morning, a few minutes before nine o'clock, Judge Brewer was on the bench and court opened. The petit juries were empanelled and business commenced.

Tuesday morning, when the Pletcher case was called, Col. Stallings, attorney for the defendant, Henry Johnson, made a motion to quash the venire of the special jury on the ground that the list of jurors to try the cause served on the defendant failed to show which were regular jurors and which were special jurors. The motion was granted and the venire quashed.

Calling for the jury box the Judge found there was only ten names left in it, and the box being exhausted the Sheriff was ordered to summon forty more jurors from the county, and the case was set for hearing Thursday morning, May 25, 1905.

This trial set for Thursday applies only to Johnson, as in the meantime the attorneys for the defendants had demanded a severance, which was granted, and each man will be tried separately Judge Brewer decided that the court had no authority to summon another special jury, the jury box being exhausted, and this of necessity continues the case of McCullough till next term.

At 4:10 p.m. Tuesday the Grand Jury filed into court and made the final report, as follows:

REPORT OF GRAND JURY.

To the Hon. S. L. Brewer, Judge of the Fifth Judicial Circuit:

We, the Grand Jury, empanelled by your Honor for the Spring Term, 1905, of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, State of Alabama, beg leave to submit our final report.

We have investigated 108 cases, and examined 249 witnesses, and as a result thereof submit to your Honor's Court 80 true bills.

Through our several committees, appointed for that purpose, we have examined the offices and books of the different County officers, and the records required by law to be kept therein. are clean and neatly kept. The inspection of the County Poor House was very satisfactory; everything that can tend to alleviate the lot of these unfortunates being done for them.

We, as a body, inspected the County Jail, and find it clean, and that none of the prisoners had any complaint to make. Certain repairs necessary have already been contracted for, and this we heartily approve.

Looking to the best interests of our county, we would respectfully make the following recommendations:

That an addition be built to our Court House without delay, sufficient to accomodate the various Juries, etc., so that the necessary administration of justice may be had under fairly comfortable conditions. Our present office is too small to comfortably accomodate the juries and an ordinary crowd attending Court.

That the Tax Assessor and Tax Collector be assigned the room in the Court House now ostensibly occupied by the County Treasurer; it being necessary to the best interests of our people that the tax officers be near the County records.

That our Board of County Commissioners take immediate steps to put some of the older County records, as for instance, the "Field Notes," into new and substantial books; and have the "Tract Book" written up to date, that duty having been neglected for a number of years.

From the Treasurer's report we find that the financial condition of our county is good.

That our Board of County Commissioners engage an expert accountant to examine into, and report upon, the accounts of the various County officers for the last few years with the County, the State having looked after its interests only.

We wish to thank our Solicitor, the Hon. W. B. Bowling, for the very able assistance rendered us by him at all times.

We thank your Honor for the plain, explicit instructions contained in your charge to us, the same having materially assisted us in performing our duty, and beg to be discharged.

Respectfully submitted,
J. W. LITTLEJOHN, Foreman.
Clanton, Ala., May 23, 1905.

The report had been prepared and written by a person not a member of the Grand Jury, and Foreman Littlejohn found so much difficulty in reading it that Solicitor Bowling kindly volunteered to read it for him.

In over sixty cases the indictments were quashed, or a nolle pros entered. Following are the more important of the convictions:

Lige Long, assault with weapon; fined $10.

Anthony Golden, assault to murder; guilty.

Major Oden, grand larceny; guilty.

Lee Hubbard, assault to murder; guilty.

Jesse Benson, carrying concealed weapons; fined $50.

Wiley Williams, selling liquor; fined $50.

Tompkins Littleton, disturbing religious worship; fined $20.

The State vs. George Hilson, charged with carrying concealed pistol. In this case Judge Brewer retired from the bench, after appointing Hon. Tipton Mullins to act as temporary judge, by agreement with the defendant's attorney. At the time the indictment was found Judge Brewer was Circuit Solicitor, and hence was incapacitated from serving as judge in the case. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

John Will Davis, forgery, occupied Wednesday afternoon, and at 5 o'clock the jury retired, returning at 6:30 with a verdict of guilty.

W. J. A. Melton, murder in first degree; case has not yet been reached, but will probably be continued.

Terrific Race With Death.

"Death was fast approaching," writes Ralph F. Fernandez, of Tampa, Fla., describing his fearful race with death, "as a result of liver trouble and heart disease, which had robbed me of sleep and of all interest in life. I had tried many different doctors and several medicines, but got no benefit, until I began to use Electric Bitters. So wonderful was their effect, that in three days I felt like a new man, and today I am cured of all my troubles." Guaranteed, Upchurch Drug co; price 50c.

THE FIRST SUNDAY SCHOOL.

"Among the modern developments of Christianity, Sunday schools, and what is known as the Sunday school enterprise, are prominent. To persons familiar with their objects and the scriptural precepts by which they are sanctioned, it seems strange that so long a period elapsed before Sunday schools came into existence. Not until the close of the 18th century was there anything like a general effort on the part of the church for the religious instruction of children. Although in numerous instances previously catechization had been practiced on the Lord's day, and in several cases individuals remote from each other in time and locality had assembled children for instruction on that day, yet nothing like a general system of teaching the young on Sunday was known prior to 1780. The school then established was purely philanthropic in its design, and its origin contemplated only local results. Great numbers of children from the town and surrounding regions were employed in pin-making in Gloucester, England. Many being wholly uneducated and without parental restraint or moral supervision, naturally fell into gross disorder and immorality, especially on Sundays when the factories were closed. In 1780, it is said that an "elect lady," Sophia Cook, suggested to Robert Raikes, a printer in Gloucester and a member of the Church of England, a remedy for this distressing state of things. So Robert Raikes gathered the children into a school on Sunday and engaged four persons, accustomed to teaching, to instruct them. When once the idea for Sunday instruction of children was fairly developed, it was seen to have not only great intrinsic merit but perfect adaptation to other places. Hence the school of Mr. Raikes began to be imitated in all directions. Vastly different was the first Sunday school from the present form The teachers were paid and doubtlese deserved their "hire," for that first school was a day's work. The children went at ten o'clock in the morning and remained till twelve. They returned at one and after reading a lesson were conducted to church. The first Sunday, Robert Raikes and Sophia Cook marched at the head of this ragged procession to the Parish church. After the service the children returned to the school and were employed in repeating the catechism till half past five when they were dismissed with the injunction to go home very quietly and by no means to play in the streets."—Ecclesiastical Cyclopædia.

IN MEMORIAM.

That "Death loves a shining mark" was forcibly exemplified in the person of little Mamie, the beloved daughter of Mr. John Edwards, who departed this life on the evening of the 3d inst. in the youth of her life. She was gifted with unusual charms of feature and form as well as mind and heart, of a genial sunny nature. We should bow submissively and not question the will of God who doeth all things well. After a short illness, her sweet life she laid aside, and took up her abode with the angelic hosts in the Paradise of God by the beautiful tree of life, where death never comes nor are pains and partings known. Our tenderest sympathy goes with her father, mother, brothers and sisters who mourn her loss. All that loving hearts and willing hands could do availed not to keep her here. The entire community extends deepest sympathy to the bereaved ones.

Why Suffer From Rheumatism?

Why suffer from rheumatism when one application of Chamberlain's Pain Balm will relieve the pain? The quick relief which this liniment affords makes rest and sleep possible, and that alone is worth many times its cost. Many who have used it hoping only for a short relief from suffering have been happily surprised to find that after awhile the relief became permanent. Mrs. V. H. Leggett, of Yum Yum, Tennessee, U. S. A., writes: "I am a great sufferer from rheumatism, all over from head to foot, and Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that will relieve the pain." For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

New Prospect.

I noticed a recent letter that Mr. F. A. G. wrote in which he said that it looked impossible to organize the farmers in the S. C. A. We should meet on the 20th inst. and devise new plans and talk over the matter in regard to same. In my opinion the cotton already is reduced to a great extent on account of the wet weather. It seems that "General Green" is going to take possession, so if anyone has any mortgage or claim on the present crop it would be wise in them to get the "General" to withdraw his claim. It is hoped though that after he takes what is due him that there will be more left for the producer. Mr. F. A. G., I appreciate reading your letters, as you give good advice on any subject; so write as often as convenient.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely under the faithful management of our superintendent, Mr. J. A. Culp. Mr. A. L. Williams makes an excellent secretary. We cordially invite everyone to come and unite with us in the good work as I think there is nothing so beneficial to the young people, and of course the elder ones are expected to lead and instruct the young.

There will be preaching next Sunday by our pastor, Rev. W. A. Montgomery, at 11 a.m.

Saved by Dynamite.

Sometimes, a flaming city is saved by dynamiting a space that the fire can't cross. Sometimes, a cough hangs on so long, you feel like nothing but dynamite would cure it. Z. T. Gray, of Calhoun, Ga., writes: "My wife had a very aggrivated cough, which kept her awake nights. Two physicians could not help her; so she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which eased her cough, gave her sleep, and finally cured her." JAPS STRIKE IN HAWAII

The Labor Troubles are Marked by Violence on the Pacific Ocean Islands.

2,300 MEN ARE DESPERATE.

White Population of La Haina, Including Military, Prisoners in Court-house Surrounded by Japs.

Honolulu.—Most of the white population at La Haina, on the island of Maui, including the military, are prisoners in the court house surrounded by Japanese laborers. One Japanese was killed and two wounded by the plantation police during an attack on the plantation mill.

The entire 2,300 Japanese laborers on the island are now on strike, and are showing violent mood. The steamer Kinau left Honolulu Sunday afternoon, taking National Guard Company F, consisting of thirty men, and forty armed Honolulu police to the scene of the trouble.

All Demands Refused.

The strike started a week ago on the Wailuku plantation. The Japanese made a long list of demands, among them being the discharge of the head overseer. All the demands were rejected. On Friday the strike spread to the Pioneer plantation. The plantation immediately began paying off the striking Japanese, who then commenced to stone the mill and resisted all efforts of the mounted police to drive them away. The Maui military, which was called out, restored order temporarily. Everything was peaceful late Saturday when the island steamer Claudine left, but soon after the steamer's departure a clash occurred between the Japanese and the plantation guard, in which the shooting took place. It resulted in a general outbreak, and the imprisonment of the whites and the militia in the court house by the Japanese. Wireless messages were sent to Honolulu asking for aid. A tug was also sent through fear that the wireless telegraph was not working.

Secretary to Pacify Them.

The secretary of the Japanese consul accompanied the forces on the Kinau. He will try to pacify the strikers.

The entire remaining police force of Honolulu is on duty at the police station tonight, although there are no signs of trouble.

Judge Tourgee Dead.

Bordeaux, France.—Judge Albion Winegar Tourgee, of Mayville, N. Y. American consul here, died Sunday morning of acute uraemia, which resulted from an old wound. Judge Tourgee was taken seriously ill some months ago, but his condition afterwards improved and it was believed his recovery was probable. Recently, however, the disease took another serious turn and Judge Tourgee lingered until this morning. He was born at Williamsfield, O., May 2, 1838.

Judge Tourgee was widely known throughout the United States as an author, two of his novels, "A Fool's Err" and "Bricks Without Straw," both dealing with the reconstruction period, gaining him considerable reputation.

Four Shot at Palos.

Birmingham, Ala.—In a shooting affray at a country church two miles north of Palos, on the Frisco railway twenty-three miles west of Birmingham, Sunday, four young men, Oscar Brassfield, Ose Brassfield, Thomas Collier and Charles Milligan, were more or less injured. It is reported that one of the two last named is dead, but this lacks confirmation.

Oscar Brassfield was brought to Birmingham Sunday night at 7 o'clock and is at Brown's infirmary on Nineteenth street. He was shot through the bowels with a pistol ball and is in a critical condition.

Ose Brassfield, a cousin of Oscar, was shot twice in the back. He is at home near Palos and his condition is not known here.

All the men engaged in the fight are white and the difficulty is said to have grown out of bad feeling that has existed for some time. The trouble occurred about noon.

Skirmishes Are Continuous.

Harbin, Manchuria.—An officer who has returned from the extreme left of the Russian army says the Yalu detachment is constantly skirmishing with the Japanese with whom are 5,000 Chinese bandits, armed with captured Russian rifles and officered by Japanese. A strong wind is drying the roads southward.

Big Iron Company for India.

Washington, D. C.—According to United States Consul Fee at Bombay, India, a projected iron industry is being organized in India by the successors of Jametjee Mtata, known as "The Merchant Prince of Bombay."

The syndicate will have a cash capital of six and one-half million dollars for the purpose of manufacturing iron to renew the rails on the long lines of road in India and supply growing demands for structural iron and steel.

Little Girl Charged With Murder.

Toronto, Ont.—Josephine Carr, a 12-year-old girl, has confessed to the murder of William Murray, a 5-months-old infant. It is claimed of the Carr girl that she has been in the habit of stealing baby carriages from the front of a department store while the parents were inside shopping. The police have recovered several of these carriages, which had been sold to neighbors. Last Friday the girl went to a department store and found a baby in each carriage in front of the store.

Picking out the best looking baby carriage in the lot, which contained the Murray child, she made off with it. She took the child to the woods near her home at the east end of the city, it is alleged, and stripping it of its clothing threw it over an embankment and caused its death. Later she placed the body in a culvert and buried the clothing. On Saturday she made the announcement that she had "discovered" the child's body in the culvert. She was immediately suspected and when accused of the crime confessed. The girl claimed that she adopted the plan of killing the child from seeing a play at a local theater.

Policemen Charged With Murder.

Birmingham, Ala.—Chief of Police Dink Burrell and Policeman Walter McPherson, of Brookside, are in the county jail, the charge against them being murder. The men were arrested at Brookside Saturday night and brought to Birmingham on warrants sworn out before Judge Dan A. Greene, of the criminal court of Jefferson county, by Coroner W. D. Paris. They are charged with killing Gus Trout, a negro miner, at the mining town several days ago. It is understood that the defendants will enter a plea of self-defense.

Aged Pioneer Found Dead in Bed.

Gadsden, Ala.—Jehu Reece, known to everybody in his neighborhood as Uncle "J," was found dead in bed at his home on Lookout mountain, near Fort Payne, last Thursday morning. He and his family had spent the day before away from home with friends and was in splendid health apparently when he retired that night, but next morning he was found cold in death by those who went to awaken him. Mr. Reece was 75 years old and a pioneer citizen of Lookout mountain. He was a brother-in-law of Postmaster Frazier, of Fort Payne, and was a splendid citizen.

Bond Election is Deferred.

Gadsden, Ala.—The city officials have called off for the time being the election to be held to decide whether or not the city will issue $100,000 worth of thirty-year 5 per cent bonds for the extension of the sewerage and the paving of the streets. This was made necessary from the fact that the civil engineers could not get together and compile the necessary data to be placed before the people in order that they could know what was intended to be done with the money. An election will be called in a few weeks, but only $50,000 will be needed to accomplish what the city needs.

Fifty Turks Are Killed.

Athens, Greece.—An encounter between Graeco-Macedonian bands and a strong Turkish detachment is reported to have occurred in the district of Langidina in Macedonia. Many insurgents and fifty Turks are reported to have been killed.

Dowie Buys Land.

Mexico City, Mexico.—Gladstone Dowie, son of the Zion prophet, John Alexander Dowie and Judge Barnes, a legal adviser, are in the city completing details for the taking over of 700,000 acres of land for the purpose of establishing a colony in Mexico similar to that at Zion City, Ill.

Storm in Texas.

Fort Worth, Tex.—A heavy wind storm, blowing at the rate of seventy miles an hour, struck this city from the southwest at 6:30 o'clock Sunday night. Part of the west wall of the Texas and Pacific passenger station was blown in, and John Young, a train dispatcher, killed.

More Troops from Poland.

St. Petersburg.—Greatly increased activity is observable in the dispatch of troops to the far east from Poland. Recently picked drafts from various regiments were sent from Warsaw, Lodz and other places.

Railroad Changes Hands.

El Paso, Tex.—The El Paso and Southwestern railroad announces the purchase of the El Paso and Northwestern system. The latter connects with the Rock Island, and has a branch line to the Dawson coal fields. The Alamo Gordo coal fields and timber tracts are included in the purchase.

Birmingham, Ala.—Officer John P. Walker shot and perhaps fatally wounded a negro known as "Blacksnake" in a negro restaurant on Second avenue between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets Monday afternoon about 4 o'clock.

Columbia, Tenn.—Impeachment proceedings have been instituted against J. F. Brownlow, mayor of Columbia, by M. C. Kinnard, recently removed from the city police force.

THE PULPIT.

A BRILLIANT SUNDAY SERMON BY REV. DR. NEHEMIAH BOYNTON.

Subject: The Meaning of Christian Service

Brooklyn, N. Y.—A large audience greeted the Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton, the pastor-elect of the Clinton Avenue Congregationalist Church, Sunday morning, to hear his first sermon in his new pulpit. The subject of the sermon was: "Christian Service." The text was from Mark x:43-44: "Whosoever would become great among you, shall be your minister; and whosoever would be first among you, shall be servant of all." Dr. Boynton said:

Jesus never questioned the proposition that it was a fine thing to be great. He had no small jealousies to nurse. But He continually emphasized the declaration that it was a finer thing to be first, and, to His thinking, greatness and primacy were not synonymous terms.

In our clumsy English it is not easy to indicate the distinction in the text between the "minister," who aspires to be great, and the "servant of all," who becomes first; it is the difference between the mere waiter, who serves with one eye on your need, the other on your tip, and the bodyguard, who has committed himself unreservedly to your interests and who is happy alike in life or death if only, like the Japanese, he can have the honor of serving the Emperor.

So Christian service is the first thing in the world; it is greater than the great thing.

The outstanding characteristic of our age has been and is the realization that the universe is one; it is God's world, it is Christ's world; that the spirit is one; it is God's spirit, it is Christ's spirit; that the Christian service means nothing less or more than taking Christ's spirit out to Christ's world and installing it. All that is involved in this mighty conception we do not yet comprehend, for "the new age stands, as yet, half built against the sky," but it is easy enough to see that the struggle of the day in presence of the mighty and impressive changes which are transforming modern life is to match the growing world and the widening universe, with a genuine, circumferential Christian spirit, putting the noblest Christian science in play "far as the course is found." Beyond this, it is equally evident that the supreme challenge to the church is to accept and to appropriate, faithfully and fearlessly, all revelations and revisions, which the many sided truth of the unity of God's universe illumines and installs, for the church will have lost her mission and her influence when she is content to be a camp follower trailing along in the rear of the advancing legions of the Lord of Hosts.

The peril of small conceptions of the superiority of Christian service is many times most imminent where His presence is least suspected. A brave and aspiring spirit will pray most earnestly for deliverance from this pestilence that walketh in darkness and destruction that wasteth at noonday. One's spiritual ability is bounded by his horizon and his service is intimately related to his sight. The soul which has settled into the comfortable conceit that the faith has once for all been delivered to the saints, that spiritual ministry for to-day is but a reproduction of the type and method of yesterday, may indeed be contented with its conclusion, but its ability to minister effectively to the present day kingdom of God is shorn of adequacy. Little conceptions make little Christians; large conceptions make large Christians. Dr. Peabody is voicing a ringing truth when he declares that a great heresy of modern Christendom is in residence in the belief that life is a ship composed of watertight compartments, in one of which we work, in another study, in another play and in another worship. The great inclusion of life, the permeating power of the divine spirit, the wideness of God's mercy, the depth of His love, the breadth of His interest, the inevitableness of His will, the absoluteness of His law, these furnish a perspective for an attentive spirit, in the vision of which the meager and petty are overlooked and the promised "wondrous things of Thy law" gleam and glisten like the flash of the harbor light against the blackness of the night!

Christian service needs the snap and stimulus of the great idea of the unity of God's world to get it in possession of its comprehensive chance, so that while we feel a kindling sympathy with the wide visioned martyr, praying as the flames licked his feet, "Lord, open Thou the King of England's eyes," it is in order for us to pray for ourselves the heroic petition, "Consider and hear me, O Lord, my God; lighten mine eyes."

If, however, the time of Christian service is related to small conceptions, the prerogative of Christian service is certainly to introduce the same to great and masterful ones, and to teach it to find its choicer fellowship as it does its mightier inspirations here.

Pilate's question, "What is truth?" is pertinent to-day. Is it a mere cunning assembling and formulation of facts? There it is a cold, inert, useless thing. Is it a glowing faith, a vital, personal, absolute experience? There it is warm with a divine fire and instinct with a glowing anticipation.

Henry Drummond marked that day with a red letter when he ceased to ignore truth as mere propositional wisdom and began to realize it as perceptive wisdom. He declares that he had almost finished his college course before he had any other conception of Christ than that He was a theological conscience in the interests of the Trinity. But the day came when the eyes of his understanding were opened, and he came to know Christ. Not as abstract but as concrete truth. Not as related to life philosophically by a series of dreary propositions, but as implanted in his own life vitality by a personal friendship, which deepened with every trial, widened with every experience and heightened with every aspiration. Then he was recognizing truth as a spirit that Drummond began those tireless, fearless, splendid services which made more than one discriminating observer declare him the towering and outstanding Christian of his generation.

Nor will the Christian service which incarnates the truth be long beyond the quickening influences of sympathy. No man liveth unto himself and when the man tries to be always makes a sorry job of his life. "I want to have something to do with the material world," exclaimed Hawthorne, when by the long and brilliant cultivation of his imagination he began to feel his isolation from humanity. "There is nothing so horrible," he wrote to Longfellow, "in this world as to have no share in its joys and sorrows." The reason why the fingers of much that is called Christian service are all thumbs is because while much is given, little is shared! Sympathy always has something to divide, not merely something to do.

The boy Fichte had a struggle in conscience between his school books and his fairy stories. It was a great day for him! Any boy's first struggle is! But the man in the boy won the fight and in order to establish himself beyond the possibility of a lapse, he threw his book of fairy stories into the brook. His father, a precise, unimaginative, dutiful soul, saw the beautiful book floating away and proceeded to thrash his conquering boy for his wanton destruction. That is about all many fathers appear to know how to do effectively! What a wonder he did not spoil his boy! What a boon a bit of appreciation, of sympathy would have been to the suffering but victorious lad. He needed bread and his obtuse father gave him a stone! The father could do what he thought was his duty, but he had nothing to share with his boy. He was a monumental parental failure!

Large Christian service is always in quest of the joint of sympathy; it makes its alliance with what is, helping it to what it ought to be, and avoids the folly of inverting the divine order! This type of helpfulness may be meager in its ability to do, but is forever finding to its unspeakable joy that it has a boundless store to divide! Sharing sympathy is an infinitely more royal privilege than donating cast off clothing, or stale food, for "if I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, but hath not love it profiteth me nothing!"

Sympathy as an elective of Christian service forever pushes a soul on toward democracy. Surely one may confess with Lowell that while his tastes are with the aristocrats, his convictions are with the people and yet, like Lowell, he forever more and more pushed into the very heart of humanity and glory in the push, too!

The preacher who confessed to a friend that he loved to preach and who was met by the stinging, searching question, "Do you love the men to whom you preach as well as you love to preach?" felt the thrust of the sword between the joints of his harness, which sent him to his study to fall upon his knees and passionately pray that he might be delivered from his temptation to love his sermons better than he did souls, preaching better than persons. The appeal of humanity must outstrip that of homiletics.

Christian service to-day must be immersed in the democratic spirit; its mission is to humanity—humanity as represented by Ellis Island, also by Clinton avenue; by Greater New York, also by the lumber camps of Michigan. Every man is a son of God. Every woman is a daughter of God. Go, find your man, and by the shining truth in your soul, by the sympathy in your heart, by the humanity in your outstretched hand, make him believe that you seek not his, but him.

This—this alone—is Christian service! Christian service after this fashion becomes at once an interpreter. It makes a Gibraltar out of a disadvantageous position; it transforms an ordinary, commonplace ability into a shining angel of privilege and achievement. Everything counts; all things work together. Because the world is one and the kingdom one, nothing is lost, nothing trivial, nothing inconsequential! It makes a man grow tall and strong and confident to really believe the constant assurance of Christian service, that

> All men ignored in me
> This was I worth to God
> Whose wheel the pitcher shaped.

It is to such service, broad, true, sympathetic, humanitarian, Christian, that we commit ourselves to-day; it is in such service that we expect to find our privilege and joy, and from such service that we hope to demonstrate the reasonableness of our united endeavor.

Mute Testimonies.

A little daughter of the tenements, whose mother was done at last with the work and worry that had killed her, was left at fourteen years of age with four younger ones to mother and nurse. And, faithful to her trust, she scrubbed and washed and cooked and mended, until the slender shoulders bent and the thin face grew white, and almost before anyone noticed much the little broken life lay waiting for release. "I haven't been able to do anything," she whispered to her favorite girl friend, who lived just around the corner. "I couldn't go to school because of the work, or to Sunday-school because it took all father could spare to keep the others in clothes. When the minister came to see me, he said I'd soon see Jesus, but I'm afraid I haven't done anything good, and I don't know anything to say to Him." "And you needn't try to say anything," said the other, "not a single word," kissing the pitiful little face. "When you see Him look at you, you just show Him your hands."

Just as We Are.

We have read of an artist who saw in the streets of Rome a beggar so utterly abject and forlorn that he hired him to sit for his picture, as a typical beggar. The next day he came to him, quite transformed. He had hired the clothes of a companion, in which to have his portrait taken. The artist did not recognize him; and on learning that he was the beggar he had hired, he said: "No! I hired a beggar, and him just as he was, or not at all." Christ, for a different reason, founded on the very constitution of our nature, wants us just as we are, without any effort at self-transformation, that the new creation may be "to the praise of the glory of His grace."

The Sabbath Essential.

At a service held by the department of religion at the World's Fair on a Sunday in September a Chicago Jewish rabbi made this statement: "The Sabbath is, and has been, the workingman's salvation. We may differ on the manner of its observance, but its essential importance and its Divine mission in the universal scheme of things cannot be ignored."

Air in House of Commons.

In summer time the air used for ventilating the house of commons in London passes through blocks of ice. In winter it is heated. In fog the outer air passes through layers of cotton wool six inches thick. During forty-eight hours of fog, the cotton wool on one occasion was as black as the back of a chimney. Thanks to these precautions, the house has been absolutely free from mist and the atmosphere is in normal condition while a dense fog prevails outside.

Mr. Kipling, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle and a few other writers are reputed to have received something like a dollar a word for some of their writing, but this is small enough beside what was paid at an auction in London the other day for a letter by Mary Stuart. It brought $4,500, and the average per word was $3.93. But Queen Mary's letter writing was expensive. It cost her—among other things—her head and her reputation.

Held Portfolio 27 Years.

Baron Von Diedel, who has resigned the portfolio of minister of finance in the Bavarian government, has held it for twenty-seven years, which is thought to be without precedent. He is now in his seventy-third year and retires for that reason only. He has forty-seven years of government service behind him.

A company has been formed in Mexico for the extraction of oil from corn (maize) without thereby affecting the grain for purposes of distillation in the process of manufacturing spirits.

Railroads and Progress.

In his testimony before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce at Washington on May 4, Professor Hugo R. Meyer, of Chicago University, an expert on railroad management, made this statement:

"Let us look at what might have happened if we had heeded the protests of the farmers of New York and Ohio and Pennsylvania (in the seventies when grain from the West began pouring to the Atlantic seaboard) and acted upon the doctrine which the Interstate Commerce Commission has enunciated time and again, that no man may be deprived of the advantages accruing to him by virtue of his geographical position. We could not have west of the Mississippi a population of millions of people who are prosperous and are great consumers. We never should have seen the years when we built 10,000 and 12,000 miles of railway, for there would have been no farmers west of the Mississippi River who could have used the land that would have been opened up by the building of those railways. And, if we had not seen the years when we could build 10,000 and 12,000 miles of railway a year, we should not have to-day, east of the Mississippi, a steel and iron producing centre which is at once the marvel and the despair of Europe, because we could not have built up a steel and iron industry if there had been no market for its product.

"We could not have in New England a great boot and shoe industry; we could not have in New England a great cotton milling industry; we could not have spread throughout New York and Pennsylvania and Ohio manufacturing industries of the most diversified kinds, because those industries would have no market among the farmers west of the Mississippi River.

"And, while the progress of this country, while the development of the agricultural West of this country, did mean the impairment of the agricultural value east of the Mississippi River that ran up into hundreds of millions of dollars, it meant, incidentally, the building up of great manufacturing industries that added to the value of this land by thousands of millions of dollars. And, gentlemen, these things were not foreseen in the seventies. The statesmen and the public men of this country did not see what part the agricultural development of the West was going to play in the industrial development of the East. And, you may read the decisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission, from the first to the last, and what is one of the greatest characteristics of those decisions? The continued inability to see the question in this large way.

"The Interstate Commerce Commission never can see anything more than that the farm land of some farmer is decreasing in value, or, that some man, who has a flour mill with a production of fifty barrels a day, is being crowded out. It never can see that the destruction or impairment of farm values in this place means the building up of farm values in that place, and that that shifting of values is a necessary incident to the industrial and manufacturing development of this country. And, if we shall give to the Interstate Commerce Commission power to regulate rates, we shall no longer have our rates regulated on the statesmanlike basis on which they have been regulated in the past by the railway men, who really have been great statesmen; who really have been great builders of empires; who have had an imagination that rivals the imagination of the greatest poet and of the greatest inventor, and who have operated with a courage and daring that rivals the courage and daring of the greatest military generals. But we shall have our rates regulated by a body of civil servants, bureaucrats, whose besetting sin the world over, is that they can never grasp a situation in a large way and with the grasp of the statesman; that they never can see the fact that they are confronted with a small evil; that that evil is relatively small, and that it cannot be corrected except by the creation of evils and abuses which are infinitely greater than the one that is to be corrected."

The World's Beverages.

The United States leads the world in the consumption of coffee; Great Britain and her colonies lead in the consumption of tea; Germany leads in the consumption of beer; Russia in the consumption of whiskey and other distilled spirits, and France in the consumption of wines. This is the showing made by statistics just prepared by the department of commerce and labor. The United States consumed in 1904 some 961,000,000 pounds of coffee, as against 397,000,000 for Germany, 168,000,000 for France, 108,000,000 for Austria, and so on down to 29,500,000 pounds for the United Kingdom, which stands seventh. Clearly we earn our right to be called the world's greatest coffee drinkers by a wide margin. Our annual per capita consumption of coffee is 11.75 pounds, against 6.65 pounds per capita for Germany, our nearest competitor. The most striking, though natural, contrast in these statistics is afforded by the 34.73 gallons of the average wine consumption in France, and the 0.39 consumption in the United Kingdom.

Pay of a Rose Grower.

"A good rose grower—that is, one who can show good results," says a well known florist, "receives as much pay as a college professor. As a rule his knowledge has cost him about as much. By a rose grower I mean a specialist who can produce heavy-headed beauties with strong, yard-long stems. Growing roses in pots or in the open is another matter. It requires skill to grow them well, but it requires something more to show cut flowers of the quality that has some to be considered the first grade. That is a business by itself. Good rose growers get from $2,000 to $5,000 a year, and some of them receive much more, notably a few who cater to the New York market."

Oddities of the Human Body.

The two sides of a person's face are never alike. The eyes are out of line in two cases out of five, and one eye is stronger than the other in seven persons out of ten. The right eye is also, as a rule, higher than the left. Only one person in fifteen has perfect eyes, the largest percentage of defects prevailing among fair-haired people. The smallest interval of sound can be distinguished better with one ear than with both. The nails of two fingers never grow with the same rapidity, that of the middle finger growing the fastest, while that of the thumb grows slowest. In fifty-four cases out of 100 the left leg is shorter than the right.

Pistol Which Killed Lincoln.

The derringer pistol used by John Wilkes Booth in assassinating President Lincoln is in a safe in the office of the judge advocate general of the army in Washington, having been in the custody of the judge advocate general since the trial of the conspirators. This has been brought out by the recent sale in Philadelphia of a pistol with which the crime was said to have been committed. The purchaser wrote on to the war department and learned that he had been victimized.

In Japan ships are loaded with coal by women and girls; but the work is made comparatively easy by putting the coal in small baskets which are passed on from one end of a line to the other.

GREAT CHANGE

From Change in Food.

The brain depends much more on the stomach than we are apt to suppose until we take thought in the matter. Feed the stomach on proper food easy to digest and containing the proper amount of phosphates and the healthy brain will respond to all demands. A notable housewife in Buffalo writes:

"The doctor diagnosed my trouble as a 'nervous affection of the stomach.' I was actually so nervous that I could not sit still for five minutes to read the newspaper, and to attend to my household duties was simply impossible. I doctored all the time with remedies, but medicine did no good.

"My physician put me on all sorts of diet, and I tried many kinds of cereal foods, but none of them agreed with me. I was almost discouraged, and when I tried Grape-Nuts I did so with many misgivings—I had no faith that it would succeed where everything else had failed.

"But it did succeed, and you don't know how glad I am that I tried it. I feel like a new person, I have gained in weight and I don't have that terrible burning sensation in my stomach any more. I feel so strong again that I am surprised at myself. The street noises that used to irritate me so, I never notice now, and my mind is so clear that my household duties are a real pleasure."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

Now why was this great change made in this woman?

The stomach and the brain had not been supplied with the right kind of food to rebuild and strengthen the nerve centres in these organs. It is absolute folly to try to do this with medicine. There is but one sure way, and that is to quit the old food that has failed and take on Grape-Nuts food, which is more than half digested in the process of manufacture, and is rich in the phosphate of potash contained in the natural grain, which unites with albumen and water—the only three substances that will make up the soft gray filling in the thousands of delicate nerve centres in the brain and body. Grape-Nuts food is a sure road back to health in all such cases.

ITCHING SCALP HUMOR

Lady Suffered Tortures Until Cured by Cuticura—Scratched Day and Night.

"My scalp was covered with little pimples and I suffered tortures from the itching. I was scratching all day and night, and I could get no rest. I washed my head with hot water and Cuticura Soap and then applied the Cuticura Ointment as a dressing. One box of the ointment and one cake of Cuticura Soap cured me. Now my head is entirely clear and my hair is growing splendidly. I have used Cuticura Soap ever since, and shall never be without it. (Signed) Ada C. Smith, 309 Grand St., Jersey City, N. J."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

Swallow Dying Out.

The swallow is being annihilated. As the birds cross France and Italy going to Africa in the fall and returning in the spring they are mercilessly slaughtered for the table and the plume trade. Their numbers are visibly decreasing.

Troubles of Translators.

The difficulty of avoiding "howlers" when one is translating from English into such a language as that of the Micmac Indians of Nova Scotia must be very great, says the London News. We hear from the Bible Society of a curious case. In the first edition of St. Matthews in Micmac the translator found, when he came to revise it, that in chapter xxiv., 7, instead of "Nations shall rise against nations," he had written, "A pair of snow shoes shall rise up against a pair of snow shoes." And yet there was only one letter misprinted—naooktukumiksijik (a nation), having been misplaced by naooktakumiksijik (a snow shoe). If the Micmacs have a word that long for "nations," what a mouthful their word for "empire" ought to be! But probably they haven't any word for it. It would be of no use to them, for they are a small people and probably ardent naooktukumiksijikalists to a man.

Climate and Good Voices.

Some one asked Caruso why there were so many more good Italian tenors than American. He thought for a moment and then replied: "It is, I think, largely the climate. Every little village in Italy is full of good voices. But it is also the language, in which the vocal cords are used more easily as they should be. Of course, there is no reason why English should not be spoken as naturally as Italian, but it is not. In fact, there are not more good singers in Italy than there are elsewhere. There is only more good material. Good singing is a matter of brains and cultivation everywhere."

Conviction Follows Trial

When buying loose coffee or anything your grocer happens to have in his bin, how do you know what you are getting? Some queer stories about coffee that is sold in bulk, could be told, if the people who handle it (grocers), cared to speak out.

Could any amount of mere talk have persuaded millions of housekeepers to use

Lion Coffee,

the leader of all package coffees for over a quarter of a century, if they had not found it superior to all other brands in

Purity, Strength, Flavor and Uniformity?

This popular success of LION COFFEE can be due only to inherent merit. There is no stronger proof of merit than continued and increasing popularity.

If the verdict of MILLIONS OF HOUSEKEEPERS does not convince you of the merits of LION COFFEE, it costs you but a trifle to buy a package. It is the easiest way to convince yourself, and to make you a PERMANENT PURCHASER.

ANOTHER LIFE SAVED.

Mrs. G. W. Fooks, of Salisbury, Md., wife of G. W. Fooks, Sheriff of Wicomico County, says: "I suffered with kidney complaint for eight years. It came on me gradually. I felt tired and weak, was short of breath and was troubled with bloating after eating, and my limbs were badly swollen. One doctor told me it would finally turn to Bright's disease. I was laid up at one time for three weeks. I had not taken Doan's Kidney Pills more than three days when the distressing aching across my back disappeared, and I was soon entirely cured."

As the bottom has just dropped out and I am sleepy, guess I will try to arouse myself by saying a few things about Verbena society in general. Maplesville.

For the high respect that we have for the family and grief-stricken wife and aged parents of Mr. Ovid L. Rawlins, who lost his life at the hands of Ben Smith, in Blocton, on the 19th inst., we write these few lines. Mr. Rawlins was at a beer drinking in a grove near the house of his father-in-law, with many others, which is very common with the miners at Blocton, and was led into a game of dice by the said Ben Smith, and not a game of poker as was published in the Banner a few days since. Smith fell out with Mr. Rawlins over the game and drew a concealed pistol and fired twice at Mr. Rawlins; when Rawlins advanced and cut him with his jack knife, then Smith fired the third and fatal shot. We all mourn the loss of Mr. Rawlins, who was one of our most noble young men, a good citizen, hard working, upright and honest; was a strict member of Mulberry church while in our county, and was a member of the Odd Fellows at Blocton, who took charge of the remains, and was laid to rest by the order in the Union cemetery at Blocton in a beautiful and imposing manner.

O, how we miss thee, Ovid,
That smiling face we greet no more,
But in the sweet by and by
We hope to meet thee on that peaceful shore.

Blackmail.

"I never give my photographs away," said Miss Moreton, primly, the dimple displaying itself almost ostentatiously in her cheek.

"But I am an old friend," said I. "Surely an old friend does'nt count?"

"It's not the same thing," said Miss Moreton vaguely. "Of course, it would be different if——" She ceased apparently not knowing how to go on.

"Oh, very well," said I, with a sigh. "At any rate, I've got something to go on with."

She glanced at me swiftly, and then looked down the room, where the people were chattering.

"If one gave to one, one would have to give to all," she said oracularly.

"I'm thankful I have that snapshot, at any rate," I said.

"Snapshot?" she said, looking at me suspiciously.

"Why, yes," said I. "You remember, in the boat at Goring last July. I took one of you then."

"I have no recollection of it," she said, coolly.

"It was rather a good one, but, of course, not well developed, and, naturally, not one of you at your best. But, at any rate, it's something."

"What sort of one was it? she inquired, with interest. You've no right to take photographs without telling one."

"On the contrary," I replied, "it has been held in law that you may take what photographs you will; only you mustn't sell them. I'm not going to sell yours."

"What's it like?" she inquired, ignoring this.

For answer I dived into my frock-coat pocket. "I have a print here," I said, "I've not fixed it properly, but you can get an idea. It was when you were laughing at a story of Travers's.

Miss Moreton almost plucked the photograph out of my fingers, and examined it. "How abominable of you! she said. It's perfectly ridiculous. Good gracious, I don't open my mouth like that!"

"It's a pretty mouth, said I.

"It's a detestable grimace, and all out of drawing," she declared, with visible annoyance. "Amateur photography is all like that. People have no right to be let loose with cameras they don't understand."

"It's all I have," I pleaded. "If you would let me have a real one of you I would willingly sacrifice it."

Miss Moreton appeared to hesitate. Certainly not," she said at last, with decision. "And you must please restroy these."

"That's the only print I have," I said meekly.

She eyed me for a moment, and then suddenly stopped and thrust it into the fire.

"I'm glad to hear it," she said, shortly.

I made no attempt at rescue, but watched the poor thing burn.

"They you are going to let me have one of yours?" I asked.

"Indeed, no such thing!" she replied, and walked off toward a group who were discussing Beerbohm Tree. I sat down beside a young lady in furs, and entered into a disquisition on motor cars, of which I know nothing. Presently, Miss Moreton passed us.

"Do you prefer a Panhard or a Mercedes?" I asked her. She paused. "I don't know the difference," she said.

"Oh, do you motor?" asked the young lady in the fur coat, with enthusiasm.

"Miss Moreton rows," said I. "She punts very well, but she's not a first-rate hand with the sculls.

"Indeed!" said Miss Moreton to me, distantly.

"At least, she's unconventional in her style," I went on. "Sometimes she catches "crabs'"

The young lady in the fur coat tittered, but Miss Moreton looked at me with displeasure.

"I don't pretend to all the accomplishments," she said.

"Nor do I, I replied. "But I can take a sort of photograph. I have one of a 'crab.'"

She was going on but hesitated. It was I who rose and bade my motoring acquaintance good-by. I walked toward my hostess and the door, but ere I reached the former I found Miss Moreton at my heels.

"What do you mean, Mr. Mallison?" she asked quickly. "Why did you talk about 'crabs' and photographs?"

"Oh, I only remembered that I took another snapshot last year," I replied.

She was silent for a moment, and then, "Please explain," she said.

"Don't you remember when you fell over and Travers picked you up?" I asked. "I was just going to take a beautiful picture of your head, and it turned ou—."

"Yes," said she, now quite rosy-red, "and what did turn out?'

"Oh, it was a picture of your heels and your——"

"How abominable of you!" she interrupted, hastily.

"But you can see your head, too," I assured her. "You're falling—I mean, leaning—backward, with a terrified but fascinating smile on your face, and your skirt is——"

"Of course, you will destroy it at once," she interposed, with her former haste.

I demurred. "It really is a very good one of you; at least, of part of you. If you could see it——"

"I don't want to see it," she broke in. "You must destroy it at once."

But it's the only thing I have of you, now you've burned that, and I indicated the fire.

"You've no right to any of me. I don't see why you want one at all," said Miss Moreton, hotly.

"I don't say I have any right," I replied meekly; "but I'm going to stick to what I have. After all, it's mine. I took it."

"It's perfectly disgraceful of you, and—and—the law," declared she, her face handsomely flushed now, and her eyes bright with anger. "It's monstrous that I—that one hasn't any command over one's own—own person."

"You hadn't any command at that moment," I said.

She cast me a fiery glance, and bit her lip as if on something she had decided to suppress. I think she determined at that moment to try diplomacy.

"Tell me," she said, in a milder voice, "tell me exactly what it's like, and how I'm—how I came out, I mean."

"Well, you know what happens when you catch a 'crab,' I replied evasively.

"Yes," she said, doubtfully. "You mean—am I—do I——?" She hesitated, almost wistfully.

"Well, you do, rather," I answered reluctantly.

"Mr. Mallison," she said, earnestly and very persuasively, putting a hand on my arm; you will destroy it, won't you?"

It was pretty; it was pathetic; it almost succeeded.

But I hardened my heart. "On one condition," I said slowly, "and it's a very easy condition. I might make much better terms."

Miss Moreton flounced away indignantly, and I proceeded on my way to her mother to make my adieux. The room was fairly empty now, and I was following a little knot of departing guests into the hall when I heard my name reiterated earnestly and softly. I turned.

"Mr. Mallison, I wish you would stay just one moment," said Miss Moreton. "I—" she hesitated, glanced about the emptying room, and then moved toward the back of it, where a little ante-chamber gave upon it through wide folding doors. I followed.

"You really mean what you say?" she asked suddenly, confronting me. I said that I did. "Very well," she said, bitterly. "It's the most atrocious conduct of you, and I'll never forget or forgive it. But——"

She angrily tossed open an album on the table, and at last stopped. I bent down, and a beautiful face on fair shoulders, crowning a pretty evening gown, looked at me with a charming smile. I looked at my companion. I wished she would smile like that at me; but even in her anger she was wonderful. Her gaze expressed coldness, distance * * * contempt.

"It's a most magnificent likeness," I breathed fervently. "It's—it's divine."

"It's said to be good," she said Miss Moreton, indifferently.

"Do you think so really?" asked Miss Moreton.

"It's your living breathing image that looks out on me," I continued.

"They do take very well, as a rule, those people," said Miss Moreton, affably.

"You can't wonder that I want it!" I exclaimed. "I'd give anything for ——"

"Well, you can take it, if you'll give me your word to destroy the —that other thing," said she, in a not unfriendly voice.

I promised, and she graciously helped me to extract the photograph from the album. I buttoned it safely over my heart in my pocket, but Miss Moreton, having completed the bargin, of course, took no more interest in the matter. She was gazing down the room at some one else. But a thought occured to her.

"You haven't shown that—that absurd snapshot to any one?' she asked, anxiously.

"Oh, no," I said "I've never printed it."

"Oh," she said; "but you said——"

"Well, you see, I could make out some patches and a foot; but I broke it, unfortunately, as I was developing it."

Miss Moreton's mouth was firm. "Mr. Mallison, give me back that photograph," she demanded.

"But I'm going to finish the breakage," I protested.

"Give it to me back at once," she insisted, advancing on me. I was driven to bay. Besides, the rest of the room might hear us.

"I'll give it back if you'll give me the original," I said, boldly, but quite low.

Miss Moreton paused; she was taken aback. Her face flushed warmly.

"I—you—oh!" she stammered. "Mr. Mallison!"

"Is it a bargain?" I asked, anxiously, holding out the photograph toward her.

She hesitated, the pretty glow still on her face, and she was not looking at me.

"You brute, you are dreadful," she said, with a tiny, troubled laugh. "But, in that case, perhaps, you'd better keep the photograph."

"On second thought, I'll take both," I said.—London Sketch.

GERMAN TOYMAKERS.

Value of Their Annual Exports Goes Up Into the Millions.

The toy industry of Germany is the subject of an interesting report to the State Department by Commercial Agent Harris at Eibenstock. The manufacture of toys in Germany is an industry which gives employment to fully 50,000 people. The total value of the annual export amounts to $12,196,386. Mr. Harris says that the prosperity of this industry, like a great many other important lines of manufacture in the German Empire, is dependent upon the importation of certain raw materials from abroad. The wood grown in the forests. Of Bavaria, Thuringia and Ergebirge is especially suitable to the industry, and that one product has had more to do with its development and stability than any of the others. The manufacture of toys in Germany has become centred chiefly in the cities of Nuremburg and Sonneberg, which cities have become famous for the quantity of their products. They supply fully 80 per cent. of all the toys exported from the empire.

Commercial Agent Harris says that the manufacture of toys has become important as a domestic or house industry among the people in the little principality of Meiningen, and the small villages near Sonneberg contain many skilled wood carvers and cabinet makers. In the village of Hammern, toy ships, large and small, are carved by persons who have never seen a sea or a navigable river. The making of doll clothing, confined chiefly to Sonneberg, is almost entirely the work of women and girls. Carnival masks are prepared in Heinersdorf, while animals and fowls are fitted up with furs and feathers in the little village of Neufang. The toy industry of Sonneberg consists mainly of papier mache goods, which are gradually pushing wax dolls out of the market. There are more than 30,000 people engaged in making toys in Sonneberg and in the villages of the Thuringian forests. Fully 75 per cent of that number work in their homes. The main difference between the industry of Sonneberg and that of Nuremburg lies in the fact that the former consists principally of the manufacture of handmade toys, supported by a highly developed house or domestic industry, while the latter manufactures toys with machinery in factories equipped with all modern appliances. The two cities are not direct competitors, for each has its own peculiar specialties, and these afford, says Mr. Harris, ample opportunities to observe how manual labor in the one, in which tradition and instinct play an important part, is pitted against the technique, mechanical skill and trained intelligence of the other. Another marked difference between the two industries is that the products of Nuremburg are principally of metal tin soldiers, swords, railway trains, fleets, models of machinery and other toys intended for boys—while Sonneberg uses almost exclusively wood, porcelain, glass and paper in the production of toys best suited to girls. The German trade, generally speaking, calls for toys of the cheaper sort, and the department stores in the large cities buy large quantities of them for advertising purposes. Agent Harris says that the future prosperity of this industry will depend very largely upon the ability of German statesmen to secure favorable commercial treaties with foreign countries.—Washington Star.

Santos Dumont 13.

M. Santos Dumont is engaged on a new balloon, "No 13," of a novel character. It is intended to make long voyages at a moderate speed by varying the ascentional force of the balloon so as to combat its caprices without the aid of ballast. His plan is not to expand or contract the gas by heat, but to employ a mixed balloon, partly gaseous, partly of the Montgolfier type, in which the ascensional force is varied by change of temperature of heated air. The vertical equilibrium of the balloon can thus be reestablished by means of a small quantity of combustible matter giving off smoke or heated fumes. The idea is not new, but it can be carried out now with less risk of setting fire to the gas bag.

The new balloon has an ovoid varnished silk gas bag 10 meters long and 14½ meters thick in the middle. It holds about 902 cubic meters of gas, and from its under side, at the middle, projects downward an egg cup or pear-shaped pocket of varnished cotton 171 cubic meters in capacity, which is virtually a small Montgolfier pocket heat and so dilate the air in it according to requirements. The burners are seven meters below the gas bag, so there is little chance of its catching fire. The balloon will be driven by a motor and a helix capable of orientation, so as to serve for steering as well as propelling it. The speed is expected to be some three of four meters a second.

The Repair Ship.

The repair ship Kamtchatka was a most important unit of Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet. She is understood to have been fitted up with every scientific appliance available for the repair of warships, and was described as being a "floating work-shop." She was launched at the new Admiralty yard, St. Petersburg, November 1, 1902. She was of 7,200 tons displacement, was capable of carrying 3,500 tons of coal and mounted six small quick-firing guns. She had transportation accommodations for thirty-two officers and 1,000 men.

Annihilated.

Tokio.—It is officially announced that Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet has been practically annihilated. Nineteen warships have been sunk or captured, and two transports and two torpedo boat destroyers have been sunk.

Nebogatoff Captured.

Tokio.—Rear Admiral Nebogatoff (former commander of the fourth division of the Pacific fleet and recently commander of the information squadron, composed of scouts and merchantmen), with 3,000 other Russians, is among the prisoners captured by the Japanese. Vice-Admiral Rojestvensky appears to have escaped.

The battle began Saturday morning and the Japanese are still in pursuit of the Russians.

Many Sunk.

Washington, D. C.—An official telegram from Tokio states that Admiral Togo reports to his government that the total losses sustained by the Russian fleet Saturday and Sunday were: Two battleships, one coast defense armor clad, five cruisers, two special service ships and three destroyers—all sunk. In addition there were captured two battleships, two coast defense armor clads, one special service ship, one destroyer and over 3,000 prisoners. Admiral Togo adds that the Japanese squadron was undamaged.

Eight Captains Drowned.

London.—A dispatch to the London Evening News from Tokio says eight captains of Russian warships were drowned during the naval battle of Saturday in the Straits of Korea.

Despair Settles Over Russia.

St. Petersburg.—At the admiralty Monday absolutely nothing was known of the naval battle in the far east except the news contained in the dispatches of the Associated Press. The general impression produced by the cable message undoubtedly was extremely gloomy. While Admiral Rojestvensky was expected to pay the price for reaching his haven at Vladivostok, the complete loss of two of his four best battleships, besides several other warships, with heavy damage to other ships which such havoc indicates, is admitted to spell disaster unless the Japanese suffered correspondingly. For this reason news from Vladivostok, where the first communication with the Russian fleet will be established, is awaited with intense anxiety. The admiralty calculates that wireless communication with Vladivostok may be established as early as this afternoon or tonight, but as all dispatches must first go to the emperor, the news is not likely to reach the public until tomorrow. It is a matter of general comment that the most reliable information received up to the time the official announcement was sent out from Tokio came by way of Washington.

Used Torpedoes.

Some of the foreign press dispatches were very confusing, but everything seems to indicate that Togo delivered a series of desperate torpedo attacks during Saturday night with the support of his heavy ships. The reported sinking of so many ships, it is believed, might also be partially due to mines sown ahead of the advancing Russian columns. The belief is also strengthened that Rojestvensky was forced, in order to secure homogeneity in speed and fighting power, to divide his fleet, only a single division passing the straits of Korea, the other going around Japan. The Straits of Korea division, however, evidently included the pick of the Russian fleet, the Borodino and Orel being two of the four best battleships. It is possible that Admiral Rojestvensky transferred his flag from the battleship Knias Souvaroff to the Borodino or Orel before the fight, in order to prevent the concentration of the fire on his own ship. Captain Sreberiannikoff, of the Borodino, and Captain Ignitieff, of the Orel, are regarded as extremely capable officers.

Black Pessimism.

Owing to the decision of the newspapers to suspend Monday publications, only telegrams are being printed on fly sheets. The Novoe Vremya alone comments editorially on the battle, under the caption, "The Hour of Fate Has Struck." The paper says: "Russia has been reproached with putting too much trust in God, sending too many ikons to the war and not enough men. The result is now, in the language of the Americans, in the hands of 'the men behind the guns.' We Russians will be patient until the full results are known."

Black pessimism reigns among the public.

Victory Is "Overwhelming."

Washington, D. C.—Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister here, has received a cablegram from his government relating to the naval engagement of Saturday and Sunday, which, he said, while lacking in detail, conveyed the information that the Japanese victory had been "absolute and overwhelming."

Judge Randolph Killed.

Montgomery, Ala.—Judge Francis C. R. Randolph, former probate judge of this county, was shot and killed Saturday afternoon by his cousin, John Randolph, in front of the latter's office. Two shots were fired from a pump gun, both taking effect. One went in the heart and the other in the neck. Either would have proven fatal. John Randolph was arrested and is now in jail.

It is understood by the friends of John Randolph that the judge had threatened his life and rumor has it that he has been living in dread of trouble for several weeks, if not months. One rumor is to the effect that Judge Randolph had written John Randolph, of whom he had demanded $500, saying that he would call on him for it and if he did not get it he would know the reason why.

This afternoon he called at the time appointed and when he made his demand with threats John Randolph drew his pistol. The judge began retreating from the office, attempting at the same time to draw his pistol. As he reached the sidewalk John Randolph fired twice, both balls taking effect. John Randolph refuses to talk.

TROUBLE IN WARSAW

Axes Used During the Big Jewish Disorders That Reigned. City Badly Stirred.

EIGHT KILLED; MANY INJURED.

Furniture and Jewelry Destroyed in the Streets—Police Refuse to Interfere With Vandals.

Warsaw, Poland.—The Jewish disorders here Thursday night which resulted in the death of four persons arose from an attempt of the Jewish socialist organization called the Bund to purge the Hebrew district of Warsaw of all disreputable persons. The Bundites with the view of expelling their undesirable co-religionists commenced to wreck disorderly houses, cafes and other resorts. The fighting spread to the surrounding streets, continued until midnight and recommenced in the morning. Occasional clashes still occurring. The Bundites have been permitted to carry on the work of destruction without any interference on the part of the authorities. Not a single policeman was visible. Occasionally a patrol of gendarmes dispersed the crowds, which, however, were immediately permitted to gather again. There has been considerable bloodshed and many injured students have been taken to the hospital. Fourteen of those wounded are reported to be dying. Many people were wounded during the fighting.

Disturbances Continue All Day.

The disturbances continued all day and were still in progress late at night. Eight persons have already been killed and 100 wounded, nineteen seriously. The damage to property has been considerable. There has been no pillaging, but the destruction of the furniture in the various houses has been absolute.

The mob, armed with axes, smashed the doors and windows and brought the furniture out on the streets, where they broke it into small pieces. The owners of the furniture in attempting to defend their belongings were attacked, beaten and even killed. Knives and revolvers were used freely and many persons were terribly injured.

The authorities took no steps to prevent the riots until late at night, when the Cossacks fired on the crowds at two points, wounding four persons.

The correspondent spent several hours in the disturbed district, but did not see a single active policeman. During the day patrols occasionally appeared, but they regarded the proceedings merely as spectators.

Extent Is Unprecedented.

The extent of the disturbances is unprecedented. The whole affair is a conflict between the respectable Jewish socialist classes and the disreputable Jewish element. There are conflicting stories as to the origin of the trouble. One report is to the effect that the respectable Jews, tired of hearing the members of their race called keepers of disorderly houses, thieves and usurers and other opprobrious names, resolved, as the police were receiving bribes for protecting disreputable houses and persons, to take the matter into their own hands. A report has it that Jewish roughs in the guise of members of the Bund were levying blackmail upon shopkeepers, thus enraging the socialists. In any case the Jews seemingly determined on a crusade against the undesirable persons of their own race, with the result that crowds of men and boys are now systematically ruining the disreputable houses.

Extraordinary scenes were witnessed late at night when the crowds visited the better sections of the city and demolished apartments filled with costly effects. Wardrobes, pianos and mirrors were thrown out of the windows. The mob in the streets left open spaces for the falling articles and then completed the work of destruction. In one place some valuable jewelry was taken out and deliberately smashed with stones.

The whole affair was carefully organized. The leaders were supplied with the addresses of the owners of disreputable houses and scarcely a single resort in Warsaw escaped destruction.

Four Prisoners Escape.

Meridian, Miss.—There was a general city jail delivery, assisted from without, at which four prisoners confined on minor charges escaped.

At Eratto, this county, during a thunder storm Thursday morning, the lightning struck a tree under which two yoke of oxen were standing in front of the house of H. L. Sanders, killing all four animals and severely shocking the inmates of the house.

Buy Big Coal Properties.

Bristol, Va.—The Clinchfield corporation of whose properties by George L. Carter, of this place, gave rise to the litigation with the Union Trust company, and other stockholders of Baltimore ending in the decision of Judge Goff, of the United States circuit court, at Richmond, in favor of Mr. Carter, has purchased the coal properties of the Interstate Coal and Iron company, aggregating 75,000 acres, lying in Russell, Dickenson, Buchanan and Wise counties, Virginia, paying for the same something over $1,500,000.

The deal has been closed and the deeds will be recorded in the county court of Russell county at Lebanon, Va., at once. The principal stockholders of the Interstate Coal and Iron company are B. S. Clark, N. 1 Cotton exchange, New York, and Thomas Clyde, of the Clyde Steamship company.

Hungary Would Stop Emigration.

Budapest, Hungary.—A bill providing the restriction of emigration has been introduced in the diet. It proposes to prohibit steamship companies from employing emigration agents, to limit their advertisements, to abolish emigration agencies and to punish those who hold out inducements to emigrants.

In agreeing to a motion referring the bill to a committee, Premier Tisza said official agents had been especial representations of steamship companies whose competition for trans-Atlantic emigration was so keen that many abuses had arisen.

Senator Tillman Injured by Fall.

Charleston, S. C.—While returning home late Thursday night to Trenton in a carriage after attending the commencement exercises of the South Carolina Co-education Institute at Edgefield, Senator Benjamin R. Tillman was driven over an embankment about 15 feet high near the campus and painfully injured, sustaining two ugly cuts on the top of his head, and being otherwise bruised.

In the carriage were Senator Tillman's daughters and Miss Bryant. None of the ladies were injured. Senator Tillman's injuries were given prompt attention and it is understood that he will not suffer any serious consequences from the fall.

Ten Buildings Wrecked.

Rockland, Mass.—Ten one-story wooden buildings of the National Fire Works Company's plant of sixty similar structures at West Hanover were destroyed by explosion in the "mixing" room.

Of the hundred persons employed in the plant, one man, Arthur Cate, was severely injured, while four girls were slightly injured by being thrown to the ground by the shock of the explosion. The plant had a similar experience about two years ago.

The monetary loss is small.

Canton State Bank Closes.

Canton, O.—The Canton State Bank, with individual deposits of more than $600,000, has closed its doors. The directors state that the bank will not be able to resume business. The failure was brought about by private loans to W. T. Davis, vice-president of the bank, by the cashier, C. B. Bachtell, without the consent of the other directors. According to the statement made by the counsel of the directors, more than $400,000 was given to Davis without adequate security being furnished to the bank. Davis has deed to the bank property valued at $200,000.

Uprising in Madagascar.
Will Move Vote of Censure.

Paris, France.—On Oriental liner, which arrived at Marseilles Thursday, reported that an insurrectionary movement recently occurred in the island of Madagascar, in which local troops were repulsed with a loss of two officers. Later the revolutionists suffered heavy losses, and when the steamer left the island the uprising was apparently crushed.

Make Crusade Against Dueling.

Hanover, Prussia.—Prince con Loewenstein, president of the antiduelling league, said at a meeting here of the northwestern branch of the organization that the movement to suppress duelling was making rapid progress. The Prussian war ministry, he added, had been won over, and now expressly permitted retired officers to join the league.

Contest Growing Warm.

Atlanta, Ga.—The contest for the next governorship is rapidly reaching a warm and interesting stage. Hoke Smith, in an interview given out in which he replies to an editorial in the Augusta Chronicle, charges that the Chronicle is under the control of railroad interests. Under these circumstances he says Editor Loyless will naturally oppose him if he becomes a candidate.

Mr. Smith further stresses the intimation which he has already made, that Clark Howell is aligned with the corporation interests.

Mr. Howell, when shown the interview, came back with an interesting retort in which he declares that Mr. Smith has blown hot and cold on the corporation question with every change of the moon. He asserts that he is ready any time to compare records on the corporation question with Mr. Smith, and that when the proper times comes he will "strip from him the sham cloak of reform that he is wearing." Mr. Howell further declares that he will prove that Mr. Smith's "corporation record is as vulnerable as his record as an attorney."

Will Not Interfere.

Washington, D. C.—President Roosevelt, as heretofore noted, has been urged to take steps looking to a goverment inquiry into the operation of life insurance companies, and especially the Equitable Life Assurance society of New York, concerning which embarrassing complications have developed during the past few months.

After careful consideration of the subject and inquiry into the legal phases of such suggested investigation, the President has determined that in the entire circumstances the government has no authority to take up the matter either through a special commission or through a bureau of corporations.

Big Will is Contested.

Chicago, Ill.—Suit to set aside the will of the late Thomas H. Wickes, vice president of the Pullman Palace Car company, has been begun here in the circuit court. According to the will Hugh P. Walden, a nephew of the testator, was made executor of the estate, and is the chief beneficiary.

The suit is brought by the three children of the deceased, Thomas H. Wickes, Jr., Mrs. Laura Annette Wickes Felt and Mrs. Florence Wickes Johnston. Demand is made that the estate be distributed according to law. The claim is made that Walden exerted undue influence and fraudulent acts and practices upon Mr. Wickes.

One Man Dead; 35 Injured.

Baltimore, Md.—William Stembler is dead and thirty-five persons are injured as a result of the collision of two trolley cars returning from Wes. Port, a suburban resort center near here, Friday morning. Others of the victims of the accident are expected to die. The last car but one had started for the city, stopping at the Western Maryland railroad crossing, while the conductor ascertained that no trains were approaching. The railroad crossing is at the bottom of a steep grade, and down this the last car for the city was approaching when the brakes failed to act. This car crashed into the one standing at the bottom of the hill, and the two were totally wrecked.

Hay Goes to Paris.

Badnauheim.—Secretary Hay has finished the course of baths here and will start Sunday for Paris, where Mrs. Hay awaits him.

Professor Grodell is quite satisfied with the effects of the taking of the baths has had on Mr. Hay, but he has advised him to abstain from all official work for several months, such a course being usually necessary as the course of treatment. Secretary Hay expects, therefore, to spend the summer at his country house and remain there until autumn.

This run is reported to be the fastest time ever made over the Southern. A citizen of Decatur was the only passenger, having chartered the train to hurry to the beside of his sick wife.

THE long expected naval battle has taken place and the Japs have everlastingly whipped the Russians destroying and capturing twenty-two of their ships. The two Russian admirals, Rojestvensky and Nebogatoff, with 3,000 men are prisoners, and the Jap victory is as complete as that of Dewey at Manilla, and, again like Dewey, the Japanese fleet escaped unscathed. Now, if Oyama can follow up with a crushing victory on land the end of the war is in sight.

"He that sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed." A more awful fulfillment of this text can scarcely be imagined than the killing of ex-Probate Judge Frank Randolph of Montgomery by his cousin, John Randolph, last Saturday. Judge Randolph had killed, in his time, two men, and in turn his life has been taken. A turbulent career is suddenly cut off, and that by his own cousin, who appears to have been affectionately disposed toward his victim. Judge Randolph must have been a man of many parts, possessing several noble traits of character, for in spite of his many mis-doings, his friends stood by him to the last. 'Tis a sad ending to what might have been a noble career.

THE WAREHOUSE COMPANY.

The two committees—one appointed by the Chilton Cotton Association: J. W. Sorrel, J. R. Sims and Tipton Mullins, and one by the County Alliance: W. H. Conway, Moses Robinson and Alex G. Dake—held a joint meeting Saturday to arrange a plan of business for the proposed stock company to operate a warehouse, ginnery and fertilizer plant to be located somewhere in Chilton county.

After discussing the matter in all its bearings, Messrs. Mullins and Dake were instructed to formulate a plan for the organization of the Company, and submit it to the Cotton Association next Saturday.

Mr. Dake was instructed to notify the several towns in the county of the proposed establishment of the plant, so that any town desiring to secure the location of the plant may submit proposals to the Committee next Saturday.

It is desired to get all the preliminary arrangements completed at once, the stock company organized and officers elected, a location secured and work commenced on the buildings at as early a date as possible so that the Company will be ready for business in the fall. A number of men have already signified their intention of taking stock, and there is very little doubt that the whole of the capital will be subscribed as soon as the list is opened.

Thorsby citizens are anxious to have the plant located in their town and, we understand, are prepared to offer inducements to the Company to make that town their headquarters.

There seems a good prospect that the company will be a success, and there is every reason to believe it can do a large business.

President Conway has invited Dr. Ross, State Chemist, to be present and make an address to the Cotton Association next Saturday.

President Seymour of the State Association has also been requested to attend this meeting; or if unable to come himself to send a good speaker in his stead.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Thursday morning of last week the State vs. Henry Johnson, charged with murder in the first degree, was called, and the morning was occupied in selecting the jury, which was finally empanelled as follows:

F A. Gulledge, Henry Splawn, James Grant, Joseph Raines, T. J. Griffin, J. M. Barnes, W. F. Deshazo, W. J. Lambert, G. W. Armstrong, B. N. Martin, J. C. Grimes, W. R. Dawson.

The examination of witnesses was commenced and, with an interval for supper, was continued until about 10:15 p.m., the court house being well lighted with three hanging lamps. All day Friday the examination was continued and again through Saturday morning, when the evidence was concluded.

Saturday afternoon Solicitor Bowling made a fair presentation of the case to the jury. Col. Stallings made an eloquent appeal for the defendant, and Col. Collier ably presented the case for the prosecution. Judge Brewer carefully charged the jury in a thoroughly impartial manner, and about five o'clock the jury retired to consider the verdict. At 11:15 the jury came into court with a verdict of guilty, and Johnson was sentenced to thirteen years imprisonment.

An appeal will be taken to the Supreme Court.

In the case of J E. McCullough, continued to next term of court, habeas corpus proceedings were at once instituted, and by agreement of Solicitor Bowling, for the State, and the defendant's attorney, Judge Reynolds fixed his bond at $1000, which was at once made and McCullough left for his home.

While the jury in the Johnson case was out, the following convicted prisoners were brought into court and sentenced:

John Will Davis, forgery, two years in penitentiary.

Cone Johnson (col.) alias Smoky Bill, burglary, 3 cases; 3 years in each case.

Anthony Golden (col.) assault to murder, 2 cases; 5 years in each case.

Major Olden (col.) grand larceny, 3 cases; 3 years in each case.

Lee Hubbard (col.) assault to murder; 2 years. In this case the minimum sentence was passed, on account of Hubbard having given information to Sheriff Morgan of an attempted escape of "Smoky Bill" from the jail, and his otherwise good conduct.

Lige Long (col.) assault with weapon; fined $10; confessed judgment.

Tompkins Littleton, disturbing religious worship; fined $20 and costs; fine remitted.

In the case of W. J. A. Melton, charged with murder in the first degree, and continued to next term of court, habeas corpus proceedings will probably be instituted within a few days.

It was shortly before midnight Saturday when court adjourned, having taken up the full twelve days allowed by law.

Judge Brewer, by his fair and impartial rulings, earned the encomiums of the bar, as well as the good will of the public.

Solicitor Bowling is a gentleman determined to do right, as such is well thought of by all with whom he came in contact.

Quality vs. Quantity.

Hard muscles and strong body do not depend on the quantity of food you eat, but on its perfect digestion and proper assimilation. When you take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure your system gets all the nourishment out of all the food you eat. It digests what you eat regardless of the condition of the stomach and conveys the nutrient properties to the blood and tissues. This builds up and strengthens the entire system. Kodol cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Belching, Sour Stomach, Weak Heart, etc. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for what is sometimes called America's national disease—Dyspepsia—is destined to eventually work a wonderful and lasting benefit to sufferers from this distressing and mind harassing condition. METHODS OF TEACHING.

"In the beginning of the Sunday school movement the schools were semi-religious only. In the Sunday schools established by Mr. Raikes and his associates, the subjects taught were "reading, writing and the catechism." In America the first schools were established in 1786 and in a short while were adopted by all the evangelical churches, with one exception. The workers in America soon realized that the Sunday school should be in closer connection with the church and the congregation, so the secular features, reading and writing, and the custom of paying the teachers soon disappeared from the American schools and gradually from those in Europe. With this change a decided religious cast was given the whole institution. Revivals of religion became frequent and the churches and congregations connected with them felt the impulse of a new life. A new era was inaugurated and an epoch introduced from which the church historians date the beginning of the great revival period of modern times

The development of the germinal Sunday school idea is marked by several degrees of progress. First, the era of teaching only poor children and for the most part secular studies. Second, the period when memorizing the language of the Scriptures raged and marvelous feats were performed by some children who memorized whole books of the Bible in a few weeks. Then came a series of lesson systems—the Limited Lesson Scheme, consisting of select Scripture lessons printed on cards. Later, "Selected Lessons" and an era of "Question Books," supplemented by a series called the "Orange Judd System," and after a time the "Berean Lessons" by Dr. Vincent published in 1865. Thus it took nearly one hundred years of change and improvement to develop the "International Lesson" system now in universal use.

B. F. Jacobs of Chicago, conceived the idea of a uniform lesson, not for one locality or one denomination, but for the whole country, and this plan was enthusiastically endorsed by the National Sunday School Convention in 1872, in Indianapolis.—"Sunday School History"—Cunnyngham.

A SCHOLARLY SUNDAY SERMON BY THE REV. JOHN C. AGAR.

Subject: The First Temptation.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Sunday morning, in the Church of the New Jerusalem (Swedenborgian), the pastor, the Rev. John C. Ager, preached on "The First Temptation." The text was from Matthew iv:1-4: "Then was Jesus led up into the desert by the spirit, to be tempted by the devil. And having fasted forty days and forty nights, he after that was hungry. And the tempter came to Him and said, If thou art the Son of God speak, in order that these stones may become loaves. But He answering said, It has been written, Not by bread alone shall a man live, but by every word that goeth forth from the mouth of God." Mr. Ager said:

The gospel of Matthew describes specifically three temptations of the Lord in the wilderness immediately after His baptism. The form of the narrative suggests at once that these stories are not history, but are parables, which picture the three general ways in which fallen humanity is approached and enticed by infernal influences. And when so understood they become in the fullest sense a revelation of divine truth to men. And so understood they suggest at once that there is some sort of threefoldness in our spiritual experiences. And when we examine our spiritual experiences carefully we are able to distinguish in our inner life three distinct planes of thought and feeling.

The first or lower of these three planes of life we are all familiar with. It includes all thoughts and feelings, all motives and impulses and appetites that have reference exclusively to our life in this world. This we call the natural man.

Distinctly above this lies what we call ordinarily the religious life. Its thoughts and feelings and motives have primary reference to those interests that outlive our life in this world. Its largest and dominant factors are faith, conviction and duty. Faith and conviction are beliefs, though beliefs have been touched and quickened by religious emotion. Duty is the conduct that belief or faith or conviction imposes; that is, the dominion of truth over the lower impulses and appetites. Consequently this realm of the life is predominantly intellectual. Its dominant impulse is love of truth and loyalty to truth. It lies distinctly above the natural man and is called the spiritual man.

These two realms of thought, feeling and action we can easily distinguish. They make up the twofold life of every man who is honestly trying to live a true life in the world. But they evidently do not include the highest spiritual possibilities of human life. There is another realm of life clearly set before us in the divine word, although few Christians know practically much about it. It is, in fact, the essence of all religious life. It is the life that is defined and enjoined in the two great commandments, to love the Lord our God with all our heart and soul and mind and strength, and to love our neighbor as ourselves. This means that the essence of the heavenly life is love and whenever that gains possession of us, faith, conviction and duty will all be swallowed up in love. We shall see with the eyes of love and act always from the impulse of love. Love going upward to God and outward to man will be the sole motive power of the life. This is the highest state of man, the highest attainment of human nature, and may very properly be termed distinctively the heavenly or celestial life.

There are, then, three distinct regions of life in us. The complete man is a three-storied being. Consequently there must be a corresponding threefoldness in all our spiritual experiences. And it is this distinction that is pictured in these three typical temptations of our Lord. The first is a type of the temptations that belong to the lower or natural degree of the mind, the second to spiritual and the third to the celestial or heavenly.

The first temptation is pictured as an appeal to a physical appetite. After the forty days and nights of fasting Jesus was hungry and there was nothing to satisfy His hunger, and it is suggested by the tempter that He convert into loaves of bread some of the stones that covered the ground.

This physical picture has very evidently a spiritual meaning, which deals not with the mere body and its cravings, but with the essential man and his cravings and requirements. It deals with the most universal fact of human nature, which is hunger. From the merely material activities of his physical body up to the highest activity of his spiritual nature man is, in a sense, a mere bundle of hungers. And this is true because he is merely a recipient; and every minutest vesicle of both body and soul is a mouth clamoring to be fed. But it is only a small part of this universal hunger that we are conscious of. As in the body some of the more general organs make us conscious of their needs when they are not supplied, while the needs of the numberless smaller organs and vesicles are met by physical processes that we are wholly unconscious of, so of the universal hunger of the spirit only a small part ever falls within our consciousness. And this is so because the Lord requires of us only so much as He must require of us to make us images and likenesses of Himself. To be that it is necessary that we should contribute to our life a certain measure of activity and effort and co-operation and reciprocation. And to secure that, some of the more external hungers of the body and of the mind appeal to us strongly enough to prompt us to such action as is necessary to satisfy them.

But in our present condition all the hungers of our natural life are more or less perverted hungers, which seek for perverted and unhealthy satisfactions. And this we begin to recognize as soon as we begin to see what the true life of man is. The first evils the truth reveals to us are the indulgences of wrong appetites, and passions, and cravings, and the first task the truth imposes on us is to refuse to these wrong hungers or cravings the satisfaction they demand.

This repudiation of these cravings we should find a hard task to begin with if we were not helped in it by a counteracting hunger. Among the sweetest of the satisfactions in life is the approval of those whose approval we prize. And our strong hunger for this approval makes it easy for us to discard reprehensible indulgences and pleasures.

This is, of course, a purely selfish aim, and yet any aim or effort, even so dubious a one as this, to see what is evil in our life and to put it away, opens the mind to more and higher truth, which brings all things into clearer light, and this higher truth makes clear to us that disreputable evils are not the only evils we have to deal with, that there are many practices that are approved of and freely indulged in by the world about us that are sins we no longer tolerate, so our clarified conscience now demands that our life shall be purged of these conventional and reputable evils. And in this task we are not helped by the approval of public opinion. But there is another selfish satisfaction that does help us. It is the sweet satisfaction of feeling that we are good and are deserving of all the happiness the Lord has in store for all who are good. This feeling takes many forms in the mind, but in general it is the feeling that we are as virtuous as most of those we know and far more virtuous and kindly and self-denying than very many whom we know. This is the sweetest satisfaction our merely natural life is capable of, and in many wonderful ways it holds us up to the work of repressing external evils and discarding all lower satisfactions.

So, when the hunger for a better life has been thus far quickened in us, this is the way in which we are always tempted to satisfy it. It is described here as a temptation to make the stones of the desert into bread. The stones of the desert are the aspect that spiritual truth takes on when it is apprehended by the natural mind or the self-life. This is the aspect that spiritual truth takes on in the letter of the word, which is truth adapted to the lowest spiritual needs of men. There reward and punishment are presented as the motives for refraining from evil and doing right. It is an appeal to what is called enlightened selfishness.

This aspect of the truth is necessary to start us on the way toward the heavenly life. But to convert these stones into bread is to be permanently satisfied with these purely selfish aspects of truth and with this selfish stage of right living, this doing right and refraining from wrong doing for the sake of the approval of others, and for the sake of the self-satisfaction it affords. To stop at this point, to be content with this attainment, which is a temptation that confronts us all again and again, is to appropriate to ourselves the letter that killeth and to shut our eyes to the spirit that maketh alive. For it is making the letter of the food into bread in this way that makes it destructive of spiritual life.

The Lord's answer to the tempter teaches us how we must meet this temptation. This answer is quoted from His words of warning to the children of Israel when they had just passed through their forty years of trial in the wilderness. To them He said, "Thou shalt remember all the ways which the Lord thy God hath led thee these forty years in the desert. * * * And He suffered thee to hunger, and fed thee with manna, which thou knewest not; neither did thy fathers know that He might make thee know that man doth not live by bread only, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord doth man live."

These words, now quoted in part by the Lord as His reply to the tempter, contain the truth by which this temptation must always be met. The temptation is to permit ourselves to rest in the sense of our own goodness and to go on multiplying our good works of all kinds and refraining from all outward evils, that we may multiply our spiritual riches and increase and deepen our self satisfaction.

This is the besetting temptation in the religious life of our time. As the old falsity of faith alone has faded out of religious belief, this more subtle and attractive falsity has taken its place. Goodness is everywhere being made the test and measure of religious character with very little regard for the quality of the goodness.

To this temptation the divine answer is: "Not by bread alone shall man live." Man can no more live by charity or good works alone, which are symbolized by bread than he can live by faith alone. What man must live by is every word that goeth forth from the mouth of God. We live by getting our life into its true relation to the divine life. And that cannot be done by recognizing this or that particular aspect of truth and trying to live by that. It can be done only by an earnest and persistent effort to shape all our thinking and all our willing and all our doing by every word that goeth forth from the mouth of God.

The Discouraged Man.

Discouragement cuts the nerve of present effort and darkens the sky of hope for better things. The evangelist who coined the phrase, "God cannot use a discouraged man," was a wise preacher; he might also have said that the world has no use for a discouraged man. Booker T. Washington, in his "Up From Slavery," gives the keynote of his own success in the following sensible words: "I do not recall that I ever became discouraged over anything that I set out to accomplish. I have begun everything with the idea that I could succeed, and I never had much patience with the multitudes of people who are always ready to explain why one cannot succeed." Such a spirit will carry one through every difficulty, and over every obstacle. Speaking of a young man who was to come, an old prophet said: "He shall not fail or be discouraged." The reason he did not fail was because he refused to be discouraged. The old doggerel, "O, do not be discouraged," had a big message even though it was wretched poetry and worse music. The sky is ever dark to him who keeps his eyes on the ground!—Service.

Marching Orders.

The Duke of Wellington called the "Go ye into all the word and preach the Gospel," the Christian's "marching orders." The old soldier saw clearly that the command of the Commander-in-Chief was to His followers to engage in the work of recruiting. The obligation to win men to Christ is the immediate and imperative duty of every Christian. It is his first business in the world.

DYNAMITE CAUSES HAVOC

Steel Drawbridge Over Hackensack River Wrecked.

MANY BUILDINGS ARE DAMAGED

Dwelling Houses at Stroudsburg, Pa., and Others in New York City Shaken on the Same Day—A Few Persons Slightly Injured—Causes Not Definitely Known—Trains Held Up.

New York City.—The new steel drawbridge of the Pennsylvania Railroad over the Hackensack River, at the foot of Newark avenue, Jersey City, was blown up by dynamite at 1.30 o'clock in the morning.

The extent of the explosion was not definitely known by the railroad officials at 3 o'clock.

The explosion was terrific. It made a big noise in the centre of Jersey City, three or four miles from the bridge.

The river at the point where the bridge crossed is 200 feet wide.

The bridge was not complete. No trains had, of course, been on it. The old bridge, which the new structure paralleled, is still in use.

As far as the railroad men heard at 3 a. m. nobody was hurt.

What caused the explosion Pennsylvania officials said they did not know. They said that no labor troubles had arisen from the work on the bridge. The explosion might have been an accident, they said.

As soon as the railroad police heard of the explosion they sent word to the police of all the near-by towns requesting that all suspicious characters be rounded up and held.

Sergeant Maher, of the West Thirty-seventh street station, was entering the pedigree of a prisoner about 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon when his chair began to rock. Simultaneously he heard a loud detonation like thunder. When he had collected his wits he decided that there had been an explosion somewhere in the neighborhood and hurried out the reserves.

The explosion was near Thirty-first street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, in the great open space between the North River and Sixth avenue and Thirty-first and Thirty-third streets. Several accidents have occurred there since the blasting began for the foundations of the great Pennsylvania Railroad station. This last touched the top notch, however, in the damage it did. Nobody was seriously hurt, but several persons were toppled over, one old woman was prostrated, pictures were shaken from the walls, statuary from shelves, and about 500 panes of glass shattered.

The block on Thirty-first street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, suffered most. The excavating is being done close up to these buildings, and the fronts of most of them had already been blown in before yesterday's accident.

Miss Amelia Pope, who lives at No. 344 with her mother and sister, was dressing in her room on the third floor about 3.30 o'clock. She happened to look out of the window, which overlooks the torn-up space.

"I saw a little wooden box standing on a rocky point," she said, "and it was burning. 'I hope it isn't dynamite,' I said to myself. But the idea had hardly come into my head when it blew up with a terrible report. I was thrown off my feet."

A little to the west, in the house at 358, live Morgan Williams and his wife. Mr. Williams is seventy years old and his wife sixty-eight. Mrs. Williams was prostrated by the shock. Mrs. Frederick, who lives at 362, was thrown out of bed.

The police had a hard time of it trying to get at the cause of the explosion. The first policeman who undertook the investigation interviewed almost every foreman he could find connected with the New York Construction Company, and went back to the still nervous Sergeant Maher confessing that he could learn nothing.

Another policeman learned that across the excavation a track has been laid on which runs a little steam engine used for hauling stones and dirt. Sparks from this engine, which runs close by the spot where Miss Pope saw the box, he deduced, set the box on fire. It contained explosives and the crash followed.

Store Blown Up.

Stroudsburg, Pa.—A dynamite explosion occurred early in the morning in the store building of Councilman H. W. Kistler, and fire which followed destroyed the building and its contents. The explosion and fire caused $20,000 damage. The shock of the explosion was felt many blocks away.

It is believed that some one blew up the store out of revenge on Mr. Kistler. A year ago Mr. Kistler shot a burglar, and the man's friends declared they would square accounts with him. In the last two months the town has suffered no fewer than thirty small robberies, and Councilman Kistler has taken an active part in bringing the guilty persons to justice.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR JUNE 11.

Subject: The Message of the Risen Christ, Rev. i., 10-20—Golden Text, Rev. i., 18—Memory Verses, 17, 18—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

I. John receives a message (vs. 10, 11). 10. "In the Spirit." Under the influence of the Spirit, and filled and quickened by the Spirit. "The Lord's day." The day made sacred to all Christians for all time by the resurrection of Jesus from the dead. It was the day of light and salvation. John arrived in Patmos late Saturday evening, spent the night in prayer, and with the opening Sunday morning the glorified Saviour opened heaven to his vision. Why is our Sabbath the first day of the week? We see here the apostles kept the first day and, because of its sanctity, called it the Lord's day. "Behind me," etc. This was his first intimation of the presence of Christ, who spoke with a voice like a trumpet.

11. "Alpha and Omega." Omitted in R. V. These are the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet. This is a figurative expression, used to show that Christ was the "source and the consummation" of all things. He is from eternity to eternity. "What thou seest." The prophetic vision that was revealed to him on that Lord's day. "Write." What if John had not written? The command to write is given twelve times in the Apocalypse. "A book." A parchment roll. Ancient books were made of papyrus, or from the prepared skins of animals, and rolled upon a roller. "Seven churches." "Seven" denotes perfection. Doubtless there were hundreds of churches in Asia Minor at that time. The reason why seven only are mentioned is because the church is the bride of Christ, and seven is the sanctified number always representing Christ. "In Asia." A small province in Asia Minor called Asia, of which Ephesus was the capital. "Ephesus." Mentioned first because the church here was the largest.

II. A vision of the glorified Redeemer (vs. 12-16). 12. "The voice." He turned to see who it was that spoke, the word "voice" being used to signify the person speaking. "Golden candlesticks." Compare Zech. 4:2-11. Lampstands would be a better term. Not one candlestick with seven branches, but seven candlesticks. The independence of the churches of Christ is consistent with the unity of the church of Christ.

13. "In the midst." Showing Christ's presence among His people. "The Son of Man." Compare Daniel 7:13. This term is used here because His glory might hide from view His oneness of sympathy with His people. "A garment." This is a description of the long robe worn by the high priest. Jesus is our high priest in heaven. "Girt—golden girdle." He was girt around the breast (R. V.) as "a sign of kingly repose." It represented "the breastplate of the high priest, on which the names of His people are engraven."

14. "White like wool." Wool is supposed to be an emblem of eternity. The whiteness signified antiquity, purity and glory. With Christ His hoary head was no sign of decay. Compare Dan. 7:9; 10:6. The whiteness, three times mentioned (white, white wool, snow), is greatly intensified, and denotes unlimited age, even eternity. "His eyes," etc. This certifies His omniscience. The eye is the receptacle of knowledge and symbolizes all the senses.

15. "Burnished brass" (R. V.) This denotes His stability and strength. His feet are like brass when in the furnace and subjected to a very great heat. His feet were "strong and steadfast, supporting His own interest, subduing His enemies and treading them to powder." His voice." Described the same in Ezek. 43:2. He will make Himself heard; it is a commanding voice that must be obeyed; it is terrible in its denunciation of sin.

16. "In His right hand." The "right hand" is an emblem of power. "Seven stars." These stars are the faithful preachers of the gospel. "A sharp two-edged sword." His word which both wounds and heals and strikes at sin on the right hand and on the left. This wonderful sword has two edges, sharp as God's lightning—the edge that saves and the edge that destroys. Compare Heb. 4:12; Eph. 6:17. The sharpness of the sword represents the searching power of the word. "As the sun." We know of nothing brighter than the sun shining in his strength.

III. Words of comfort and explanation (vs. 17-20). 17. "As dead." His countenance was too bright and dazzling for mortal eyes to behold, and John was completely overpowered with the glory in which Christ appeared. Compare Ezek. 1:28; Dan. 8:17. "Right hand upon me." His hand of power and protection, in which the churches were held. "Fear not." There is no occasion to fear when in the presence of Christ. 18. "The Living One" (R. V.) The source of all life—the One who possesses absolute life in Himself. "Was dead." I became a man and died as a man; I am the same one you saw expire on the cross. "I am alive." Having broken the bands of death, I am alive "for evermore." "The keys." An emblem of power and authority. "Of death and of hades" (R. V.) Hades is a compound Greek word, meaning the unseen world, and including both heaven and hell. Gehenna is the Greek word which always means hell, and nothing else. Christ has power over life, death and the grave. He is able to destroy the living and to raise the dead. 19. "Hast seen." The visions He has just seen. "Which are." The actual conditions of the seven churches. See chapters 2 and 3. "Which shall be." In the future of the church.

20. "The mystery." Write the mysterious—the "secret and sacred" meaning of what you have seen. "The angels." The ministers and pastors.

Ex-Confederate Dead.

Lexington, Ky.—Rev. Ben Bigstaff, former chaplain of the Confederate Home at Peewee Valley, Ky., died here Friday of apoplexy, aged sixty-five years. Rev. Mr. Bigstaff was with General John Morgan in all his campaigns. After the war he became a preacher. To resigned as chaplain at the Confederate Home and returned to the mountain people to preach. He was known all over the South.

MUFFINS.

One pint of milk; two well beaten eggs; two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, sufficient flour to make it the consistency of cake. Have your muffin rings hot before putting in the mixture. Bake in a quick oven. Serve hot.

GRAHAM PUFFS.

One pint of graham flour, one pint of milk, one egg, a little salt. Beat thoroughly the egg, and the milk, then the flour, into which has been mixed one even teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat all together for five minutes and pour into well buttered hot gem pans. Bake in a very hot oven.

RUSK.

Three eggs; one cake of yeast, one cup of sugar, one large cup of sweet milk, two even tablespoonfuls of butter, a little salt. Warm the milk and dissolve the yeast in it, add the eggs well-beaten, then the sugar. Rub the butter in the flour, using only flour enough to make a soft dough. Set it in a warm place to rise. When very light, knead it and cut into shape. Let it rise again and when very light bake in a quick oven. Dissolve a little sugar in milk. When the rusks are a nice brown brush over them lightly with the melted sugar.

INDIAN DAL.

To one cupful of the lentils allow a cupful each of milk and water. Soak the lentels in this over night. Make a curry sauce by browning a minced onion in a large tablespoonful of butter, and adding a desertspoonful of curry powder. Add the lentils with the milk and water, in which they have been soaked, season with salt and pepper, cover and cook slowly for two hours. At the last moment squeeze in the juice of half a lemon. Serve with a border of hot boiled rice.

FRUIT MINCE PIE.

A cup of raisins chopped after being stoned; half a cup of chopped figs and the same quantity of currants and cut citron, each; three-quarters cup molasses, half cup brown sugar, half cup cracker crumbs; one-third cup lemon juice, two eggs well beaten, one-quarter teaspoonful salt. Use spice if you desire, and the kinds you prefer.

SAVORY BUTTER.

Savory butter is made by using some desired savory ingredient in fresh butter. You buy either the unsalted butter or wash from the salted butter all the salt possible as when you are making some kinds of paste, and then you rub into it with a silver knife or spoon such essence or flavoring as you like. Anchovy essence, Worcestershire sauce, onion juice, chopped Spanish pepper or parsley, or any one of a hundred things. Then this butter is used for spreading bread for sandwiches or for putting on some kinds of hot meat or fish.

HARLEQUIN PUDDING.

Ornament the bottom and sides of a mold with glace cherries cut in halves and strips of angelica. Into the center of the mold put some crumbs of fresh sponge cake; have the mold about two-thirds filled with the crumbs. Have a good boiled custard, flavored to suit, and have enough gelatine in it to make it firm. Pour this into the mould over the cake crumbs, cover the mold and set away to cool and harden. Unmold when serving, and arrange around it small cubes of quince jelly.

USEFUL HINTS.

Soapbark jelly is the best all round cleansing agent that a woman can keep on hand. It may be prepared by putting a handful of soapbark in a quart of boiling water and letting it cool.

The best way to remove sand and grit from small fruit, when washing is necessary, is to lay the fruit loosely in a clean basket and dip the basket in fresh clean water.

A thin coating made of three parts lard, melted with one part resin, and applied to stoves and grates, will prevent their rusting.

In roasting pork sour apples are sometimes baked with the meat like potatoes. They should be placed on a wire rack to keep them out of the fat. The apples are served with the roast and take the place of apple sauce.

To keep a spoon in position when desirous of dropping medicine into it, and requiring both hands to hold the bottle and cork, place the handle between the leaves of a closed book lying upon a table.

Silver spoons and forks which are in daily use may be kept bright by leaving them once a week in strong borax water for several hours. The water should be nearly boiling when the silver is put into it.

Lime water will sweeten jars and jugs which soap and water fail to cleanse. It is admirable for cleansing milk vessels and nursing bottles.

With boiled salmon, cream sauce, plain boiled rice is very good. Many prefer it to potato. There really is no reason why any vegetable should be served with the fish course. Its sauce is quite sufficient.

Nothing cleans a doughy rolling pin so easily as a wire dish-cloth. That same wire dish-cloth is the greatest labor saver you can have in the kitchen.

The Sensation in Her Knees.

Erma was riding with her father. They reached the railroad track just in time to cross before a freight train rumbled by. Little Erma was quite frightened to hear the train so close. In telling about it she said:

"My knees were just dizzy when we got over that track."—Little Chronicle.

Preparedness.

Begin the morning by saying to thyself, I shall meet the busybody, the ungrateful, arrogant, deceitful, envious and unsocial, but I, who have seen the nature of the good, that it is beautiful, and that of the bad, that it is ugly, can be injured by none of them.—Marcus Aurelius.

Smallest Republics.

St. Goust, scarcely two square miles in area, is the smallest self-governed state in the world. It is situated on a rocky mountain top about 150 miles from Andorra, in the Bassas Pyrenees. Its population is about 130. Another miniature republic is Tavolara, an island about five miles long and half a mile wide, situated off the north coast of Sardinia. It contains about seventy inhabitants.

The Smallest Monarchy.

The sovereign who reigns over the smallest monarchy in the world is the king of the Cocos, a group of islands near Sumatra. These islands were discovered about eight hundred years ago, but were comparatively little known until 1825, when Mr. Rose, an Englishman, visited them, was struck by their beauty and took up his abode there. It is his grandson, George Reiss, who now holds sway over the Cocos.

Just Discrimination in Railway Rates.

All railroad men qualified to speak on the subject in a responsible way are likely to agree with President Samuel Spencer, of the Southern Railway, when he says: "There is no division of opinion as to the desirability of stopping all secret or unjustly discriminatory devices and practices of whatsoever character."

Mr. Spencer, in speaking of "unjustly discriminatory" rates and devices, makes a distinction which is at once apparent to common sense. There may be discrimination in freight rates which is just, reasonable and imperatively required by the complex commercial and geographical conditions with which expert rate makers have to deal. To abolish such open and honest discrimination might paralyze the industries of cities, States and whole sections of our national territory.

This distinction between just and unjust discrimination is clearly recognized in the conclusions of the International Railway Congress, published yesterday:

> "Tariffs should be based on commercial principles, taking into account the special conditions which bear upon the commercial value of the services rendered. With the reservation that rates shall be charged without arbitrary discrimination to all shippers alike under like conditions, the making of rates should as far as possible have all the elasticity necessary to permit the development of the traffic and to produce the greatest results to the public and to the railroads themselves."

The present proposal is, as Mr. Walker D. Hines, of Louisville, showed in his remarkable testimony the other day before the Senate Committee at Washington, to crystalize flexible and justly discriminatory rates into fixed Government rates which cannot be changed except by the intervention of some Government tribunal, and by this very process to increase "the temptation to depart from the published rate and the lawful rate in order to meet some overpowering and urgent commercial condition."—New York Sun.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

An Illinois judge rules in effect that in killing a college student a railroad did the boy's parents a good turn because "he was an expense to them," which is now ended. The decision seems to better that of the Jersey court which valued a child's life at $1.

The death of Joseph Jefferson revives memories of the intolerance which gave "The Little Church Around the Corner" its fame. It is interesting to note concerning the present ecclesiastical attitude toward the actor that Sir Charles Wyndham was received in audience by the Pope recently.

Two citizens of Oklahoma have offered, for $1,000 each, to allow themselves to be scalped as a feature of a Wild West show. A man who is willing to be scalped for a financial consideration ought to be accommodated.

Automobiling is now recommended as a cure for insomnia, says the New York Evening World. It is said that "the after sensations seem to be much the same as those caused by massage." The only objection to the process is the increasing number of innocent pedestrians incidentally "put to sleep."

If the greatest study of mankind is man, the next greatest study is the soil; for upon the soil depends the preservation of man, says Cyril G. Hopkins. If it is true that American agriculture is the fundamental support of the American nation, it is equally true that soil fertility is the absolute support of American agriculture. If he who makes two blades of grass grow where but one grew before is a public benefactor; then he who reduces the fertility of the soil so that but one ear of corn grows where two have been grown is a public curse.

The unveiling of a monument to the memory of Gambetta at Bordeaux was a tardy recognition of the claims of that great Frenchman upon the gratitude of his countryman, states the New York Times. That Gambetta had defects of temperatment and even of character is only too true, but he rendered two great services to France. More than any other one man he supplied France with the political organization that made the republic possible after the fall of the empire, and more than any one man he developed the constructive policy by which order and security were obtained under the republic and the popular longing for a "strong man" was replaced by a sense of safety under representative institutions.

The Minnesota Experiment Station has discovered that the cow suffers from the characteristic disease of twentieth century civilization, nervous overstrain. She has temperament. She is over-civilized. "The high strung cow has no place in the dairy scheme; she should be eliminated," writes Professor Haecker. The St. Paul Globe says: "We think somebody will strike a blow for this exotic type of cow. We have sufficient confidence in the world to believe that it is a respecter of even bovine aspirations, that a vulgar consideration for cream and steaks will not militate against the development of the aesthetic nature of the cud chewer, that she will not become the victim of heartless unrelenting science."

The Nashville American thinks that the mercenary spirit is growing; that we are tending more and more to measure everybody and everything by money. It pleads for and looks forward to a higher standard: We are living and have been living in a period of wealth-developing, of money-making, of industrialism and commercialism in which have grown up colossal fortunes through the development of the enormous natural advantages of this wonderful country. In such a period of industrialism success is apt to be measured by individual wealth or earning capacity. But we shall come more and more to understand and appreciate the true standard; to estimate men, not in dollars and cents, but according to their real worth. The world's greatest benefactors have been men who lived and died poor in material wealth. The scholar, the patriot, the statesman, the artist, the scientist, the teacher, the moral exemplar, these in the greatness of their work, make the mere money grubber seem meanly small.

A Monentary Problem.

A man in Chicago has 500 cents which he can't spend, can't sell, can't melt up, can't give away, and which he can't even keep. At least if he does any of these things he is breaking the law, and he hasn't figured out the answer yet. He is proprietor of a number of penny-in-the-slot machines, and the 500 pennies are the mutilated coin that the machines have accepted in six months without his consent. He can't sell them for junk copper, because they are bad money; he can't pass them off as pennies for the reason that they are bad pennies and might cause him to pass some time in jail, and if he keeps them he is liable for carrying bad money. Technically, the owner of the pennies violates the law whatever he does with them.—Kansas City Journal.

The two sides of a person's face are never alike, according to the Indianapolis News.

Teutonic Enterprise.

Prince Bismarck, it is said, once had to confer the Iron Cross on a hero in the ranks one day, and, thinking to try his humor on the man, he said: "I am authorized to offer you instead of the cross 100 thalers. What do you say?" "What is the cross worth?" quietly asked the man. "About 3 thalers." "Very well, then, your highness, I'll take the cross and 97 thalers."

Length of Rivers.

The longest river in the world is the Nile, 4,000 miles; in Europe the Volga, 2,114 miles; in Asia the Yangtse Kiang, 3,160 miles; in America, the Mississippi-Missouri, 3,656 miles; in Australia, the Murray, 2,350 miles. The shortest important river in the world is the Thames, 215 miles.

Cuban Shells, Tortoise Values.

The value of shells, tortoise and others, gathered in Cuba during the past year, amounted to about $75,000, and of sponges $50,000. Of the latter the States received about thirty-five per cent. and Europe the remainder, France being the principal buyer.

Experiments With Oats.

Experiments in raising oats made in England on land with and without manure indicated that the increase in grain and straw is worth about twice the cost of the fertilizers employed in producing it.

The British mint has been busily engaged in coining farthings to encourage thrift in the colonies. By introducing the smallest coin of the realm a saving can be effected on purchases of small quantities of goods.

White women are scarce in the German colonies; there are only 254 in East Africa and 229 in the German islands in the Pacific ocean.

The curiosities of Vienna include a small dog, which, having been born without front legs, has learned to walk about on its hind legs.

EVERY WALK IN LIFE.

A. A. Boyce, a farmer living three and a half miles from Trenton, Mo., says: "A severe cold settled in my kidneys and developed so quickly that I was obliged to lay off work on account of the aching in my back and sides. For a time I was unable to walk at all, and every makeshift I tried and all the medicine I took had not the slightest effect. My back continued to grow weaker until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and I must say I was more than surprised and gratified to notice the backache disappearing gradually until it finally stopped."

Are the Packers Receiving Fair Play?

When the Garfield report on the business methods of the packers appeared, after eight months' investigation, it was severely criticised and roundly denounced. After three months of publicity it is significant that those who attempted to discredit it have failed to controvert the figures contained in that exhaustive document. The public is beginning to notice this omission, and the feeling is rapidly growing that the sensational charges out of which the "Beef Investigation" arose were without foundation. If the official statements of the report are susceptible of contradiction, a good many people are now asking why the facts and figures are not furnished to contradict them.

The truth seems to be that most of the charges contain unfounded sensational assertions. A flagrant example of this appeared in a recent article in an Eastern magazine, to the effect that "forty Iowa banks were forced to close their doors in 1903-4 by the Beef Trust's manipulation of cattle prices." Chief Clerk Cox of the banking department of the Iowa State Auditor's office, has tabulated the list of banks given in the magazine article and has publicly denounced the statement as utterly untrue. He gives separately the reasons for each failure mentioned and officially states that they have been caused by unwise speculations and by reckless banking methods. It may be well to suspend judgment upon the packers until the charges against them are proved.

MRS. M. BRICKNER.

"A short time ago I found my condition very serious. I had headaches, pains in the back, and frequent dizzy spells which grew worse every month. I tried two remedies before Peruna, and was discouraged when I took the first dose, but my courage soon returned. In less than two months my health was restored."—Mrs. M. Brickner.

The reason of so many failures to cure cases similar to the above is the fact that diseases peculiar to the female sex are not commonly recognized as being caused by catarrh.

FEMALE TROUBLE NOT RECOGNIZED AS CATARRH.

Catarrh of one organ is exactly the same as catarrh of any other organ. What will cure catarrh of the head will also cure catarrh of the pelvic organs. Peruna cures these cases simply because it cures the catarrh.

If you have catarrh write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Origin of Japanese Alphabet.

Baron Kaneko says that the invention of forty-seven letters by Mabie in 735 A. The alphabet is called "shin kana."

Sardis.

The health of our community is very good. Crops look fine but grass is better. The farmers are trying hard to overcome evil with good, the grass with hoes.

Miss Covie Broadhead has gone to visit her aunt, Miss Bessie Hayes, in Prattville.

A good many of our people have been attending court; it goes against the grain as they are needed so badly at home on the crops. Why couldn't they have court in lay-by time when the farmers are idle.

Our pastor, Bro. Jones, will not be here his next appointment as he is out West visiting relatives.

Our Sabbath school is progressing nicely, everyone is trying to excel the other. Guess we will have a children's day the fourth Sunday in June, then we can see who will excell.

I noticed in last week's Banner, a short sketch from Sardis, and the writer assuming the name of Viola. Viola never that, someone has taken the authority to sign Viola's name without her consent. —I am VIOLA.

The health of our community is generally good. Farmers are getting along very well with their crops, although we have had so much rain; we have had a few pretty days to bat heads with Gen Green, and if it continues pretty weather another week most of us will be ready to preach his funeral.

REVIEW OF REVIEWS

The more Magazines there are, the more Indispensable is The Review of Reviews

"Indispensable." "The one magazine I feel I must take." "The world under a field-glass." "An education in public affairs and current literature."—these are some of the phrases one hears from noted people who read the Review of Reviews. The more magazines there are, the more necessary is the Review of Reviews, because it brings together the best that is in all the most important monthlies of the world. Such is the flood of periodical literature that nowadays people say that the only way to keep up with it is to read the Review of Reviews. Entirely over and above this reviewing section, it has more original matter and illustrations than most magazines, and the most timely and important articles printed in any monthly.

Probably the most useful section of all is Dr. Albert Shaw's illustrated "Progress of the World," where public events and issues are authoritatively and lucidly explained in every issue. Many a subscriber writes, "This department alone is worth more than the price of the magazine." The unique cartoon department, depicting current history in caricature, is another favorite. The Review of Reviews covers five continents, and yet is American, first and foremost.

Men in public life, the members of Congress, professional men, and the great captains of industry who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided that it is "indispensable."

Cuban Diarrhoea

U. S. Soldiers who served in Cuba during the Spanish war know what this disease is, and that ordinary remedies have little more effect than so much water. Cuban diarrhoea is almost as severe and dangerous as a mild attack of cholera. There is one remedy, however, that can always be depended upon as will be seen by the following certificate from Mrs. Minnie Jacobs of Houston, Texas: "I hereby certify that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy cured my husband of a severe attack of Cuban diarrhoea, which he brought home from Cuba. We had several doctors but they did him no good. One bottle of this remedy cured him, as our neighbors will testify. I thank God for so valuable a medicine." THE LOST IS FOUND

Jemison, June 9, 1905.

Mr. F. A. Gulledge, Verbena.

Dear Sir: Your mentioning last Saturday that the hat I had was like the one you had lost, caused me to think that I would write you and prove to you that I had bought the hat I had last Saturday; when I went to see the party (John Patton Jr.) I bought the hat from to get him to certify to my buying the hat from him he told me the hat I bought from him was not a John B. Stetson as I thought but a Pointer Brand hat, same shape as yours, same number, costing $3.00. I bought the hat just before going to the convention Saturday, May 27, and being in hurry never noticed what kind it was and as I had the hat charged to me did not learn the cost of it. Since seeing Mr. Patton and comparing the hats, I am convinced that I have your hat. If the Banner gave a true description of the hat you found, you evidently did not get my hat. The Banner also said if the party who had your hat did not return it in a week you would charge him with theft. This would be an injustice to me, as I was honest in thinking I had my own hat and I would have worn it out thinking it was mine had you not mentioned it last Saturday. I never had worn your hat until last Saturday, when you saw it Hope you have not been inconvenienced much, and would like for you to say through the Banner that you have found your hat and that the party who got it took it through a mistake. You can use any part or all of this letter if you care to in the Banner. Yours truly,

W. H. KILLINGSWORTH.

P. S. You will find your hat enclosed.

I know that most of the statements in the enclosed letter are true. JOHN PATTON JR

Verbena, June 10, 1905

To The Banner: My hat has been returned by Mr. W. H. Killingsworth of Jemison, as per his letter of the 9th inst. I fully accept all he says as true, holding him blameless in the premises.

Yours truly,

F. A. GULLEDGE.

Sardis.

Editor Banner: Will you please allow us a small space in your paper to say a few words in regard to a rumor that is afloat in the country. There was a man by the name of Pinegar came to Sardis and made a speech trying to organize the farmers, but we did not organize, and in a short time afterwards Pinegar and uncle Natty Dobbs came back stating that they had been informed that the people was ready to organize, which was a mistake. So when they failed to organize, the rumor is that Pinegar said that he was worse treated at Sardis than any place he ever was at; that he reckoned he would have been mobbed if it hadn't been for uncle Natty. To our certain knowledge no one had any right or reason to circulate such a report. We are sorry it went out, but glad it is false, for he was not mistreated. It is also rumored that he thought the people would have organized if it had not been for a talk J D. Deason made in the beginning of the meeting, and that the said J. D. Deason was at the head of the mobbing business. We know that no one had any right to circulate such a report, for it is also false. Anyone wanting to investigate the matter, let them come in our community and also see N. A. Dobbs, A. W. Powell and son.

Billingsley.

The Y. P. F. U. met at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Geo Wilkins Friday night, June 9, and was called to order by our President, Mr. C. A Patillo, after which there was roll call by the Secretary, Miss Etta Mae Roper and found that one of our members, Mr. H. W. Willis, was absent. Then a collection was taken by Mr. Pollard Felton, the Treasurer, Mr. J. W. Carter taking charge of the contribution. Having no excuse for the absence of Mr. Willis it was agreed that we impose the special fee of five cents on him to be paid at our next meeting. Two games of menagerie was enjoyed by all. Then three games of old maid, in which Miss Etta Mae Roper, Messrs. A. C. Felton, and J. W. Carter proved to be the old maids. Last, but not least, some real nice music, by Miss Myrtle Lawrence, of Maplesville, was much enjoyed by the party. We was so glad to have Miss Lawrence with us and hope she will give us another call soon. Every one seemed to enjoy the night.

Moved and carried that our next meeting be held at the residence of Mrs. C. P. Carters. Everyone come, and save that five cents. Adjourned. P. T. FORGOTTEN.

Billingsley.

The Y. P. F. U. met at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Geo Wilkins Friday night, June 9, and was called to order by our President, Mr. C. A Patillo, after which there was roll call by the Secretary, Miss Etta Mae Roper and found that one of our members, Mr. H. W. Willis, was absent. Then a collection was taken by Mr. Pollard Felton, the Treasurer, Mr. J. W. Carter taking charge of the contribution. Having no excuse for the absence of Mr. Willis it was agreed that we impose the special fee of five cents on him to be paid at our next meeting. Two games of menagerie was enjoyed by all. Then three games of old maid, in which Miss Etta Mae Roper, Messrs. A. C. Felton, and J. W. Carter proved to be the old maids. Last, but not least, some real nice music, by Miss Myrtle Lawrence, of Maplesville, was much enjoyed by the party. We was so glad to have Miss Lawrence with us and hope she will give us another call soon. Every one seemed to enjoy the night.

Moved and carried that our next meeting be held at the residence of Mrs. C. P. Carters. Everyone come, and save that five cents. Adjourned.

Selma, Ala.—Captain John F. Burns, known throughout the state as Burns, of Burnsville, died at his home on Lauderdale street Friday morning about 3 o'clock.

Montevallo, Ala.—The celebrated Montevallo coal mines has changed hands, W. F. Aldrich, the president and principal stockholder, and James L. McConaughy, secretary and treasurer, selling the entire capital stock of the company to T. H. Aldrich and P. B. Thomas, of Birmingham.

This mine was probably the first ever opened in the state, and the reputation of the coal has been proverbial. It consists of about 4,000 acres of land and a well equipped plant and village for operations. Mr. Aldrich retains his beautiful residence, "Rajah Lodge," and will continue to live there. He is well known throughout the state, and it is suggested as a possibility that he will re-enter politics and make the race for congress agin.

Fire at Eufaula.

Eufaula, Ala.—Fire destroyed a handsome residence on Randolph street Thursday night. The building was owned by J. B. Whitlock and was occupied by Marshal J. N. Bradley. The fire originated in the kitchen and the flames spread so rapidly that the occupants barely escaped. A small child sleeping near the kitchen was rescued after the flames had spread about her bed, but was uninjured. Nearly all of the household effects were burned, and the family fled, leaving all their raiment. By some means no response to the telephone could be had and the fire department was greatly delayed in reaching the scene. The residence and also the household effects were covered by insurance, but not sufficient to cover the loss.

Fire at Brewton.

Brewton, Ala.—The large two-story frame building near the railroad north of the depot, owned by Sam Mozelle, and occupied by Gus Byrd & Co., as a pool hall and confectionery stand, was completely destroyed by fire Thursday morning at 3 o'clock. The origin of the fire is not known, but indications are that it was of incendiary origin, as there had been no fire in the building during the day. The loss on the building is $1,100 with $800 insurance; loss on stock and fixtures $350, with no insurance.

Fire in Boaz.

Boaz, Ala.—Boaz, the thriving village on Sand mountain, on the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis road, was the scene of a disastrous fire early Monday morning, in which two large stores were destroyed, together with their contents, and a great conflagration was narrowly averted by hard work on the part of the citizens, as the town has no protection whatever from fire.

It is not known how the fire originated, but the store of Creel & Son and also the store of Gillespie & Son and the blacksmith shop of Mr. Tiller were completely destroyed. The total loss will reach about $5,000, partly covered by insurance. Creel & Son lost $1,800, Gillespie & Son $2,000, while Tiller's will reach $500. The stores will be rebuilt just as soon as the insurance can be adjusted.

Lineman Burned by Electric Wires.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—John Pierce, who is employed by the Tuscaloosa Light and Ice Company, received an electric shock Thursday while trimming a light, which will probably cost him his life.

He was engaged in putting in a new carbon on a pole some forty feet high on the crossing at Twenty-fifth avenue and Fourth street, when he received a shock which caused him to loose his hold. He fell into a network of live wires, where he was horribly burned. As he fell to the ground his clothes caught on the spikes on the pole. The muscle in his right arm was burned in two, and a large hole almost severing the back of his head from his body was made.

Deatsville, Ala.—Michael Curran, a tramp, was found in the woods near here, very ill. Medical attention was given, but he died and was given Christian burial by charitable citizens.

Cotton Futures Not Gambling.

Montgomery, Ala.—In the case of G. A. Nuckles against J. F. Hooper, of Marshall county, Thursday the supreme court of Alabama held that transactions in cotton futures is not gambling, but is a legitimate business. Nuckles gave a mortgage on property as security for margins, and an effort was made to foreclose the mortgage. He contended that the mortgage was invalid, inasmuch as it was given to secure a gambling debt.

Truck Farming Is Paying.

Cuba, Ala.—Cuba, Ala., is known all over the state as the "Bean Town," and it is safe to say that no other town in the state raises as many beans or other vegetables. The following list of vegetables shipped from here since the season opened will give some idea of the extent of the industry: Thirty-two thousand bushel hampers beans, 19,000 bushel hampers peas, 2,200 crates cabbage, 33,000 bushels potatoes.

The total value of the crop was nearly $75,000. Every man, woman and child has money from picking beans and peas. Some of the farmers have paid their accounts and have money to run them the rest of the year, notwithstanding the prices have been very low. The bean and pea patches will now be turned into corn and cotton patches, and will yield a good crop.

Went to Sleep on Crossties.

Anniston, Ala.—George Irwin, who resides near the plant of the American Net and Twine Company, was struck and thrown from the track by a Southern train, receiving painful injuries. His head was painfully bruised, as was one of his arms. Irwin, with two companions, were returning home from the city. They stopped to rest and all fell asleep. Irwin was sitting on the end of one of the crossties, while his friends reclined on the grass nearby. Irwin's slumbers were rudely disturbed by a train which bore down upon him with considerable force. His wounds are not dangerous, and he will be himself again at an early date.

Anniston, Ala.—Good progress is being made on the Kaplan block on South Noble street. When completed the block will be one of the most substantial and attractive business blocks in the city, and will be a decided advantage to South Noble street. The entire block from Eighth to Ninth streets will have wide pavements.

Postmaster Held to Grand Jury.

Montgomery, Ala.—Lucien A. Callaway, formerly postmaster at Rushton, Chilton county, pleaded guilty before United States Commissioner John A. Elmore to a charge of misappropriating postage stamps. The government charges that Callaway, while postmaster at Rushton, made purchases of a large Chicago supply house and department store, paying for the articles with postage stamps.

Held Check Too Long.

Birmingham, Ala.—In the City Court Friday the defendant was victorious in a suit styled the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company vs. the Central Foundry Company, suit for $233, the amount of a freight bill for one month. It seems that the Central Foundry Company gave a check to the railroad company for the amount named on June 6th. The check was held until after June 10th, on which date the bank in Bessemer failed.

It was claimed by the defendant company that they had money in the bank to cover the bill in question, but that the check was held too long and the bank failed, which was not their fault. The case was contested strongly, considerable argument being presented. The verdict was in favor of the defendant.

A Small Wreck.

Selma, Ala.—A small wreck occurred on the Meridian line of the Southern railway near York late Thursday afternoon. Two freight trains came together, but as one of them was standing still and the other going at a very slow rate of speed no damage was done except to smash up the pilot of one of the engines.

Littleton, of this town, vice-president, and Mr. Archie Crouch, of Sparta, Ky., cashier. Most of the stock of the bank was taken by the citizens and business men of the town. Building will begin at once, and the bank will open for business September 1.

Loses Several Fingers.

Birmingham, Ala.—Dick Warnock, a white man living at Pratt City, while attempting to board an Ensley car Thursday night slipped and fell under the car. His hand fell on the track in front of the wheels, and several of his fingers were entirely cut off. The injured man was brought to St. Vincent's hospital.

Putting in a New Exchange.

Gasoline Launches Popular.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—Gasoline launches on the Warrior river are getting to be quite the fad here. One of the prettiest little launches that has been received here is the property of S. F. Alston. It has a seating capacity of ten persons and runs twenty miles an hour. It is named after Mr. Alston's daughter, "Marilou," who at present is at St. Mary's College in New York.

Abandon Crops to Grass.

Montgomery, Ala.—Specials from Alabama points show that in some instances farmers are being compelled to abandon portions of their cotton crops entirely to the grass. This is due to the recent rainy spells of weather, which gave the weeds a long start on the cotton, and to the scarcity of labor prevailing.

Miners From Pennsylvania.

Birmingham, Ala.—A carload of miners from Pennsylvania arrived in the city Friday and were transferred to Wylam, in the Pratt division of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company's property. They will go to work at once in the coal mines in this district.

Many of the men were accompanied by their families, the indications being that they had come here to stay.

To Install Clock.

Greenville, Ala.—During the session of the Commissioner's Court, held last week, it was decided to purchase a clock and have it placed in the tower of the court house and Judge Lampley was instructed to take up the matter with manufacturers with a view of securing the clock at an early date. The commissioners also decided to have a pavement placed around the court house.

Struck With Club.

Abbeville, Ala.—At about 3 o'clock Friday morning Travis Mowing, who lives a mile from town, was attacked by some one and dangerously injured.

Mr. Mowing went to his barn to feed his stock and was placing the corn in the trough when he was struck from behind with a club and knocked insensible. However, he has improved and his physician thinks he will get well.

Mr. Mowing claims to know who struck him, and the person was tracked a considerable distance. It is possible that an arrest will be made in a short time.

WAR IN DIPLOMACY

Will be Spirited—Will the Japs be Equal to the Russian Statesmen?

ARBITRATION IS NOW WANTED.

Japan Will Refuse This on the Ground That the Two Powers Are Able to Settle It.

Washington, D. C.—Not only are the prospective terms of peace, between Japan and Russia interesting diplomatic circles, but the method by which the terms are to be determined is of more immediate importance to the people who are watching the international attempt to close the great war between the two leading powers of the far east.

It is understood in diplomatic circles that Russia is making a move toward throwing her case into what would have practically the effect of an arbitration. She does not want arbitration, and has not yet taken positive steps in the carrying out of any plan for concluding a peace, but at the same time it is said there is shown a strong tendency on the part of her representatives here toward the submission of Japan's proposition to a council of powers

That is just what Japan has no intention of doing. She considers herself and Russia big enough to look after their own interests without the good offices of an intermediary power merely in order to make the negotiations proceed with greater facility. But so far as Japan is concerned it is generally believed that at the close of the war she will be as independent of outside influence as if the generals of two nations were drawing up the terms of peace on the battlefield, or as if diplomatic representatives of the two governments were meeting for that purpose under a flag of truce.

It is understood that Russia is taking the view that there would be nothing for her to lose and much to gain by having the proposals of Japan submitted to a council of powers. Such a conference with the purpose of declaring as to the reasonableness of Japanese demands would have given to its conclusion a wonderful influence. It would be difficult for Japan to fly in the face of such a determination, and for that reason and because Japan believes that such a course is unnecessary, and even humiliating to her, there is no disposition on her part to adopt it.

The situation is such, in the opinion of men who have carefully followed these events, that Russia must accept almost anything that Japan offers unless she can command some influence outside of her own realm to protect her. No one seriously suggests that Russia has any further fighting powers that are worthy of consideration at this time. She has been beaten at every stage of the war and it is quite generally believed that further resistence would only expose her helplessness.

For these reasons Russia would like to throw herself on the mercy of nations, using such arguments privately as would induce as favorable consideration as possible toward her interests in framing the final terms of peace. She could thus have the advantage of all that prejudice and fear of the "yellow peril" that exists in some quarters of Europe.

She could use the subtle argument that to place a large indemnity in the hands of Japan would simply result in its disbursement for armaments of war to the danger of the peace of the world. Her own helplessness would be a guarantee that for many years to come she could not engage in a war and a small award accorded to Japan would to that extent guard against an invasion of the peace of the world.

In diplomatic circles it is said that the Japanese are not likely to be beaten in this game of diplomacy.

Russia is looked upon as being strong diplomatically, although weak from a military point of view. Many men are wondering whether, after her severe whipping, she will be able by the wiles of diplomacy to evade much of the disaster of war.

Even the influence that the president is supposed to use in his capacity as intermediary is not believed to be settled by many of the diplomats. It is difficult to coin a word that would exactly describe the position to be taken by the president in the case. But it is declared confidently by men who are familiar with what is going on about the white house that the president has not yet any functions except that necessary for two hostile governments to carry on a communication. Whether or not that power will be changed is a question that interests every one.

Christiana, Norway.—The Norwegian tri-color was hoisted Friday over Akershus fort and throughout the country in place of the union flag. The substitution was attended by great ceremony at the fort, where the members of the Storthing and 30,000 of the public were assembled. The garrison was paraded in front of the quarters of the commandant of the fort, and the commandant read the resolution of the Storthing dissolving the union with Sweden.

To all appearances the groom is about eighteen years of age and his child wife is not thought to be a day older than twelve. They were sought out by hundreds of citizens and were the objects of much curiosity on the part of every one who saw them. The bride was clad in a neat white dress that barely touched three inches below her knees and looked to all appearances like an ordinary school girl and seemed as happy as the days are long. They seem to have no fear of reconciling the old folks upon their return home.

A Race Fight.

Charleston, S. C.—As a result of the bloody race riot that occurred late Saturday night on the Aiken and Augusta trolley line, about one mile on the South Carolina side, in North Augusta, Peter Renew, white, is dead; Charles Willis, a negro, and E. F. Fishburn, conductor, white, mortally wounded; Morgan Willis, a negro, and Maxie Boyd, white, seriously injured.

In the inquest over Renew it was shown that Boyd started the trouble by cursing Willis, a negro, who turned and cut him. The car was stopped to put Willis off and he began to fire into the car. There were 87 passengers and several produced pistols, at least forty shots being fired.

The coroner's verdict charges Willis with killing Renew and names Milligan Willis as accessory.

Woman's Body Found.

Chicago, Ill.—The body of Mrs. Marian Kurtzman, one of the victims of Saturday night's automobile accident, was found Sunday night about 250 feet from the spot where the auto plunged into the river at the Rush street bridge. The body of Wilson A. Hartley, the third victim of the accident, has not yet been found.

William H. Hoops, Jr., who was in charge of the automobile at the time of the accident, was arrested Sunday on a charge of criminal carelessness. When the automobile was taken from the river it was found that the throttle was wide open and the brakes in good working order. Thus, the police claim that this is sufficient evidence that Hoops made no effort to stop the car. Hoops' father secured the release of his son in $3,000 bond.

THE UNION DISSOLVED

Norway and Sweden are Separated and a New King Will Reign Over Sweden.

THE STORTHING'S RESOLUTION.

Sweden for Protection and Norway for Free Trade.—Norwegians Want to Manage Their Affairs.

Christiana, Norway.—The Storthing Wednesday declared the union between Norway and Sweden under one king to be dissolved, and the king has ceased to act as king of Norway. The Storthing further empowers the present state council to act as a government of Norway until further notice, and to exercise the power heretofore appertaining to the king.

An address to the king was adopted declaring that no ill feeling was entertained against him, his dynasty or the Swedish nation, and asking him to cooperate in the selection of a young prince of the house of Bernadotte to occupy the throne of Norway.

It Was Long Expected.

The dissolution of the union between Sweden and Norway has been pending for some time and had its growth in the desire, which grew stronger as time passed, for the establishment of separate consular systems for the two countries. King Oscar recently vetoed at Stockholm the measure presented to him by the council of state providing for separate consular representation, and the Norwegians maintained that the king by so doing, and partly by his absence from Norway, had suspended his rights and duties as king of Norway.

One of the causes for the desire in Sweden and Norway for separate consular systems was the fact that Sweden is protectionist and Norway is for free trade, and also because of Norway's more extensive sea trade and other divergencies of commercial interests.

At the opening of the session the government informed the Storthing that it relinquished office from today. The Storthing thereupon unanimously and without debate published the following resolution:

The Storthing Resolution.

"Whereas, all the members of council of state have laid down their offices, and,

"Whereas, his majesty, the king, declared himself unable to establish a new government for the country, and,

"Whereas, the constitutional loyal power thus becomes inoperative, the Storthing authorizes the members of the council of state, who retired today, to exercise until further notice as the Norwegian government, the power appertaining to the king in accordance with Norway's constitution and existing laws with some changes which are necessary by the fact that the union with Sweden under one king is dissolved in consequence of the king having ceased to act as a Norwegian king."

M. Michaelson, the retiring premier, accepted in behalf of the government, the honorable and difficult task with which the Storthing has entrusted it.

Five social democrats dissented from the address to the king.

It is expected that the Storthing will issue a proclamation to the Norwegian people regarding the dethronement of the monarch.

King Oscar Protests.

Stockholm, Sweden.—King Oscar has sent a telegram to Premier Michaelson as follows:

"Have received the communication of the council of state. Record the most decided protest against the method and action of the government."

Falls in Tar Barrel.

Gadsden, Ala.—John Foreman got a coat of tar late Tuesday, but it was not accompanied with feathers. Foreman was at work with a squad of men painting the roof of Cottle's drug store and he had descended the ladder after more paint. As he ascended and reached the roof the ladder slipped and he was precipitated to the ground feet foremost, striking on his feet in a barrel of tar paint, being covered from head to foot with the black, sticky paint.

His right ankle was sprained and his body bruised some, but he says the worst part was getting rid of the tar, but was thankful it was not put on by anyone except himself.

Broke His Leg.

Plantersville, Ala.—James Russell, a young man, who runs the engine for Barnes & Snow at this place, in a play with some other young people at his boarding house fell while running and broke his leg between the ankle and knee, the most painful manner in which a limb can be broken. The accident broke up the game. He is resting quietly.

PLUCKY MARE SAVED HIM.

KNEE-DEEP IN BLUEGRASS.

Well Dressed Young Man Relates Why He Was So Anxious to Buy a Buckskin Horse, Despite Lame Behind—Dolly Proved True in a Pinch.

A young man well dressed and in a great hurry, rushed up to the railroad tracks toward the horse runway of the South St. Paul yard. He was out of breath when he arrived at the chute, where a load of horses shipped from New Mexico was about to be unloaded.

When the young man reached the place two or three animals had already passed down the chute and were stretching their legs in the corral. The young man examined the animals sharply and then stepped up to the agent of the consignee.

"Could I buy one of those horses?"

"Certainly, young man, that's what we get 'em for," replied the agent. "Which one do you want?"

There was an expression of perplexity on the face of the customer. "I would bet my head I heard her whinny," he muttered.

"They aren't a very pretty lot," ventured the agent, "but they're all right. By George, there's one more in the car," he exclaimed, as he raised the bars he had dropped and allowed a buskskin mare, desperately lame behind, to come out.

The face of the young man lighted up, and he sprang at the fence and valuted it before the agent could prevent him.

"Dolly! It's you, Dolly," he sobbed, as he threw his arms about the little mare's neck. She rubbed her nose on his coat and pricked her ears forward and backward with pleasure at the meeting.

The agent allowed the horse and man to say "howdy' to each other and then inquired:

"Well, young fellow, how much will you give for her?"

"How much do you want?" replied the man.

"Sixty-five dollars,' said the agent, and the young man started to count out the bills.

The mare stood quietly by until the trade had been made and then followed her new owner to the corral.

"I don't need any halter," said the young man. "I guess we know one another well enough to get to the barn without being roped."

The mare followed like a dog and together they entered one of the big stables.

"Give her all she wants and fix her up as well as you can,' he remarked to the barn men, and after looking over his purchase for several minutes, he went into the office.

"Seems to know you, sir,' said one of the hostlers.

"Yes, I should think so," replied the young man. "She knows me and I certainly know her. She isn't pretty, but I wouldn't trade her for English Lad, or Hamburg Belle, or any of those flyers, and I guess Dan Patch would be overlooked if Mr. Savage should offer to swap with me for Dolly."

"Why?"

"Well, I'll tell you. A year ago last summer I was in the California mountains. I was broke as the old man and myself had a temporary disagreement. I was working with a railroad as timekeeper. I had to ride twelve miles a day through the roughest country in California and the little mare used to carry me.

"I would not be here if it had not been for her nerve when mine failed. One day we were going along a twisting trail that was being changed into a railroad grade. The men had cleared the chaparral from both sides, and the gummy, resinous stuff lay stewing in the sun. The grade lay along the side of a canyon and in some places the mountain was so steep that a man could toss a stone half a mile.

"The grade had been carried into the gulches on either side of a jutting spur and then out again on the face of the spur and around to the opposite gulch. The front of the spur was straight up 500 feet, and where the grade passed around it shelved off at an angle of about thirty degrees to a river 2,500 feet below.

"It was a bad sort of a place for a tenderfoot, but Dolly and myself had negotiated it many times and I had confidence in her judgment.

"Dolly kept pricking her ears backward and casting sidelong glances at me, and I did all I could to soothe her. Finally there came a puff of wind that carried some of the brands clear out on the mountain side, and in a few more seconds, by leaning over the edge of the grade, I could see the blue smoke and yellow flames as they ate their way into the heaps of brush. The smell of the rosin in the chaparral struck me as being too close for comfort, and I told the little mare to move along.

"When a gust of white flame swept up out of the furnace and touched my left side, I felt my senses reel, and expected the next moment to be my last. There was a lull in the attack of the fire just at this juncture, and the old mare turned her head around and looked me squarely in the eye.

"'Well, young fellow,' she said, 'you have managed to get us in a nice fix, haven't you, now? But I'll try to get us out. Can you hang on when I go through? Get ready for I'm going to try it.'

"I just had time to murmur 'Into Thy hands I commend my spirit,' when she struck the fire. Into it she plunged and, keeping her courage on the narrow ledge, made the turn out on the mountain side.

"It seemed a half-hour before we were through that furnace. And as we emerged from the sweeping billows I [illegible] falter. I was too weak to guide her, but she managed to stagger to safety just as I rolled from her back.

"I was in the hospital in San Francisco a month before I was in shape to be about and it was three months before I could get back to the mountains to try to find Dolly. My father had become reconciled to me during my illness and I wanted to buy the old mare and take her back home with me.

"They told me that she had been badly burned and was no good and had been turned out on the hillside to die.

"But I found her today in this shipment from New Mexico and from this time forth to the end of her days she is going to wade in bluegrass and have every care a horse can have, because it was through her that I am here."—St. Paul Correspondence Pittsburg Gazette.

REVOLVING HOUSES.

An Architect's Device to Secure All the Sunshine that Comes.

When we hear of a house being constructed which turns round upon an axis so that it always faces the sun, we are inclined, after the meteorological experiences of the past year, to ridicule the idea of there ever being any sun for the house to face; but, granted ever so slight a hope that at some distant date we may be favored once more with a renewal of his favors, the erection of such a domicile presents immense advantages.

The fact that sunshine is of all things the best cure for consumption shows at once the principal object of the invention, although its inventor, M. Petit, looks further ahead, and dreams of the time when all and sundry maybe able to command shade or sun as they wish.

The arrangement by which the house is moved is simplicity itself. It is built upon a plate of steel, which can be revolved by means of a motor or a crank worked by hand, two men being sufficient to do all that is required. With its face pointing to the east in the early morning, a turn of the crank at stated intervals swings the whole structure round, so that in whatever quarter the sun is, the front of the house is always turned to it. Through the middle of the steel plate is a circular hole, and here is the means of exit for the drain pipes, and so on, while water pipes and electric-lighting wires are introduced through the same channel.

The said pipes and drains are jointed into a main pipe, which, in turn, revolves with the building, and in this manner the internal arrangements are never disturbed. In addition to the capability of always facing the sun, each of the rooms is furnished with a double set of windows. These consist of sliding shutters, no glass, and if the person in any room requires all sunlight and no shade, he rolls the shutters across the aperture, which faces sideways, and lets the front window alone remain oepn.

If, on the other hand, he requires shade, all he has to do is to open the shutters facing to the side and shut those facing the sun. It will be seen, therefore, that this ingenious house is made to suit all requirements. One can easily picture a seaside town composed entirely of these sunshine houses, where eternal sunshine would literally "reign" supreme!

The suggestion for these sunshine houses emanated from Dr. Pellegrin, who studied under Mr. Finsen, the inventor of the light cure, by the way. For a long time he though over the subject, without any definite hope of its achievement being possible, till one day he said quite casually to M. Petit that he wished such a house could be built. M. Petit was surprised, not at the idea, but the fact that any one should conçieve there should be any difficulty in carrying it out, and he immediately set to work and made the plans, which resulted eventually in the sunshine house.—London Mail.

Of Small Economic Importance.

Statictics of Russia's vastness are in some ways most deceiving. It is true that there is a population of one hundred and forty million; but if that population could be measured by some comparative economic unit, so that its productive and consumptive capacity were compared with such individual capacity in the United States, for instance, the real economic value of that great population would dwindle in a most surprising way. Anyone who has seen Russian peasant life in the "mir," anyone who has seen the shelters which are called houses, looked upon the decoction of black bread and cabbage which, with an occasional supplement of vodka, forms the usual food of the vast population, will understand what a small economic value must be put on each unit of Russian population; and that makes it easy to understand the complete stagnation which fell upon Russia's new industries, which had grown up under the intense stimulus of a prohibitive protection and were then left stranded by the stoppage of Government orders.—From "Political Problems of Europe as They Interest Americans," by Frank A. Vanderslip, in Scribner's.

During the year 1904 the number of vessels entering the port of Genoa was 6,151.

JOKERS BUDGET

HER PROPERTY.

He hadn't any real estate,
Yet the maid, single-handed,
Got busy ere it was too late—
And soon she had him landed.
—Detroit Tribune.

METHOD IN IT.

Financier—I have never failed to succeed.

Friend—Gee! I thought that's what you always failed for!—Cleveland Leader.

UNREASONABLE CRITICISM.

First Heeler—They say we sell our votes to the highest bidder.

Second Heeler—What do they expect us to do—sell to the lowest?

NEVER REALLY TRIED IT.

Visitor—Doesn't it cost a great deal to live in a city like this?

Haggard Dyspeptic—I suppose it does. My doctors never have allowed me to live here. I merely exist here.—Chicago Tribune.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Wilkins—You told me you never bought a silk umbrella in your life, and there are no less than three silk ones in your room, for I saw them myself.

Bowser—I did not say that other folks never buy silk umbrellas.—Boston Transcript.

STILL LOVES THE RING.

Mabel—So you have broken off the engagement? Have you returned his ring?

Amy—Why, no! that wouldn't be reasonable. Of course, I have changed my opinion of George, but I admire the ring as much as ever. —Chicago Journal.

TWO REASONS.

Oldbeau—I thought you might be in love with her.

Jack Robinson—What made you think so?

Oldbeau—Why, you're young and she's pretty.—Harper's Bazar.

WHY IT FAILED.

"He opened an Italian restaurant in Chicago, but it was a failure from the start."

"The people didn't like spaghetti, eh?"

"Well, you see, its almost impossible to eat it with a knife."—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE AWKWARD AGE.

The Visitor—How old are you, Tom?

The Boy—Aw! Ma says I'm too young to eat the things I like, an' I'm too old to cry when I don't get 'em.—Harper's Bazar.

OTHERWISE OCCUPIED.

Johnny—Paw, whats an auto da fe?

Father—Sakes alive, I dunno! I ain't got time to keep up with all these new-fangled motor cars.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

UNDER FALSE COLORS.

Guest—I ordered stewed rabbit, stewed chicken and veal stew, and now I can't tell which is which!

Green Waiter—There isn't any difference, sir. They're all made out of the same kind of meat!—Detroit Free Press.

HIS AFFECTIONS SHIPWRECKED.

"Nellie," spoke the youth, with an air of confidence, "only say the word and you and I will sail together on the rough sea of life, bravely buffeting its waves, trimming our sails to meet the adverse winds that—"

"Leave me, Harry, leave me," interrupted the maiden. "The man who takes me on that journey must offer me a first-class passage on a steamer."—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

UNIQUE.

"We've got a new dinner set of 150 pieces."

"We've got one of 150,000 pieces."

"Why, I never heard of such a thing!"

"Neither did we till we got our present cook."—Houston Post.

THANKS TO CASTRO.

"Did you ever see a country dance?" chuckled the buffoon boarder.

"No," replied the reading boarder, "but we will all see one dancing pretty soon."

"What country?"

"Venezuela.—Chicago News.

THE GREAT DIFFICULTY.

"Of course, sometimes its hard to say 'no.' Don't you find it so?" the charity worker asked of the great man.

"It isn't hard to say 'no,' he replied, "but frequently it seems very hard to say it in such a way as to make people realize that you mean it."—Philadelphia Press.

HIS VIEWPOINT.

Harris—Money isn't everything in this world, I can tell you that, my boy.

Harris, Jr.—You think so, dad, because you had to work for your money. If you were in my place, and had money that you didn't have to wear yourself out to get, you wouldn't be so blamed cynical.—Boston Transcript.

Fully 75 per cent. of the rural population of the Prussian province of Saxony has drifted to the large cities, says the Hanover Courier.

All our sister counties in this Congressional districtc have voted for the special school tax, and no doubt Chilton will vote the same way whenever the election is called, and we understand that will be early next year.

The United Confederate Veterans are holding their annual reunion at Louisville, and the wearers of the gray are having the time of their lives in the hospitable Kentucky city.

President Roosevelt is acting the part of mediator between Japan and Russia, with a strong probability of bringing them together to arrange peace. Banzai for Teddy the peacemaker.

Clanton—and Chilton county—is on the eve of an important movement which means much for the development of the county. The purchase of the University school property from Prof. McMorries by Mr. T. G. McElderry of Talledega is doubtlessly on behalf of the company now in course of formation, which proposes to erect a cotton warehouse with a capacity of 2000 bales, a ginnery of 50 bales per day capacity, and a fertilizer factory.

This part of the work it is proposed to put in hand at once, to be completed in the fall, when the Company will be in readiness for business. At the meeting to be held June 15, the legal steps to incorporate the Company will be taken, and as soon as possible thereafter work will be commenced.

These are the plans for the present, but others are contemplated in the immediate future of more far-reaching importance. In the first place, in putting in the power to operate the ginnery and fertilizer plant, it is proposed to erect a plant of sufficient capacity to furnish the town of Clanton with electric lights and power, and eventually to operate a trolley line between Clanton and Maplesville, thus bringing both sides of the county in close touch with each other.

Not only will the trolly line bring the county closer together, but it will also be a means for the distribution of the produce of the fertilizer plant, and will give us competition in freight rates, connecting us with the Southern railway and the Mobile & Ohio road at Maplesville. There are many other advantages, which should secure the support of every citizen of Chilton to this enterprise.

When these things are accomplished, then comes a cotton factory, and a chemical works is also contemplated.

The next great work by the Southern Cotton Association will be the completing of the Planters' Commission and Holding Co., which will practically amount to an insurance against low price. The entire capital stock, $10,000,000, should be subscribed in thirty days; then we will never see cotton sell for less than 10 cents.

HURRAH FOR THE FOURTH

Verbena, June 6, 1905

Editor Banner—Pardon me for the frequency of my communications. But impelled by a feeling of loyalty to the common masses, I write to urge everybody to put forth their best efforts to make the Fourth of July the greatest success in the history of Chilton county. Let each family and each individual as well come up the full measure of their duty on that day. Remember it is not a political gathering but a social as well as a patriotic one. Let no man withhold his help because he cannot or will not get as much or more back in grub that day, such people who are in the habit of going to all such gatherings to "surprise their ribs" will certainly be in evidence, but it is to be desired that even this class will attend actuated to a degree at least, by a social and patriotic feeling.

Further I would remind each and everyone who attended the Cotton Association meeting last Saturday, 3rd inst. that he is a committee of one to represent his section of the county on the Fourth, and if he fails in these few things he need not expect to be made "ruler over many things." Go to your neighbors, "ask for bread" and don't allow him to "give you a stone." If he can't give you five dollars, ask for three, if not three accept one and on down to twenty-five cents according to his abiliity and station in life. From those who prefer to furnish baskets accept it and enter in your report with your cash on 25th inst. Carcasses of any kind may be furnished by those who will report same promptly to W. I. Mullins, who is one of the members of the barbecue committee.

Now, let the banker, lawyer, doctor, merchant and last, but not least, the farmer, and all other laboring men lay down all their daily cares, put on their best clothes, leave your cigarettes, whiskey and pistols at home please, and let us say for once in the language of a good old Coosa county Methodist, "Brethren it is good to be here." We promise a good band of music, a lot of the most interesting speakers to be had, including the Hon. Jess Stallings, whose melodious voice makes glad the heart of all his hearers from the United States congress to the piney woods of Butler county, Ala, Dr. Cary, our honored Veteranarian, as well as Prof. Duggar of Auburn are expected to address us on the question of live stock, feeding etc. and right here I want to suggest to the barbecue committee (all citizens of Clanton) that I feel sure I represent the sentiment of a large percentage of the best people of the county, when I urge them to arrange to maintain the strictest order, and not allow the various trading stands with their usual attendant noise to be immediately upon the barbecue and picnic grounds proper, but set them off as a side show and yet under strict police control. I would suggest further that all who have trading stands be under the eye of competent judges as to the quality of stuff they sell. To illustrate: If a cigar is offered at 1⅔¢, 3 for 5, 2½¢, 2 for 5, or 5¢ each, let it be of that class; let them furnish lemonade, soda water ice cream or other refreshments fully up to the usual standard and not defraud a suffering and liberal public just because they can. I don't say it will be done but it has been and hence this word of caution. Let Clanton come up to its full measure of duty and the balance of the county do likewsse and I promise here and now that if old Verbena fails I will not "rise up and call her blessed," but will call it one of the worst names I know of towit: "short." Now, to Verbena I want to say, good people come up second to no section of the county, send up the biggest cash dollar to the committee or hand over to me for them by the 15th inst., or if you prefer you will please be on hand on the Fourth with a basket full of the good things for which you are so famous. Remember, everybody, that this occasion appeals to all without exception or regard to station in life.

F. A. Gulledge.

Dying of Famine

is, in its torments, like dying of consumption. The progress of consumption, from the beginning to the very end, is a long torture, both to victim and friends. "When I had consumption in its first stage," writes Wm. Myers, of Cearfoss, Md., "after trying different medicines and a good doctor, in vain, I at last took Dr. King's New Discovery, which quickly and perfectly cured me." Prompt relief and sure cure for coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchitis, etc. Positively prevents pneumonia. Guaranteed at Upchurch drug store, price 50c and $1.00 a bottle. Trial bottles free.

CHILTON COUNTY SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

President—E. B. Deason, Clanton. Secretary-Treasurer—W. C. Gibson, Verbena. Executive Committee—[illegible], Clanton; Dr. A. Horn, Thorsby; T. U. Crumpton, Maplesville; Dr. H. W. Caffey, Verbena; W. A. Reynolds, Jemison.

THE COUNTY DISTRICTS.

The object of the International Association is to help every Sunday school in the United States and Canada and to this end the plan of organization is thorough and complete. The Sunday schools in the county beats form the district organizations—these form the county association; the union of the county associations form the State organization, and the union of the State associations of the United States and Canada form the International Association. Each of these divisions, International, State, County and District, has its own organization, its own officers and holds its own annual convention. but, though apparently separate and distinct, they are the working parts of this complete piece of machinery—the "Modern Sunday school work of the world." Mention has been made of the Alabama and Chilton county Associations and now a word as to the District organization. At the Chilton county convention in September, 1904, at Cedar Grove, the county was divided into 6 districts, each being the union of Sunday schools in certain beats. Jemison District, beats 1 and 2; Isabella District, beats 3 and 6; Thorsby District, beat 9; Clanton District, beats 4 and 11; Verbena District, beats 5 and 10; Maplesville District, beats 7 and 8. Four of these districts have been organized—Thorsby, J. Bice, President; Verbena, H. W. Caffey, President; Jemison, W. H. Shaw, President, and Maplesville, officers not known.

The goal of Chilton's ambition is to be a "Banner county" and these are the requisites, 1. A county association. 2. A county annual convention. 3. Every district organized. 4. An Annual convention in every district. 5. A complete statistical report. 6. A contribution to the State work. We have complied with every condition except the 3d and 4th. As far as known, the Clanton and Isabella districts have not been organized and only the Thorsby district has held a convention this year, but Verbena district is planning for one within the next few weeks and surely Maplesville and Jemison districts will not fall short of last year's record. The work of organizing the districts was placed in the hands of the executive committee and with very little trouble the Clanton and Isabella districts could be organized before the county convention at Maplesville, July 22 and 23. If there is any good in this International Association we want Chilton county to have her share but we will never know what is in it unless we try the plans and methods the association has advised.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

Special correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, June 12, 1905

As I stated in my last letter, one of the reasons for delay in the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee not coming to some determination on the railroad rate making problem, has been a considerable change in Southern sentiment, especially among influential leaders of opinion. As before stated, the South started in squarely behind President Roosevelt's movement for qualified Government rate regulation. Mr. Bryan early came out in advocacy of Mr. Roosevelt's efforts, and the Southern Democrats voted solidly for the Esch-Townsend bill, after advocating something still more radical. It accordingly looked as if the President's campaign on rate regulation would be aided by the minority party in Congress, which would make it necessary that all the opposition should come from his own ranks.

But the railroad arguments have made so deep an impression upon so many Southern public men that they privately acknowledge that, while they may vote for a step toward rate regulation, because of political necessities, they hope that the situation may be so controlled by internal strategy that they will not have to do this, and any aid that can be given to such strategy in the Senate several Southern Democrats stand ready to furnish. This feeling need not show itself in the House, because on this question the Senate will draft the bill. The argument that seems to be catching the Southern leaders is the danger to their section from any approximation of rates to a milage basis, and particularly in the movement of cotton. They realize that a few years may see a bitter struggle in the export cotton trade, due to competition with the new sources of supply that the British colonies are developing, over which British opinion are now so optimistic. America is more dependent upon the export of cotton than any other crop, and if anything should break its supremacy abroad, the Southland would be severely injured. One great advantage which the South has over the possible cotton areas of East Africa and India is in cheap transportation from the interior to the coast. The American railroads, controlling their own rates, in such a struggle for supremacy would haul cotton from the uplands at rates which would keep the cotton growers area intact, in the face of serious competition. Added to this argument, there is hardly a prominent Southern city that has not been partly convinced that it owes its importance in some industry to a cheap long haul, and these instances have been emphasized by the railroad agents in such a way as to make sentiment.

Moreover, railroad interests are so strong in the South that few aspirants for political advancement would care to disregard them. These considerations in part, account for the absence of all but three Democratic members from the committee hearings and the known desire of several of these minority men, if it can be done quietly, to break with the railroad rate regulation wing of the party.

I speak advisedly when I say that the dominant Republican leaders of the Senate Committee which has just concluded its hearing feel that their greatest accomplishment since the President's crusade began has been the sowing of the seeds of this distrust toward rate regulation in the minds of Southern men.

MILK CRUST ON BABY

Lost All His Hair—Scratched Till Blood Ran—Grateful Mother Tells of His Cure by Cuticura For 75c.

"When our baby boy was three months old he had the milk crust very badly on his head, so that all the hair came out, and it itched so bad he would scratch until the blood ran. I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I applied the Cuticura and put a thin cap on his head, and before I had used half of the box it was entirely cured, his hair commenced to grow out nicely again, and he has had no return of the trouble. TWO OPEN LETTERS

IMPORTANT TO MARRIED WOMEN

Mrs. Mary Dimmick of Washington tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well.

It is with great pleasure we publish the following letters, as they convincingly prove the claim we have so many times made in our columns that Mrs.

Mrs. Mary Dimmick

Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., is fully qualified to give helpful advice to sick women. Read Mrs. Dimmick's letters.

Her first letter:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I have been a sufferer for the past eight years with a trouble which first originated from painful menstruation—the pains were excruciating, with inflammation and ulceration of the womb. The doctor says I must have an operation or I cannot live. I do not want to submit to an operation if I can possibly avoid it. Please help me."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, Washington, D. C.

Her second letter;

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"You will remember my condition when I last wrote you, and that the doctor said I must have an operation or I could not live. I received your kind letter and followed your advice very carefully and am now entirely well. As my case was so serious it seems a miracle that I am cured. I know that I owe not only my health but my life to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to your advice. I can walk miles without an ache or a pain, and I wish every suffering woman would read this letter and realize what you can do for them."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 59th and East Capitol Streets, Washington, D. C.

How easy it was for Mrs. Dimmick to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and how little it cost her—a two-cent stamp. Yet how valuable was the reply! As Mrs. Dimmick says—it saved her life.

Mrs. Pinkham has on file thousands of just such letters as the above, and offers ailing women helpful advice.

View of King Leopold.

An American who has ample opportunity to observe King Leopold, of Belgium, describes him as "a man of extraordinary fine physique, an accomplished linguist, widely read and traveled and holding advanced liberal views in all matters pertaining to statecraft and social science. He had the prescience to see in the Congo section of Africa an opportunity to found a colony for the surplus population of the small state over which he rules, Belgium being the most densely populated of European countries."

Joke on Justin McCarthy.

In a recent article on political conditions in England Justin McCarthy quotes the expression "By the skin of his teeth," and parenthetically apologizes for using what he calls "such a vulgar expression." Humorous writers are enjoying a laugh at Mr. McCarthy's expense, calling his attention to the 19th chapter of Job, 20th verse, where he may find the words: "I am escaped with the skin of my teeth."

Alaska, Terra Incognito.

We scracely know Alaska as yet, not even the number of square miles of land and water surface. Of wholly unknown regions in the vast territory of nearly 578,000 square miles (estimated) there are three of considerable extent. The smallest embraces the great snow-covered St. Elias range, which, though but a short distance from tide water, is so inaccessible that practically nothing is known of its geography or geology. A second unexplored area lies adjacent to the Arctic coat and the international boundary, extending southward down 40,000 square miles. A third unexplored area lies in the northwestern part of the territory, which also includes about 40,000 square miles. The Kuskokwin basin embraces 15,000 miles of unexplored country.

The X-ray operators in the London hospital used to be injured occasionally by the rays, but nothing fresh has happened since the introduction of the X-ray shields a year ago. These shields are made of thick glass containing a high percentage of lead.

Railway Rate Legislation.

At the biennial convention of the Order of Railway Conductors, recently held at Portland, Oregon, resolutions were unanimously adopted voicing their sentiments as to the effect of proposed railway rate legislation on the 1,300,000 railroad employes, whom they in part represented. These resolutions "indorse the attitude of President Roosevelt in condemning secret rebates and other illegalities, and commend the attitude of the heads of American railways, who, with practical unanimity, have joined with the President on this question." They then respectfully point out to Congress the "inadvisability of legislation vesting in the hands of a commission power over railway rates, now lower by far in the United States than in any other country," because such regulation would "result in litigation and confusion and inevitably tend to an enforced reduction in rates, irrespective of the question of the ability of the railroads to stand the reduction, especially in view of the increased cost of their supplies and materials." They further protested against such power being given to the present Interstate Commission because "the proposed legislation is not in harmony with our idea of American jurisprudence, inasmuch as it contemplates that a single body shall have the right to investigate, indict, try, condemn and then enforce its decisions at the cost of the carriers, pending appeal, which is manifestly inequitable."

The conductors base their demand for only such legislation, if any, as would "secure and insure justice and equity and preserve equal rights to all parties concerned" on the ground that the low cost of transportation "is the result of the efficiency of American railway management and operation which have built up the country through constant improvement and development of territory, while at the same time recognition has been given to the value of intelligence among employes in contrast to foreign methods, where high freight rates and lowest wages to employes obtain."

In pressing their claim against legislation adverse to their interests, they point out the fact that "the freight rates of this country average only two per cent. of the cost of articles to the consumer, thus making the freight rate so insignificant a factor in the selling price that numerous standard articles are sold at the same price in all parts of the country."

THE PULPIT.

A BRILLIANT SUNDAY SERMON BY DR. M. W. STRYKER, PRESIDENT OF HAMILTON COLLEGE.

Subject: Service.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Dr. M. W. Stryker, President of Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., occupied the pulpit of the Hanson Place M. E. Church in the absence of Dr. Locke, the pastor. He preached the following sermon on "Service:"
